Red Ship, Red Flag, Horrors.
Men Need Frightening.
Strangling With Taxes.
Old Rugby Returns.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE "KIM," first ship flying Russia's Soviet flag, docked on Monday in the harbor of New York, and, in the language of the day, "were the faces of the best minds red?" They were, indeed.

This terrible ship carries a red flag, and, regardless of the fact that red is the color that the Lord uses most powerfully in his sunset and rainbows, we all know that nobody should carry a red flag.

To make it worse, the dining room of the Steamer Kim has spread across the wall, a big red banner, with this inscription in Russian, English and German:

"Ahead to world revolution."

Some think we also are traveling in that direction but we do not like to be reminded.

AND THAT is not all. More dangerous, revolutionary, a breeder of "discontent among the lower classes" is the terrible fact that on this Russian boat, the quarters of the crew, that actually do the work on the ship, are on the upper deck, instead of being tucked away in the smelly forecastle. And the clubroom, equipped with radio, piano and other amusements, is at the disposition of the crew as well as of the passengers.

Well may you ask:

"What is the world coming to?"

MRS. AIMEE SEMPLE M'PHERSON HUTTON'S "four square gospel movement," traveling by rail in England, knelt on the railroad tracks, sharp stone ballast, raised their eyes and both hands and thanked God that they had escaped when a locomotive rammed their train at Kilburn Bridge.

The cynic will ask why the Lord did not keep the locomotive from ramming the religious train, instead of saving the passengers from death, one miracle being as simple as the other.

Providence knows that men must have narrow escapes occasionally to remind them that they are always in the hollow of the hand of omnipotence, and should never cease being grateful. One year of plague, famine or depression has great powers of religious revival.

THE SUPREME COURT decides that government has the power to tax a thing out of existence. This decision came with approval of a 15-cents-a-pound tax on oleomargarine. The purpose of that tax is to make it impossible to manufacture oleomargarine profitably, and thus compel people to eat butter, whether they can afford it or not.

Doubtless that is wise, in fact it MUST be wise, since the Supreme Court says so.

But some day, when we have, as we shall have, one thousand million people in the United States, and lack room for so many cows, it may be desirable to have a good substitute for butter, and we may regret today's hostile taxation.

YOU WOULD see few red or purple dresses, if destructive taxation had compelled "natural dyers" to use only little cochineal, a creature that lives under the leaves of certain plants, or the colored extract that the people of Tyre got from a shellfish. It was wise to permit aniline dyes, although they are not as beautiful as the natural dyes.

It might be wise, if only in laboratories, to encourage the making of substitute butter.

A perfect substitute is not impossible. The marrow from a beef's shin bone is better than any butter ever made, tastes better, is more nourishing, and if that be agricultural treason, make the most of it.

IF YOUR little boy or girl is thin, anemic, let the butcher send you marrow bones, boil them, serve them with gauze wrapped around them, spread the narrow thin on freshly made white bread toast, and watch results. Red blood corpuscles are supposed to be manufactured in the marrow of the bones.

FOOTBALL ENTHUSIASTS are bringing back the old "rugby" game. Modern players will know what the old game was like when the British rugby team, arriving from Cambridge today, plays Harvard on Saturday next.

Old "rugby" game, with fifteen men on a side, open playing, modified by the rule against "the forward pass," with its "maul in goal," and "three-quarter charge" from the back, which often made the man with the ball travel faster than he expected, is a grand game, but not well suited to those that dislike being hurt.

The well-trained scientific eleven of today, with its intricate signals and fighting for inches, would probably find it easy to deal with any fifteen of the old-style rugby players, even the famous Scotch national team of fifty years ago.

Those wanting information will get it when Harvard plays Cambridge on Saturday, as arranged by the Literary Digest.

NRA HAS succeeded in making southeastern railroads and bus lines agree not to compete with each other destructively in passenger rates, which "forecasts a nation-wide effort to stop rate warfare between railroads and highway travel." The people will pay a little more, but they are used to having the "check" handed to them.

However, should NRA or any agency bring about a condition making it unnecessary for railroads to get rid of their preposterously heavy, obsolete equipment, replacing it with fast,

U. S. Should Pay Depositors in Closed Banks in Full—Pass McLeod Bill at Once

Depositors in banks of the Federal Reserve System were virtually assured by the government, in the last days of the Hoover administration, that their money would be safe.

They were urged to leave their deposits untouched. They were lectured on the sins of hoarding, and the dangers of starting bank "runs."

Well, as you know, a good many banks of the Federal Reserve System closed their doors and have not opened them since.

And as you also know, the depositors in these closed banks can't get their money.

You would think that as a matter of common justice the government ought to do something for such depositors.

It was the government's tacit promise and open urging that was responsible for their plight.

Representative Clarence J. McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, looks at it that way.

He has therefore introduced a bill in Congress requiring the government to pay off these depositors IMMEDIATELY AND IN FULL.

He argues that the government is not only morally bound to do so, but that this payment would be a tremendous stimulus to recovery.

There are some ten millions of depositors who would be affected.

These men and women are among the best of our citizens.

They have worked and saved.

They can be trusted to spend wisely, if their money is returned to them.

Mr. McLeod also argues that the government would not lose on the transaction, because it could sell off the assets of the closed banks during the next ten years at their real value instead of their present shrunken value.

Thus the advance to depositors would be recovered eventually.

We are glad to see that many of the ablest members of Congress have come to the support of the McLeod measure.

We hope that enough members can be mustered to pass it—not merely because it would be an act of simple fairness to depositors themselves, but because it would help business throughout the entire country.

The McLeod bill to pay in full all depositors in closed banks would release $25,000,000 in Pennsylvania, Congressman Clyde Kelly points out. (See Page 6.)

Passage of the McLeod bill would be a tremendous step toward recovery, according to Senator Borah. (See Page 6.)

Pickets Hurl Selves In Path of Truck At W. Va. Factory

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 4.—(AP.)—Tear gas today routed women pickets who threw themselves in the mud trying to prevent a truck from entering a driveway of the Charles Greenburg Shirt Factory where a strike is on.

One picket, Alma Terrots, 24, was knocked down as the truck was leaving and was treated at a hospital for bruises.

More than 100 women gathered around the plant after hearing an effort would be made to take out a shipment of shirts. In the last two weeks, five trucks have been prevented by picket lines from entering the premises, police said.

Many of the women gathered in the path of the truck as it approached, and threw themselves in the mud left by last night's rains as police attempted to make way for the vehicle. Police resorted to tear gas which forced most of the crowd away, but others who held their ground were ejected by the officers.

The driver of the truck, Van Farley, of 232 Ventner street, Pittsburgh, and Irvin Amber, 953 Greenfield avenue, Pittsburgh, were held by the police for investigation.

RECOVER WATCH GIRL GULPED

The fact that 4½-year-old Patricia Murphy swallowed her toy wrist watch presented no problem to doctors at St. Francis Hospital today.

Patricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Murphy, of 6944 Bennett street, swallowed the toy two weeks ago, and a week later complained:

"Mamma, my tummy hurts."

X-Ray photographs revealed the watch in the stomach. Patricia was taken to the hospital and an aesophaguscope inserted into the stomach. Then the attending physicians brought the toy forth. It was an inch long and a half-inch wide.

The operation was performed by Drs. T. B. McCollough and W. A. Nealon. Patricia was reported little the worse for her experience.

Alice Longworth Boomed for Senate

Neighbor's Daughter Says Dogs 'Nipped' Her Thrice

BRYN MAWR, April 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Logan Vanderbilt, divorced wife of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., was arrested at her home today on a charge of maintaining a public nuisance in the form of two dogs.

In spite of her protests that she had not yet had breakfast, Thomas Shaughnessy, a constable, served the warrant and took her to the office of Justice of the Peace William Buckland.

The warrant had been issued on complaint of Miss Louise Norton Wright, neighbor of Mrs. Vanderbilt, who claimed one of Mrs. Vanderbilt's two Scottish terriers bit her on the ankle last Saturday.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, awaiting her preliminary hearing, declared:

"I don't think the dogs are vicious, and I think all this publicity is silly.

"I never saw the dogs biting anybody and I never heard of them biting anybody. I have had Scotties for 20 years."

Edwin Wright, father of the complainant, said his daughter had been bitten by the dogs three times.

HUGE SAVING IN UTILITY RATES SEEN

P. S. C. Action Backed As Congress Orders Federal Inquiry

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(AP.)—Estimates based on 1932 reports from Pennsylvania's 4,200 public utilities companies indicate that the sweeping rate revisions ordered by the Public Service Commission may average a saving of approximately $2 a year for each person in the state.

The commission decreed yesterday that 6 per cent is a "fair and reasonable" return on the value of property used in serving the public.

Reports on book value and income for 1932, under the present 7 per cent return, show that the 1 per cent reduction may result in an annual saving to consumers of between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000.

Using 1933 reports as a basis, the commission plans to take up its analyses of rate structures with company officials at informal conferences. The announcement added:

"If these conferences fail to produce results, such further

INSULL HOPES, EATS PEANUTS

ISTANBUL, April 4.—(AP.)—Reduced to munching peanuts in a Turkish house of detention—unable even to obtain his personal baggage from the vessel upon which he was seized—Samuel Insull awaited today efforts by newly-acquired British lawyers to delay his extradition to the United States.

Insull was in good health and appeared less depressed after talking with the lawyers trying to find some loophole in the government's ruling that he must be handed over to the United States.

His immediate interest was centered on obtaining a small valise from the Greek freighter, Maiotis, lying in Istanbul Harbor. The valise was reported to contain important documents.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—The United States hopes to start Samuel Insull back to this country on an American vessel sailing from Istanbul next Tuesday.

By bringing Insull back on an American vessel officials expect to escape diplomatic difficulties. They explained they were not yet prepared to make an official statement of the mechanics involved in taking physical custody of Insull from Turkish police.

An Umbrella of Lightning Death

I. F. BAILEY WITH THE UMBRELLA UNDER WHICH TWO LADS DIED WHEN LIGHTNING STRUCK

Mr. Bailey, principal of the David B. Oliver High School, with the umbrella under which two of his students, Joseph La Rock and Paul Uffelman, 16 and 18, were killed today on their way to school. A bolt of lightning struck the umbrella. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Press C. Dowler, architect, and William McKay Reed, former president of the old Third National Bank, and J. C. Tress, oil man, were named as members of the authority.

Commissioner W. D. Mansfield, who presented Herron's name, said he had no alternative name to suggest. There was no second to Mansfield's nomination of Herron.

Mrs. Elbert Gary Critically Ill

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elbert H. Gary, widow of the steel magnate, was reported critically ill today.

STUDENTS DIE, BOOKS IN HAND

Lafayette Rucker, 16, Negro, of 5 Doyle Court, an eye witness to the tragedy at the Oliver High School, said he was walking up the hill toward the school when the lightning struck. He added:

"I saw the bolt of lightning but I did not see it strike the boys.

"I walked on up the hill and then I saw both boys lying in the path. I recognized only the La Rock boy. Both had school books, one carrying them in his hand, and the other had his books under his arm.

"One boy lay on his face and the other on his back.

"The La Rock boy was on his back, his umbrella near his hands. Several ribs of the umbrella were broken and his cap was in the umbrella. A hole was burned through the top. I ran to the school and told the teacher."

Rucker is enrolled in 9-B grade.

Eugene Kozoris, another student, was standing near a window in the building when the lightning struck the boys. He said he heard the thunder, but did not see the bolt strike the students. He added:

"I ran to the window and saw the two boys lying in the path. Then I called the teacher."

BLIND MASTER SAVED BY DOG

The dog, Millie, aged 5, is owned by Eugene Miller, of 6340 Marchand street, one of the workmen who had just reached his bench on the third floor when the flames broke out.

Hearing someone shout an alarm, Miller called his dog, calmly attached his leash and Millie led him down the three flights to safety.

The other workers in the basement were checking in as the fire started. They were escorted out by watchmen.

H. L. Glickson, superintendent of the association, said the loss had not been estimated. The fire started in a materials storeroom.

CITY LASHED BY SPRING STORM

Bolt Fells Students Crossing Field Near School

Two students on their way to the Oliver High School, Brighton road and Island avenue, were killed this morning when a bolt of lightning struck an umbrella under which they were walking through a field near the school.

First aid efforts at the scene and every means known to medical science at the Allegheny General Hospital failed to resuscitate the two.

The dead:

STRIKES UMBRELLA

Carrying their schoolbooks, the two lads were ascending a path leading from lower Marshall avenue through a field to the school when the electrical storm which raged last night suddenly resumed.

Two bolts shot from the sky. The second, according to witnesses, struck the umbrella which one of the two was carrying.

Lafayette Rucker, 16, Negro, of Doyle Court another student who was nearby, heard the crash. A moment later he saw the two youths lying side by side in the field. He rushed to the High School and notified Principal J. F. Bailey.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

Bailey and Robert D. Bell physical instructor, rushed to the place where the lads lay, one on his face, the other on his back. They used artificial respiration in vain.

Dr. Omar T. Cruikshank, of 1107 Island avenue, hurried to the scene and after giving first aid, had the boys removed to the hospital. Physicians and nurses bent over the unconscious youths. One of them gave signs of life,

Rival Aids Husband With Wife's Notes

Seventy-five burning love letters his wife had written to a man in New York were the evidence with which Alfred J. Bennett, a Pittsburgh baking company executive, appeared before Judge John P. Egan today seeking a divorce from Mrs. Ethel H. Bennett, now of Jersey City.

Bennett, who lives at 5646 Munhall road, Squirrel Hill, named James Foy, formerly of Amsterdam avenue, New York, as the man responsible for breaking up his home.

The bakery executive charged that Foy, in September of 1932, sent him a box containing not only his wife's letters, but a memoranda of alleged rendezvous with her.

To a query of Judge Egan, Bennett replied:

"I read two or three of them; that was enough."

Bennett further testified:

"I took the letters home to my wife and she admitted she had written them. I went back to my office. That night, when I returned home, my wife and daughter were gone."

Bennett said about a month later he received a letter from Mrs. Bennett asking forgiveness. He said she now is living in Jersey City.

On the day that his wife left him, Bennett said, she ran up a $20 long-distance toll bill, calling New York and Jersey City.

COAL OPERATORS WARNED AGAINST PACT VIOLATIONS

JOHNSON BACKS PAY INCREASE, 7-HOUR DAY

Drastic Punishment Hinted for Dodgers Of Agreement

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Administrator Johnson says coal mine owners who attempt to operate in disregard of the recent amendment to the bituminous coal code establishing a seven-hour day and higher wages would do so "at their peril."

Johnson's statement yesterday was in reply to questions of newspapermen. He did not detail what would happen, but his statement left the clear implication that the punitive sections of the Recovery Act would be applied.

The Administrator expressed the belief that all operators could afford to pay the increased wage scale for the week remaining before public hearings will be held here on the amendment.

Operators will be given an opportunity to claim exemptions from the terms of the amendment, but such exemptions will be granted only if the claimants prove the economic impossibility of paying the higher wage. Johnson said:

"I don't believe any operator will shut down for purely economic reasons."

Johnson indicated further that he intends the amendment to remain in force even after the April 9 hearing, unless the operators prove it makes their position economically untenable.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., April 4.—(AP.)—Breaking the solid front which operators of the Fairmont fields have held against the Appalachian wage pact, five producers last night signed the seven-hour $5-a-day agreement with the United Mine Workers of America. The action affects more than 1,000 men.

Approximately 10,000 miners remained away from the pits yesterday as a protest to the stand taken by the protesting operators. The latter, who have enjoyed a 24-cent wage scale advantage over the Western Pennsylvania fields in the past, withdrew from the Washington negotiations demanding the differential be retained.

The smokeless coal group of operators in Southern West Virginia, who also withdrew from the Washington conferences where the seven-hour $5 day was adopted for the Appalachian field, signed a contract with the U. M. W. yesterday granting a seven-hour day, a five-day week and a $4.60 basic daily wage.

PROBESHOOTING AT MINE RALLY

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 4.—(AP.)—District Attorney Wade K. Newell said Joe Bosak, the miner who was injured in Monday's mass meeting, claims he fired three shots into the ground after he had been knocked down by stones.

The District Attorney took Bosak's statement late yesterday in Uniontown Hospital, where his condition is reported critical.

Newell said the miner told him that he and two friends went to the meeting to hear Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor, make a speech.

None of the trio was a member of the United Mine Workers of America, and Bosak said they refused to sign cards pledging themselves to join. They were attacked, the Prosecutor said he was told, and he quoted Bosak as saying he fired into the ground after he was knocked down by stones.

FIVE RESCUED IN MINE FIRE

SWITZ CITY, Ind., April 4.—(AP.)—Fire-blackened ruins marked the site of the Sinclair mine today, but in the homes of five miners who were trapped underground for five hours yesterday was joyous reunion.

They escaped death from gas as by walling themselves into space about 24 by 12 feet more than a hundred yards from the blazing wooden shaft, and awaiting rescue stands.

Breathing their limited air supply, all developed headaches but when aid arrived they were able to make their way to a temporary cage and be hauled to the surface to rejoin their families. A crowd of 1,500 persons cheered their appearance.

Fire departments from three cities had battled the flames that broke out at the mine shortly after noon.

Beside Weir, tomorrow's witnesses will include Jack Larkin, general chairman of the Weirton employes' representatives; A. R. Young, of New York, vice president of the United States Steel Corporation; Charles R. Hook, of Middletown, O., president of the American Rolling Mill Company; T. M. Girdler, of Cleveland, president of the Republic Steel Corporation, and Frank Purnell, president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.

WARSHIP TIEUP FEARED BY NAVY

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—The Navy Department was placed on record today as opposed to the modernization of the battleships California and Tennessee at a cost of $20,000,000 because of their importance as fighting units of the fleet "at this time."

Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, told the House naval committee at hearings on the Darden bill for modernization of the two vessels the Navy did not desire to have the ships tied up for two or three years in naval yards.

It was more important, the admiral said, to keep them as fighting units in the fleet.

HOUSE TO SPEED MARKET BILL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The stock market control bill will be reported out of the House Interstate Committee "as quickly as possible," Chairman Rayburn (Dem.), of Texas, said today, after the second session of the committee on the administration's measure.

A sub-committee will be named tomorrow to place the bill in form for a final committee vote, Rayburn said.

"We are going to get the bill out as quickly as we can. No desire or effort has been evident in the committee to hold this bill up or to unduly delay it."

The committee today discussed provisions for segregation of brokers and dealers without taking any action, Rayburn said.

Predictions were freely made by members in both bodies that the measure will be radically changed to avoid the possibility of injury to legitimate business.

Copeland Defies Farley, Runs Again

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Aroused by reports that James A. Farley, as Democratic chairman, would like to see someone else in his seat in Congress, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, senior Senator from New York, today challenged Farley's ability to bring about his removal and declared his candidacy for re-election. He said:

"Mr. Farley is a fine fair weather admiral, but when he runs into trouble it's different. He's not so good on the stormy seas."

Father Kills Child's Accused Attacker

BRADENTON, Fla., April 4.—(AP.)—James Franklin, middle-aged Negro, accused of attacking a small white girl, was fatally shot by the father of the alleged victim this morning on a downtown corner.

Officers at the time were returning him to jail from a doctor's office, where he had undergone a mental and physical examination.

HAVANA, April 4.—(AP.)—Col. Roberto Mendez Penate, Secretary of Justice in the Mendieta Cabinet, died today of a bullet wound which authorities said was self-inflicted.

BRAIN PROBERS TO BE 'LOYAL'

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Speaker Rainey told reporters today the investigation of statements by Dr. William A. Wirt, Indiana educator, would be "very short" and would be conducted by a committee with a majority of "loyal" Democrats.

He deferred, however, naming the committee until tomorrow or later, explaining he had not decided what Republicans to select.

Dr. Wirt has said members of the Roosevelt "brain trust" told him they were attempting to bring about a revolution to overthrow the government. Rainey asserted:

"If all Wirt knows is what he is giving out now, the investigation ought to close almost immediately, because we certainly are not going to open up the entire recovery program to criticism at this time.

"He can't name a man who is fomenting revolution. If all he has is general charges, the investigation will stop at once."

STALIN ELECTED BY U. S. REDS

CLEVELAND, April 4.—(AP.)—Communists of America have a new praesidium of 27 members and 10 honorary members, including Joseph Stalin of Soviet Russia, and a seven-point program for strengthening their position in this country.

Five hundred voting delegates from 43 states, in a closed session last night, elected the praesidium of 27 members from among those attending the national convention.

The 10 honorary members of the praesidium include, besides Stalin, the imprisoned German leader, Ernst Thaelman; the Bulgarian, George Dimitroff, who became a Soviet citizen, and leaders in China, Japan, Cuba, Mexico, Ireland, Canada and the Philippines.

Reports of the meeting issued by delegates stated that Earl Browder, party secretary, commended Gen. Hugh S. Johnson for spotting loopholes in the NRA "as clearly as any Communist could have done it."

action will be taken by the commission as it may determine."

Federal Utility Rate Probe Voted in House

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—The Norris-Rankin resolution authorizing an investigation of public utility rates by the Federal Power Commission was adopted today by the House, completing congressional action.

The resolution was brought up by Representative Rankin (Dem.), of Mississippi, under procedure requiring a two-thirds majority for passage. It does not have to go the White House. Rankin said:

"Adoption of this resolution will enable the power commission to ascertain electrical rates charged by both private and municipal corporations.

"This is one of the most important measures to come before Congress. It has been found that rates vary as much as 10 cents a kilowat hour, but it is impossible to find out what the power companies are charging."

Seabury Investigation Urged in Utility Mess

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—W. Kingsland Macy, Republican state chieftain, has not abandoned hope for a "Seabury investigation" into charge of utilities domination of the New York State Legislature."

This became known today as legislators in Albany considered the wisdom of instituting a full legislative inquiry into New York utilities. The State Senate Judiciary Committee meanwhile independently launched an investigation into disclosures made at Washington on relations between State Senator Warren T. Thayer and the Associated Gas and Electric Company.

Chairman Macy, who precipitated an intra-party quarrel three months ago in an effort to oust Assembly leaders for alleged utilities leanings, is known to feel that a vigorously prosecuted inquiry under joint legislative auspices is the only means of clearing the atmosphere.

Lehman Gives Warning In Utility Investigation

ALBANY, N. Y., April 4.—(AP.)—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman said today that "the people of New York State and I are going to watch pretty carefully the selection of a counsel for the Legislature's investigation of public utility companies."

With committees in both houses meeting to consider a far-reaching probe, the Governor said there was "no question" that utilities in the Empire State would soon be subjected to a thorough investigation. He said:

"Don't worry about that. Either one of the resolutions proposed by the two parties or some other one will be adopted by both houses, and the success of the investigation is going to depend very much on who is chosen as counsel."

He was asked:

"What type of man would you suggest, Governor?"

The Governor said:

Raskob Working Quietly for NRA

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—John J. Raskob, a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee who opposed the presidential nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt, was reported today to have been quietly working for the NRA for a month.

Raskob was said to have been serving as a member of the NRA's industrial advisory board, receiving $25 a day while in Washington.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 4.

The original idea that Gen. Johnson might quit the NRA and lead the new building program came from a higher-up—as a matter of fact, two higher-ups.

One could be accused of having an ax to grind. He is against Johnson and would like to see the General get out and go as far as possible. The other, however, feels kindly toward Johnson and could not have been malicious.

ROOTS

The matter has been discussed by a few of the inner councillors. A final decision awaits President Roosevelt's return.

The main reason Johnson could not have left the NRA before is that there was no one in the organization who could have taken his place. That situation is being rapidly eliminated by the way his first assistant, W. Averell Harriman, has taken charge of things within the past two weeks.

The housing job is worthy of his hire, although it will generally appear to be a step-down.

The administration is counting on building up a housing hullaballoo to absorb the slack in industrial employment which is bound to come in 30 days.

LEADERSHIP

No one outside paid much attention to the ascension of William B. Bankhead as chairman of the House Rules Committee.

Out in the country he is chiefly known as the father of Tallulah.

Here, the insiders realize that his installation in the new job, as a result of the death of Edward W. Pou, may mean the solution of Mr. Roosevelt's Congressional leadership problem, at least in part.

Bankhead is a strong man. He is a left-over of the Garner dynasty. In fact he is the man supposed to have been indorsed privately by the Roosevelt crowd for the House leadership in the first place. He was defeated then by a combination of the Rainey and Byrns forces.

IMPORTANCE

The Rules Committee job has not amounted to much for the last two years because of the illness of Pou. But it is a job almost as important as the Speakership and the floor leadership. A strong man in that job can exercise a veto power over all legislation, because no big bill can be brought before the House until the Rules Committee has provided for its consideration.

In times past, chairmen of the Rules Committee have been known to walk around the capital with bills in their pocket, refusing to do anything, and thus directing the course of legislation.

Bankhead will make his conservatism and his friendship for Roosevelt felt in that job.

PROPAGANDA

The Committee for the Nation now is laughing best, although it may not laugh last.

It is a crowd of inflation enthusiasts, organized for the purpose of propagandizing for monetary inflation. Out of its Wirt flurry, it has received about a million dollars' worth of free advertising.

Up to the time of the Wirt matter, it had been in a hiatus. As a matter of fact, since the dollar was almost wholly stabilized by the administration, it has not been able to obtain any limelight for its views. It has been propagandizing just as much as before, and probably more, but no one was interested. People were thinking of other things.

Lately it sent out Dr. Wirt's views in full under the title "America Must Lose." The free handout contained 10,000 words, but not more than 1,000 of them concerned the charges that the Brain Trust is fomenting revolution. The rest were arguments for the monetary views of the Committee for the Nation.

HELP

It is an old publicity trick. If no one pays any attention to your arguments, start a fight with people in the limelight and get the reflected attention given them. Lincoln did that by getting the then famous Senator Douglas into a series of debates.

This time, it happened that subterranean antagonism to the Brain Trusters was ready for a public airing.

The charges were known to be silly, but they served the purposes of those who did not like the way the administration was going. They have probably been very effective in restraining the Mugwump element.

The day of reckoning will come when the charges must be proved.

NOTES

The same publicity theory did not work as well when that Labor Department councillor resigned and attacked Miss Perkins, although there is likewise considerable underlying dissatisfaction with the Labor Secretary among Democrats in Congress. It is based largely on the fact that Miss Perkins has not treated them all with the consideration they are accustomed to getting from cabinet members . . . Money for the naval building program will not be as long coming as you have been led to believe. If you look into the forthcoming public works appropriation bill, you may find it there. At least near-insiders at the Navy Department have been making preparations along that line . . . The mystery of who has been blocking the Thorp confirmation as head of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce gets deeper and deeper. Both Mr. Roosevelt and Commerce Secretary Roper wrote unpublished letters to Chairman Stephens, of the Senate Committee, and still the nomination was NOT reported out. It will be.

SENATE VOTES NEW CAPITAL STOCK TAX

Levy Expected to Bring $96,000,000; Gasoline Assessment Approved

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—A capital stock tax of 1-10th of 1 per cent, to raise $96,000,000 a year, was added to the House revenue bill by the Senate this afternoon.

The Senators then rapidly eliminated the "nuisance taxes" on soft drinks, to lose $6,100,000 annually; on furs worth $20 or less, $4,000,000 to $5,000,000, and clocks, $100,000.

The gasoline tax of 1 cent a gallon also was approved.

The Senate also sanctioned the excess profits tax of 5 per cent of corporation reveneu over 12½ per cent of return.

EARNED INCOME CUT

The limit on earned income, on which a 10 per cent slash in income taxes is granted in the administration's new tax bill, was increased from $8,000 to $20,000 despite protests of the loss of revenue.

Senator Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, estimated it would cost the government $7,000,000 in revenue.

The Senate also imposed income taxes upon charitable and non-profit corporations if their principal activities consist of "participation in partisan politics or the carrying on of propaganda."

Republican efforts to exclude life insurance annuities from taxable income was defeated, 24 to 55.

LOSS LIMIT PLACED

A new scale of allowances on capital gains and losses was adopted. The scale ran from 100 per cent on property, held less than one year, down to 30 per cent on capital assets held over 10 years.

In cases of capital losses, the Senate voted a $2,000 limit for all persons but allowed further losses only to the extent of capital gains. This was to prevent the avoidance of taxes by claims of huge capital losses, such as the $21,000,000 capital loss taken by J. P. Morgan and Company in 1931.

The statute of limitations or prosecutions for false returns and failure to make returns was eliminated. This would enable the government to prosecute tax-dodgers whenever it pleased. A five-year limit was placed on prosecutions for failure to include a sum of income in a return.

NEW LOAN PLAN FOR INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—A compromise plan for loans to industries was virtually agreed to today by Gov. Black, of the Federal Reserve Board, and Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, subject to the approval of President Roosevelt.

Under the compromise, the government would turn over $150,000,000 to the Reserve Banks and the Reserve System would add $150,000,000 from its own funds to finance the operations.

Loans would be made directly by Reserve banks instead of through a system of 12 credit banks which the Reserve Board originally proposed setting up.

The new proposal developed today at an executive session of the Banking Committee at which Black appeared.

Chairman Fletcher said the committee had postponed action on the bills until President Roosevelt returns because there was a difference of opinion between Glass and Black over what the Chief Executive wants.

MISS CARR HITS ATTERBURY

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(AP.)—Miss Charlotte E. Carr, Secretary of Labor and Industry, said today that Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, overlooked a major consideration in making his statement that other countries were recovering from the depression faster than the United States. She said:

"He failed to take into consideration the fact that wages in those countries had not sunk to the level they had in the United States."

Miss Carr said the need for minimum wage laws in Pennsylvania is shown clearly in the progress other countries have made in getting out of the depression.

Picket Line Forms At Radiator Plant

Pickets today had been thrown around the plant of the Columbia Radiator Company, 3200 Walnut street, Versailles Township, where 500 employes went on strike Monday. Pickets were to work in six-hour shifts.

At a meeting in McKeesport last night it was voted to continue the strike, place pickets, request foremen not to return to their work in the plant, seek a conference with company officials, hold out for full recognition of their union, readjustment of piecework rates and demand reinstatement of George T. McBride, laborer, dismissed last October for aiding in forming a union local.

Hamilton Pledges Tax Reform Help

Pledging himself to work for tax reform to relieve the burden on real estate, C. C. Hamilton, insurance man, has announced his candidacy for Congress on the Democratic ticket from the Thirty-third District.

Hamilton advocates a sales or wholesale tax and a modification of the income tax; state and federal control of the public schools, and consolidation of city, borough and townships in Allegheny County into one government.

4,600 Auto Strikers Refuse to Arbitrate

RACINE, Wis., April 4.—(AP.)—Representatives of 4,600 striking workmen of Nash Motors Company and Seaman Body Corporation yesterday laid their troubles before the automotive labor tribunal and were reported to have held firmly to their demands for a 20 per cent pay increase, modification of seniority rules and improvement of working conditions.

FORTUNATELY NO law or power on earth can stop progress permanently. They used to burn men alive in the effort to stop it, even burned them after torturing them otherwise, for announcing new scientific truths that everybody accepts today. No taxation no well-devised expedient, will prevent improvement.

IN DETROIT, higher prices are announced for automobiles. If, like 75 per cent of your fellow citizens, you need a new car, it would be wise to get one before the prices go up again. While prices for automobiles and other things creep up, the public will realize that every bill must be paid by SOMEBODY. Fortunately, thus far, incomes have increased for millions, including those that had no incomes at all. As yet, the balance is on the profit side.

FIFTY THOUSAND persons rolled Easter eggs or looked on in the White House grounds last Monday. It was the biggest of any Easter crowd, the next biggest, 47,500, in the Coolidge administration.

Mrs. Roosevelt, her husband being absent, walked three times though the crowd, in the kindness of her heart, waving her hands to the children, taking her little grandchildren with her.

Of all sports, rolling Easter eggs is undoubtedly the most innocent. How marvelous if the nations should adopt it as a substitute for war.

Huey, Cursed, Insists Oath Go Into Record

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, was cursed today at a Senate hearing, and said:

"Let it go into the record."

Before a crowd that jammed the hearing on the confirmation of D. D. Moore as internal revenue collector in Louisiana—a Roosevelt nominee opposed by Long—the Senator so aroused Col. John P. Sullivan, of New Orleans, that the latter muttered:

"You know you can't prove that, you rotten——."

The official reporter for the committee said he heard Sullivan mumble, but did not hear the profanity and that it would not be a part of the official record of the hearing.

Earlier, Col. E. R. Bradley—Kentucky breeder of race horses—had told the committee he was "a gambler on anything." This led up to the exchange in which the profanity occurred.

Long declared he would show that Bradley and Sullivan—who he says dominate Moore—

"Own their own betting 'kitty,' in which they bet and have their system of adding, multiplying and subtracting the bets at the expense of the suckers of the United States."

'Face on Barroom Floor' Read in Suit by Author

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—The poem, "The Face Upon the Barroom Floor," the recitation of which is generally regarded as a reliable symptom of intoxication, was eloquently rendered in court yesterday.

Magistrate Thomas A. Aurelio began it and was getting along nicely, but without putting much verve into it, when the author of the poem, John Henry Titus, 88, interrupted.

Titus turned to the spectators and finished the recitation, with many gestures and considerable feeling. When he concluded he pointed dramatically at Frank Harding, a publisher, and shouted:

"You usurped my title!"

Titus charged that Harding had sold poetry anthologies under the title, "The Face Upon the Barroom Floor," wherein the title poem actually was "The Face Upon the Floor," written by the late Hugh Antoine D'Arcy. He considered it damaging to have the latter work bear the label of his own.

Magistrate Aurelio began his recitation to compare the two poems. The case was adjourned for further hearing April 9.

RIDING MASTER'S PAROLE PLEA SPLITS SWANKY COLONY

SOCIETY GIRL HE WRONGED KEEPS MUM

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER
Universal Service.

TAPPAN, N. Y., Aril 4.—Should everything make way for the woman proved to have been wronged so she may rehabilitate herself in public opinion?

Or has the man who wronged her an equally potent right to demand of society his chance for a comeback?

These questions are a basis of a controversy which has split Rockland County into two bitterly partisan factions, each sure of its answer and each determined to be heard by District Attorney George Vincent Dorsey. Dorsey said:

"My office is being swamped with letters, messages, phone calls and visits from every section of the county. Sentiment is about even although feminine opinion appears to lean toward giving the woman all the breaks. Everybody seems to know the answer."

CHARLOTTE SILENT

But if Charlotte Ariel Gibson, debutante heiress and only daughter of one of the community's proudest families, knows the answer, she is keeping it to herself. Faced by the imminent return here of Sidney Herbert Homewood from his 15-month stretch in Walkill Prison, price of his part in their love-making, she today continued the aloof poise which has earned her the title of "enigma woman."

Even rumors that the little English riding master, who kissed and was so convincingly told upon that a jury found him guilty of seduction on promise of marriage, plans to reopen his riding academy almost within sight of her home apparently have caused no ripple in the 23-year-old girl's remarkable detachment.

Homewood, however, is not so reticent. Neither is his family nor the Gibson family. In a letter to District Attorney Dorsey, the once dapper horseman has pleaded that everything be done to dispose the parole board toward returning him to his old bridle path haunts on May 18.

PLEA BY MOTHER

And in an appeal to Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor, who already has reduced by half the fine imposed with a sentence of from 18 months to three years, Mrs. Blanche Homewood, widowed mother of Sidney, says in effect:

"It is only right for my boy to come home at once so he may rehabilitate himself in the community."

To which corporation attorney and gentleman farmer Robert Gibson in a similar affidavit replies:

"It is not right, and he must not come home, because my daughter is striving for her own rehabilitation. All her efforts will be hampered if Sidney Homewood is permitted to return now."

Since the death of Charlotte's girl baby shortly after its birth a year ago, Robert Gibson is almost never out of her sight. When she entertains her friends, limited and carefully hand-picked by himself he is somewhere around. When she stops in at their homes for a cup of tea, he goes along and waits in the next room till the party is over according to reports.

He escorts her to meetings of the fashionable Rockland County Theater League of which Rollo Peters, actor, is president. On advice of league members it is said that Charlotte decided to go on the stage. This project, believed acceptable to the Gibson family, has sent her upon repeated visits to Broadway.

BROWN MUSSED HER HAIR, GIRL SAYS

Tells Court of Trysts, Parties With Mate Of Sally Eilers

LOS ANGELES, April 4.—(AP.)—Stories of night club and yacht parties, kisses, expensive automobiles, apartment trysts, avowals of devotion and a proposal of marriage were told from the witness stand yesterday by Marjorie Whiteis, of the screen, in her $100,000 suit charging Harry Joe Brown, movie director, jilted her and broke her heart.

As Sally Eilers, actress wife of Brown, listened intently, Miss Whiteis, whose screen name is Marjorie Gay, said the director proposed marriage in his apartment on an October night in 1929. She said they later looked at furniture and planned the sort of house they would have.

READ HIM POETRY

Then last spring Brown and Miss Eilers became frequent companions. Brown explained this by saying Miss Eilers could help him in his career, Miss Whiteis testified.

Brown's bride of last September—the former wife of Hoot Gibson, cowboy actor—stiffened at this point in the testimony and gazed piercingly at the witness.

Describing what she said was the marriage proposal scene, Miss Whiteis testified she sat on the floor of Brown's apartment reading poetry while he shaved. He came and sat down beside her, she said, and asked her to rub his head. She quoted him as saying:

"Marjorie, I love you more than anyone—I want you to marry me."

'HAIR GOT MUSSED'

Miss Whiteis identified a picture of herself and Brown in bathing suits on a yacht. She said the picture was taken in the summer of 1931 off Catalina Island.

Asked about kisses which Brown testified were bestowed "not as a habit but once in a while," the actress said "he kissed me frequently." She said:

"He has an open roadster and when we went out in it, my hair got mussed up. So I suggested he get a closed car—and he did. Then he got another one, he said he paid $30,000 for it."

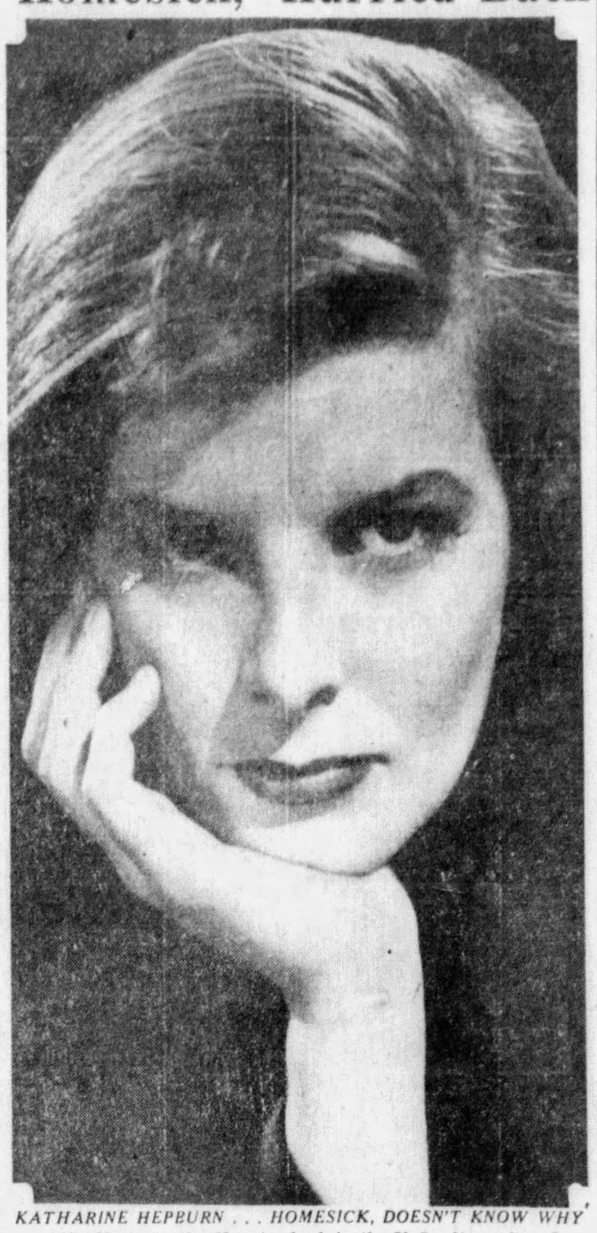
"It must have been quite a car."

A lawyer suggested:

"It was. It had silver fittings and silver brocade upholstery. But I didn't like to drive it. It was hard to drive."

Miss Whiteis said she "used to spend most every evening" at Brown's apartment. When he proposed to her, she said she told him she did not know what to say and he told her to think it over.

'Homesick,' Hurried Back



KATHARINE HEPBURN . . . HOMESICK, DOESN'T KNOW WHY

Miss Hepburn, the film star back in the U. S. after only a five-day visit to France because "I was homesick." For what? "I'm sure I don't know." Ernest Hemingway, the author, was on the boat with her, told reporters that he thought that she is "very nice."

GARBO 'GREAT,' SAYS HEPBURN, HOME AGAIN

Kate 'Very Nice,' Declares Author Hemingway

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—Greta Garbo is "incomparably the greatest" screen artist and Katharine Hepburn is going to try to be a better actress.

These two bits of informatioin were released by Miss Hepburn herself, fresh off the liner Paris, which docked here yesterday.

It was Miss Hepburn and not Miss Garbo who received the prize of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences last month for the best screen performance of 1933, but Miss Hepburn was not talking about the screen but the Broadway stage. She said:

"I intend to come back and offer myself again, hoping I will be better."

REFERS TO PLAY

It was her only reference to her appearance in the play, "The Lake," which led some of the dramatic critics to intimate she had things to learn about the stage.

She was vague as to why she had veiled her trip to Paris two weeks ago in secrecy, saying she had returned after spending only five days there because she was homesick.

Seated beside Ernest Hemingway, the author, Miss Hepburn smilingly confessed that she came home so suddenly because "I was homesick."

The actress left New York on March 17, dashed madly to her cabin on the liner Paris. Today she welcomed questions and pictures.

Of trousers for women she saw none in Paris. Asked if she wore them while there she said:

"Only to bed."

Hemingway, by her side, and bronzed from three months in Africa, said he thought she is "very nice." They had not met before.

TALKS OF FUTURE

The conversation ranged from Miss Hepburn's future plans, to Hemingway's hunt for lions in East Africa. The actress said:

"I have no plans, besides doing 'Joan of Arc' sometime in the future."

In Paris, where "I saw nothing," she became homesick, and reserved the same cabin on the return voyage. She said that once before she went to Europe, returned after a nine-day stay.

Then she reverted to her unceremonious departure. She said:

"I'm not really disagreeable."

Hemingway told how he and his wife, who returned with him, spent three months in East Africa, hunting lions, watching them with great interest. He said:

"The lion is like nothing else you ever saw. He is splendid."

Hemingway thinks East Africa is "just about like Spain," and wants to return. For the present he intends to return to his home near Key West, Fla., and work—"work very hard."

During the first term of Mayor William A. Magee he served as City Treasurer, and prior to that time was a member of the State Legislature. Throughout his political career he has been an independent Republican.

He leaves three sons, Murray Edlis, city detective; Samuel and Jerome Edlis, all of Pittsburgh, and two daughters, Mrs. Charles Reubens and Mrs. William L. Goldstein, both of New York.

A trough extends northeastward from the Texas disturbance over the Ohio Valley and the Virginias. Snow is falling in the Central Rocky Mountains, and rains and thundershowers eastward over the central plains, the Middle and Upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys, the lakes and Middle Atlantic states. Rapid City, S. D., reports eight inches of snow on the ground and Lander, Wyo., nine inches this morning. It is colder in the lake region and Upper Mississippi Valley, and warmer in the Ohio Valley and the Canadian Northwest.

Stage at Franklin is 6.0 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 12.5; Pittsburgh, 13.6; Dam No. 4, 9.9; No. 6, 12.1; No. 10, 13.1, and No. 12, 13.4. The dams are down. The rivers will continue to rise slowly. About 15.0-foot stage indicated at Pittsburgh by Thursday morning, with a further slight rise during Thursday.

RAINFALL HERE SWELLS RIVERS

April showers that became torrents swelled the rivers rapidly today, but there was no immediate prospect of flood conditions, according to the Weather Bureau.

The bureau predicted more rain tonight and tomorrow. The precipitation between 9:45 a. m. and 10:45 a. m. was 45 hundredths of an inch, the heaviest downpour since the rain started last night.

The river stage at the point was 13.6 feet at 8 a. m. and rose two-tenths of a foot in the next three hours. Flood stage is 25 feet.

Showers were general throughout the country. While the Weather Bureau predicted slightly colder weather tonight with a minimum of 40 degrees, there was no cold wave in sight.

ROOSEVELT'S LUCK LAGS

MIAMI, Fla., April 4.—(AP.)—Carefree and feeling "swell" President Roosevelt entered into his extended vacation cruise today with a determination to have better luck at fishing.

Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, returned last night from a flying trip to the yacht Nourmahal. He reported his "dad" was "feeling swell" but he turned in the Presidential father as an unlucky fisherman so far. Elliott said:

"Father was dressed in the usual white hat, a shirt supposed to be white, and the dirtiest pair of trousers you ever saw."

Three barracuda were caught yesterday, he said, but the President didn't get a bite. Robert Clark, of the Secret Service, got the credit for the barracuda.

Mr. Roosevelt was ready to move along today from Elbow Key Light if the fishing didn't improve, but, in true vacation style, he was keeping his itinerary open to developments.

SEEK INJURED MEN IN KILLINGS

BREMERTON, Wash., April 4.—(AP.)—A report that three men two of them with bandaged heads, were seen here Friday not long after the murder of six persons at Erland's Point, today drew the attention of authorities in their search for the slayers.

Mrs. Gladys Schreiber, wife of a Navy Yard worker, told of seeing the three men race past her home in a small green sedan. One of them was large, she said.

Previously Luke S. May, Seattle chief of detectives, had reported that at least one of the slayers must have been seriously hurt in the battle at the Frank Flieder home, and that he probably was a large man.

CROYDON, England, April 4.—"Miss Pickford is a charming person."

So declared Douglas Fairbanks to International News Service today as he stepped from an airplane in which he had flown from Paris.

Then he smiled the famous Fairbanks smile, talked about his film plans and declined further to discuss reports of a reconciliation with Mary Pickford, who has filed suit for divorce from him in Los Angeles, or the possibility that Miss Pickford might come to London.

About his plans for film work and for the huge ranch he is developing near San Diego, Cal., the film star spoke freely. He added:

"I hope to return to the United States in June. I will go immediately to 'Rancho Zorro' to see how work is getting on."

NURSES RETURN TO 'STONE' BOY

International News Service.

WILKES-BARRE, April 4.—Benny Hendrick, the 7-year-old boy whose body is turning into stone as a result of a strange malady, was happy again today, once more surrounded by the same nurses who have ministered to him since he was brought to the Wilkes-Barre General Hospital a month ago.

Despite the censorship established at the hospital, it was learned Benny broke down yesterday afternoon when told that a change in personnel, ordered by hospital authorities in an effort to prevent information concerning his condition from leaking out, was to be permanent.

Rather than risk a setback in his condition, the authorities rescinded their instructions and ordered Benny's former nurses back on duty in his ward.

Benny has always indicated a strong attachment to them.

Dr. H. Alexander Smith, head of the orthopedic ward where Benny is confined, remained firm in his refusal to allow two noted New York specialists, to see the boy.

Dick Reynolds, Now 28, Gets 25 Million 'Gift'

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., April 4.—(AP.)—Richard J. Reynolds, Jr., a young man who took to aviation, shipping and Broadway show business to earn a little change, inherited about $25,000,000 today on his twenty-eighth birthday.

The money was left in trust by his father who ran a small tobacco factory into a huge industry and thereby built a cigaret fortune estimated at $100,000,000. So far as known all Reynolds had to do to assume control of the fortune was to sign a few papers for the Safety Deposit Company of Baltimore, which handled distribution.

Young Reynolds was saying nothing today. He was in seclusion with his wife and young son, Richard III, and would not tell how he planned to spend this red-letter day.

Richard J. Reynolds, Jr., has been much in the news. After prep school and college, he made a solo motorcycle tour of the country. He once owned Roosevelt field, New York airport.

He bought a tramp steamer and engaged in shipping tobacco, but later made the vessel into a yacht.

In England he was jailed on a charge that his motor car killed a bicyclist in a fog. Expressing ignorance of the accident, he settled a sum of money on the man's widow.

Girl, 10, Awaiting Stork, Stirs Sociologists

International News Service.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 4.—"Education, sex education is what is needed to prevent such things. Under the present social setup it can not be done. This should be rectified."

Henry M. Grant, eminent sociologist and director of the Sexual Education Society, made that statement today as he and other sociologists and physicians discussed the strange case of Francisca Aniles Perez, 10, an expectant mother.

Grant declared the question of whether the young girl was to give birth to a child was not important. He said:

"What is important is whether or not this child is going to be a normal child, and what means society has taken to care for it.

"I know nothing of the girl in this particular case other than she is of Mexican blood. It is not unusual for girls of this type to develop early."

Reiterating that he knew nothing of the background of the Perez girl or the father of the expected child, Grant declared sub-normal parents should not be allowed to bring children into the world.

Francisca, dark-eyed and unmarried, is in the Salvation Army Rescue Home here awaiting the birth of her baby, expected in about a month.

Dr. Olga Bridgman, noted California sociologist, declared that the case "is not unprecedented."

RECTOR ASSAILS COOK LEGEND

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—The fiction that only man can order and cook a meal to suit the male palate is a "whispering campaign" that women have allowed to continue too long, said George Rector, famous restaurateur, yesterday. He said:

"You men have been getting away with something. It isn't true, or why would there be so many contented husbands?

"I suspect women have been either too kind or too timid; otherwise they would have forced the issue into the open long before this."

Auto That'll Hop Over Pedestrian New Invention

SEATTLE, April 4.—(AP)—Automobiles that will hop into parking places, skip lightly up hill and maybe jump over pedestrians and tires that whistle when they go flat—these are some of the dreams of American inventors here today for their national congress.

The hop, skip and jump automobile is supposed to become possible through a rotary wing invented by Eric von Haven of Seattle.

It was described as a powerful lifting device which would facilitate hill climbing and even make automobile flying a possibility. It works something like a helicopter.

ST. PAUL, April 4.—Corrections are o. k. sigh the editors of the St. Paul Pioneer Press—but this one was asked for 24 years after the item was published.

And yesterday Miss Frances Spettel and Miss Gertrude Spettel, daughters of the man whose name was mis-spelled, dropped in at the office of the newspaper and asked that the error be corrected.

ANCIENT GOWN PARTY FEATURE

DENVER, April 4.—(AP)—A feature of the golden wedding celebration here Monday of Dr. and Mrs. Philip W. Crannell, was her mother's 75-year-old wedding gown.

Mrs. T. P. Grout, 94, of Minneapolis, couldn't attend, so she sent the gown to Mrs. Crannell and it was worn by Eleanor Crannell Means, 20, a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Crannell.

Dr. and Mrs. Crannell both are 72. They were married in Luverne, Minn. He is president emeritus of the Kansas City Baptist Theological Seminary.

HOPE TO AVOID TEMPORARY MAIL AWARD

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—The Postoffice Department has intimated it hoped Congress would adopt permanent air mail legislation in time to make unnecessary the expedient of letting temporary contracts to private companies.

With advertisements for temporary contract bids now out, it was indicated the department looked for Congress to pass the permanent bills before April 20, the date fixed for starting the temporary service.

Chairman Mead, of the House Postoffice Committee, said last night "the House bill could be passed by April 15 and become a law and operative by the twentieth."

Senator Black, a member of the Senate Postoffice Committee, indicated he believed the permanent legislation could be put through by that date, adding he understood the bill was to be taken up by the Senate imcediately after it finished consideration of the $330,000,000 revenue measure.

The mail now is being flown by the Army over drastically reduced routes.

Asked by reporters concerning charges that favoritism had occurred in setting up the temporary service, Postmaster General Farley said:

"They criticized us when the Army flew the mail and now they are criticizing us when we are trying to give it back to the commercial carriers."

NEEL TO HEAD DISPENSARY

Gregg L. Neel has been elected president of the Pittsburgh Free Dispensary to succeed the late Thomas Stephen Brown. Election of Neel, who was formerly first vice president, was announced at the organiation's board rooms, 43 Fernando street.

Work of the dispensary has increased steadily during the past 60 years, with more than 60,000 out-patient calls recorded during the past year, according to the annual report read at the meeting.

The dispensary now is situated in a wing of Allegheny General Hospital and is operated in conjunction with the hospital's out-patient department.

Other officers elected include George K. Stevenson, Jr., first vice president; Frederick Marshall, second vice president; H. Lee Mason, Jr., treasurer, and George F. Smith, secretary.

4 HEAD COUNCIL IN 4 MONTHS

Since last December the Borough Council of Bridgeville has been called upon to elect four presidents, it was revealed today.

The first, P. J. Callaghan, state mine inspector, found he couldn't hold both jobs, so he resigned as Council president.

County Detective Robert L. McMillen was named acting president and was elected to the post January 1.

In February Burgess S. P. McCaffrey died and McMillen moved up to succeed him. On March 6, McMillen was elected Burgess and James A. Ellis named temporary president of Council.

The present president of Council, U. L. Donaldson, was named March 14.

Donaldson presided at a meeting of Council last night, at which the tax levy was set at 12 mills.

BORAH TO PUSH M'LEOD PLAN IN SENATE

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Passage of the McLeod bill to pay off 1,000 million dollars of depositors' money in closed banks would be a tremendous step toward recovery in the opinion of Senator William E. Borah (Rep.), of Idaho.

Borah said every effort would be made to get the measure before the Senate at this session. His stand has full backing of the western Progressive group. Borah said:

"I know of absolutely no reasonable objection to the McLeod bill. It seeks to make good the losses sustained by depositors in these banks, now closed. There is no reason why the government should not provide sufficient backing for payment of these deposits so that this billion dollars of frozen cash may be put into circulation."

Expressing himself as "deeply and earnestly" in support of the measure, Borah continued:

"It must be remembered that the people were encouraged to put their money into these banks. The people were told these banks were in existence by authority of the government and there was the natural implication of an invitation by the government to make the deposits.

"This implied invitation from the government naturally brought with it the belief that the government itself was giving assurance through its regular inspections of the banks that virtually no loss could come through a bank with such backing."

This constituted a "direct obligation upon the government in connection with these deposits," Borah said. He added:

"And, aside from the justice that should be given the depositors, this bill provides a form of safe, sane, sound and honest reflation."

Avalon Students to Help Army Home

An entertainment will be given by groups of children in the Avalon High School, Friday, April 13, proceeds of which will be donated to the Salvation Army Home and Maternity Hospital at 108 Meade avenue, Bellevue.

The Salvation Army is soon to launch a campaign to raise $108,500 for financing the many activities of the Army during the coming year.

Payoff by Banks Would Free Over 25 Millions In State, Kelly Says

Representative Clyde Kelly today urged the passage of the McLeod bill which calls for the 100 per cent payoff of all depositors of closed Federal Reserve member banks through loans fromthe Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Representative Kelly in checking up with the Treasury Department disclosed that 119 banks in Pennsylvania are in receiverships and that deposits aggregating more than twenty-five million dollars are frozen. The McLeod Bill would return this money to depositors.

Commending the attitude of the Sun-Telegraph in championing the cause of the bank depositors, Representative Kelly said:

"In Pennsylvania alone today there are 119 banks in the hands of receivers. The money of the depositors is frozen. Many millions of dollars cannot be used, causing a danger like that of clogging the circulation of the blood in the human body.

"This purchasing power, so vitally needed for recovery must be made available. The United States Government, since it chartered these banks and urged the people to deposit their money in them, has a sacred obligation to protect these depositors.

"I believe the McLeod bill should be enacted without delay. The assets of the closed banks will provide ample security for the payments made, once normal values are restored. The payments to depositors will help greatly to restore sound values, which forced liquidation now by receivers will still further deflate the value of all forms of property.

"In more than 100 Pennsylvania communities this action will bring new hope. Business will revive as this money circulates in normal channels. Payrolls can be maintained and a more solid foundation built under industrial recovery.

"We have guaranteed deposits in banks as a matter of policy. Just as important is the guarantee that patriotic Americans who followed the government's request to use the banks as depositories in the time of stress, shall not be ruined as a result.

"There has been too much delay. It is time to act for 100 per cent payment to depositors."

Former Policeman Dies in Street

Frederick Kleber, 40, of 344 Cedarville street, a former city policeman, was found dead late yesterday at the foot of the Ella street steps, Bloomfield, according to the Coroner's report. Death was attributed to natural causes.

CALIFORNIANS FOR BANK PLAN

Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4.—As Californians began today to realize the beneficial effects of the McLeod bank bill now pending in Congress, a flood of messages urging passage of the act started toward California's representatives in Washington.

The telegrams and letters went to Senators Hiram W. Johnson and William Gibbs McAdoo, and to the representatives from each of the state's congressional districts. All urged that the bill as approved in committee be given speedy passage.

While California suffered comparatively little in bank closings, millions of dollars in depositors funds remain tied up, chiefly in agricultural districts. Under the present set-up, these closed banks are in charge of administrators who are liquidating the assets as rapidly as possible. In some cases a percentage of deposits has been paid.

Payment of the deposits in full under the program included in the McLeod bill would be the final step needed to assure economic recovery in many sections of California, it was pointed out. The millions of dollars which would be placed in the hands of depositors would be a reviving influence felt throughout the state.

Doctors to Decide In Case of Diva

NEW YORK, April 4.—(INS.)—Physicians were to decide today whether Carmela Ponselle, Metropolitan opera soprano, should undergo an operation for a gall bladder ailment. Miss Ponselle is undergoing treatment at the Medical Arts Sanitarium.

126,000 NAMES ON BANK BILL PETITION

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The 126,000th signature today has been added to a petition circulated by Representative McLeod for passage of the national bank bill paying deposits in closed banks in full.

Spurred by this popular clamor, the members of the House Banking and Currency Committee gave definite assurance the bill would reach the floor of the House.

A poll of both the House and the Senate indicates enactment of this measure, freeing 1,850 million dollars from closed national banks, will become law.

Chairman Steagall, of the House Banking and Currency Committee, where the bill now lies, said:

"This bill has my approval."

The committee intended to report the bill today, but was forced to delay action until Thursday by press of other matters.

A move to limit the beneficiaries of the bill to depositors with accounts of $1,000 or less has been overriden.

The House committee which conducted a two-week hearing on the bill ordered the hearings to be printed today.

A. Mitchell Palmer, President Wilson's Attorney General, told the committee the government had a moral obligation to refund the depositors of closed national banks.

William H. O'Connor, receiver of the closed Detroit banks, testified that his whole state would be rehabilitated by enactment of the measure.

2 SCHOOL BOYS KILLED BY LIGHTNING

but after an hour both were pronounced dead.

The La Rock boy's mother, Mrs. Rose La Rock, a widow, arrived at the hospital as physicians pronounced the boys dead. She was overcome with grief and was given medical assistance.

The two students were struck down as they were 150 feet from the high school. Hundreds of other students were on their way to school at the same time.

They heard the crash of lightning. A moment later they hurried to the place where first aid was being given their stricken schoolmates.

A bolt of lightning early today loosened slate on the roof of the home of Kirk Miller, at 3218 Shady avenue. Firemen called by a still alarm estimated the damage at $10.

When the storm broke, a gust of wind tore the roof off the Guyasuta Golf Club, on Freeport road, Aspinwall, hurling beds and furniture 50 feet. Three poles near the club were blown down.

The high wind fanned a number of brush fires in various sections of the city. Nine alarms of fire were sounded within half an hour. Rain put out flames before they damaged nearby structures.

WINDOWS BROKEN

Windows of the Emsworth public school were broken by the storm.

MOTHER TELLS OF FAREWELL

"I'm going, Mom."

These were the last words of Paul Uffelman, 18, of 2039 Chateau street, senior at Oliver High School, to his mother, Mrs. Henry Uffelman, as he started for school this morning.

A moment before he had engaged in a friendly tussle with his brother, Glen, 11, for possession of a comb as they prepared for school, the mother said.

Paul ran out and joined his chum, Joseph La Rock, 16, of 1622 Branchport street, sophomore at Oliver High, who waited for him with an umbrella.

Half an hour later Joseph's brother, Mike, 14, also a student at Oliver High, returned home with the word that Joseph and Paul had been struck by lightning. Mike had left home after Joseph and did not learn of the tragedy until he reached school.

Mrs. Rose La Rock, the mother, hurried to the Allegheny General Hospital, where she collapsed on learning Joseph was dead. A widow, she has three other sons and three daughters. Besides Mike they are Sam and Louie, Nellie, Josephine and Mrs. Sam LaMarck, the latter of 1621 Sedgwick street.

When Mrs. Uffelman saw a Sun-Telegraph car in front of her door she said she thought her husband, Henry, had been injured while at work for the Duquesne Light Company on Brunots Island.

Her son Paul had tried out for the Oliver High baseball team, she said, and was anxious to learn whether he had "made it." He also played basketball for the school and Manchester Presbyterian Church team. He has a brother, Henry W., 17.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well as Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

1917 WAR FOES IN CONGRESS REPEAT 'NO!'

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—A corporal's guard of seven men who shouted "No!" when a tide-rip of "Ayes" put America into the World War just 17 years ago, would vote the same way if the fateful roll were called today.

The seven are all that remain in Congress of the little band of 36 who voted for peace and saw war roll up a thundering total of 455 votes. The Senate voted 82 to 6 for war on April 4, 1917, and the next day the House made a similar decision by a vote of 373 to 50.

Here's what some of the seven said today, on the seventeenth anniversary of that rollcall:

NORRIS' INDICTMENT

Senator Norris (Ind.-Rep.), Nebraska:

"Not only our nation, but every civilized country in the world is now suffering from the results brought about mainly by the great World War. Our civilization is now even on the verge of destruction.

"It has made hundreds of millionaires and millions of paupers.

"It is still claiming its toll from veery home and every fireside in the land. It has created a privileged class who live in luxury upon the gold coined from the life blood of our noblest citizens."

Senator Dill (Dem.), Washington, who was a Representative 17 years ago:

"If I had it to do over a hundred times I would vote the same way. I am unalterably opposed to sending men across the ocen to fight anybody.

"If we had stayed out of that war nobody can conceive the influence our peaceful example would have had on the world."

Representative Britten (Rep.), Illinois:

"When the Woodrow Wilson administration declared war on Germany some 17 years ago, it permitted the most colossal blunder in the history of America. The war has been fought in vain."

SEES NEW MENACE

Representative Frear (Rep.), Wisconsin:

"Wars again threaten to engulf the world. I have urged constitutional amendment for a plebiscite on war, before Congress again declares war, and a further provision that no American citizen shall be conscripted to fight in Europe or Asia."

A desire to change the Constitution is now alive among this group of men who voted "No!" The proposed amendment would require a popular vote before soldiers could be sent outside the United States to wage a war.

Only a few days ago a House judiciary subcommittee held hearings on Representative Frear's resolution to that end. While prospects that the proposal will emerge from committee are not bright, Frear is assured of seven votes if it does.

PETITION AGAINST PARTICIPATION In the LEAGUE of NATIONS and World Court

If you want to save America from European entanglements and keep your country out of foreign wars, and foreign wars out of your country, sign this petition:

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

We protest AGAINST the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without "reservations."

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign entanglements," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

LEGION PLANS DRIVE FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT

INDIANAPOLIS, April 4.—(AP.)—Edward A. Hayes, American Legion national commander, said yesterday the legion plans to embark immediately upon a campaign to divorce law enforcement from politics.

The commander approved a recommendation to this end made by the executive committee of the national law and order committee.

Charles F. Ely, an attorney, of Westfield, Mass., submitted the recommendation as chairman of the law and order committee.

The report of Chairman Ely's committee contained the following recommendations:

"1—Better co-ordination between federal, state and local law enforcement agencies. Since the criminal does not recognize boundary lines, such lines should not hinder officials as at present.

"2—Better opportunities for instruction of law enforcement agencies. Your committee believes that schools should be established in which future members of departments should receive a thorough course of training before becoming full-fledged law enforcement agents.

"3—In states and communities where an officer's job is dependent upon the party or group in power, appropriate legislation should remove such appointments from politics."

KEENAN THREAT CASE DELAYED

A hearing before the United States Commissioner in the case of W. Walter Dolan, 1303 Dennistón avenue, who is charged with attempted extortion, today was postponed from tomorrow until next Monday because of the absence of one of the arresting officers.

Dolan is alleged to have sent threatening letters to James F. Keenan, of the Schenley Apartments, demanding $15,000. He was arrested last Thursday by Postal Inspectors D. H. Stephens and L. C. Kennedy and County Detective Walter Monaghan.

JEAN NASH TO GO WITHOUT SON

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—Her son freed of the murder charges against him, Mme. Jean Nash Dubonnet will return to Europe Friday.

The possessor of the title "the best-dressed woman in Europe" and her husband, Paul Dubonnet, will sail on the Berengaria, emphasizing they would go alone.

Mme. Dubonnet turned aside all inquiries about the future of her 27-year-old son, Andrew Donaldson Kirwan, who was acquitted yesterday of the charge that he killed a drinking companion on the high seas aboard the liner President Garfield.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Throwing Light on 'Lights'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Mr. Jones escorts Miss Smith to a dinner party. Miss Smith asks for a cigaret. Mr. Jones hands her one and takes one himself. In lighting the cigaret, he takes the first light and then lights Miss Smith's with the same match. Mr. Jones feels that this is the proper thing to do, because he gets all the sulphur. However, Mr. Brown disagrees . . . his opinion is that the cigaret should be lighted before it is handed to Miss Smith. I do not think this is one bit sanitary.

Which of the three is correct?

The proper thing is for the man to light the match, and hold it while the woman lights her own cigaret. There isn't enough sulphur to make this an issue over good manners, and, as you say, there is a question of sanitation in the third suggestion.

Seats for the Weaker Sex

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am only 12 years old. I got on a street car one day and the car was very crowded. I walked toward the center of the car and a man (he seemed to be about 35 years of age) offered me his seat, as I had quite a few packages. I told him that I would rather stand and thanked him just the same. Later some of the passengers got off and I sat down. Did I do the right thing?

ANXIOUS.

Since this man was such a courtly and thoughtful gentleman, it would have been gracious and appreciative of you to accept his courtesy. It is refreshing to hear that there are still some men left who will give up their seats, and I think that you will do womankind a service if you will accept this courtesy next time—with a gracious "Thank you," or "Thank you. That is very kind of you."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

The audience at Syria Mosque last night applauded and applauded Lawrence Tibbett; applauded his accompanist, Stewart Wille; applauded, too, the Mosque attendant who raised and lowered the piano lid before and after Mr. Wille's solo numbers.

Everyone had a marvelous time—a grand ending to the concert series of the year. And the audience even had its picture taken with Mr. Tibbett and Mr. Wille.

During intermission orchestra circle folks greeted friends just back from the sunny South or West. Virginia Drake was there, home from Palm Springs, Cal.; Louise Reed from Aiken and Miami, and many others.

Striking Gowns Worn by Audience

The gowns were ever so attractive, with spring versions making their appearance. Clodagh McCune wore an interesting printed crepe. All the new printed crepes are lovelier than a year ago, I think.

One of the most striking gowns was that of Mrs. Joseph H. Bialas—of heavy, rough pink crepe with dark red velvet simulating a bustle and lining the cowl drapery of the back decolletage.

Blonde Eloise Dorrance, whom I saw with her mother, Mrs. Harold J. Dorrance, wore a springlike gown of bright green crepe, printed with a large pussywillow-gray motif. And the frock had a cape of the same material.

A gown of stiffened black net, embroidered with a small gold motif and having a cascade of ruffles to distinguish the back of the skirt, was worn by Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson.

Margret Brill, home from Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, for the Easter holidays, was there with her parents, the A. P. Brills. Margret was in all-white—both her gown and wrap.

Society Folk In Abundance

Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, there with her young daughter Isabelle, wore an interesting gown. The bodice was of dusty pink crepe having puffed sleeves with insets of embroidery, I believe, which resembled hand crocheting. And the skirt was black.

Others I recall seeing were Mrs. C. L. Snowdon, Jr., Alice and Mary Rust, Mrs. S. Murray Rust, Mrs. Harry L. Mitchell, Juliet Hillman and Martha McKelvy.

Joan Diehl, former Pittsburgh deb, now of San Francisco, was there with Jane Sloan. And I saw Mrs. William N. Frew in black velvet with a rope of pearls for decoration, Margaret Phillips, Mrs. Lawrence Blair, Mrs. George S. Baton, Mrs. E. V. Babcock, Mrs. D. M. Clemson, Margaret Rowe, the William E. Evanses, Miss Laetitia Hunter, Mrs. Jacob S. Payton, Mrs. John Worthington and ever so many more than I have space to mention.

E. H. Gott Engaged To Maryland Girl

From Hyattsville, Md., comes news of the engagement of a Maryland girl to the son of a Pittsburgh family. The G. Hodges Carrs, of Hyattsville, make known the betrothal of their daughter, Mary Louise Carr, to Edwin Hays Gott, son of the L. Hays Gotts, of Dalzell place. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mary Louise is a graduate of Gunston Hall School, Washington, and her fiance was graduated from Lehigh University in 1929.

This rollicking, gay, exultant holiday mood lingers on even though Easter has come and gone.

The passing of Lent has much to do with this new gay spirit in social realms this week, but the intoxication of the first days of spring weather has more.

And now that we are all feeling so gay, there are suddenly so many things to do, to hear, to see.

Quite the most amusing of approaching events will be the first soiree charette event of 1934. Friday night will bring the first soiree charette, Saturday night the second—both at that most amazingly amusing clubhouse in all Pittsburgh, the Architectural Club tucked away down town in what is now Charette way, once a mere alley.

Many Reservations Made For Soiree Charette

The Pittsburgh Junior League is sponsoring the first two nights. And table reservations are pouring in fast in response to the limited number of invitations sent out. The number has to be limited for the clubhouse is comparatively small for a large gathering.

Mrs. J. Kennedy Beeson has reserved a table and so have Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland, Katharine Frazer, Mrs. Graham McCargo, Mrs. Theodore W. Friend, Jr., Rebecca Doyle, Mrs. Rhodes Quaile and Mrs. J. J. Bissell.

By the way, if you haven't already seen it, we recommend as something you shouldn't miss, the exhibition of seventeenth and eighteenth century paintings now being shown in the Junior League Art Gallery, Junior League headquarters, Clark Building.

And you'll have to hurry, for the exhibition comes to an end Saturday night. There's been only one other showing of paintings of this period in this country, Penelope Redd, the Sun-Telegraph's art critic believes.

This exhibition is open, by the way, to the public.

Girl Scouts to Celebrate First National Youth Week

Girl Scouts throughout the country will participate in the first celebration of National Youth Week, April 28 to May 5, when attention will be focussed upon the boys and girls of the nation. Mrs. Frederick Edey, national president of the Girl Scouts, is a member of the Youth Week Committee, of which Walter W. Head, president of the Boy Scouts, is president.

Youth Week is a development of Boys' Week, which was inaugurated by the Rotary Club of New York City in 1920. The movement grew until 1933 when Boys' Week was observed generally throughout the world. In many cases it was expanded to Youth Week. This year the national committee changed its name to the National Youth Committee for the United States, and it was recommended that, as far as possible, communities make their observances joint affairs for girls as well as boys.

Girl Scout activities are well adapted to the program which has been outlined for the week. This program suggests a Youth Recognition Parade or an Achievement Exhibition for the opening day, April 28. Sunday, April 29, the second day, will be observed in the churches with sermons of special interest to young people. An explanation of the purposes of Youth Week will also be made from the pulpits.

Other suggestions for the week made by the national committee include vocational day on Monday, with groups of girls and boys visiting industries in their own communities, and perhaps taking over for a few hours the operation of one major industry, such as newspaper, department store or factory. Tuesday will be devoted to health, Wednesday to entertainment and athletics, Thursday to schools, Friday to citizenship, and Saturday to an out-of-doors program.

Photoplays Mrs. Owen's Subject

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Mrs. Charles T. Owens, motion picture chairman for the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, writing for the current issue of the federation magazine, "The Clubwoman," tells what individual clubs can do in the interest of photoplay appreciation classes in senior and junior high schools, an activity which the federation is encouraging.

Mrs. Owens points out that since the motion picture has become the favorite entertainment of the masses, the quality of its product cannot be disassociated completely from the average quality of audience taste, and because the average parent will not take the trouble to select motion picture entertainment for children, the community through its schools and volunteer motion picture committees is learning to assume this responsibility.

The purpose is not merely to expose young people to a better class of movie, but also to develop in them the capacity to choose and actually prefer what is better. A complete set of text books and help-outliners may be had by writing Dr. William Lewin, chairman of the Photoplay Appreciation Committee, Lincoln avenue, Newark, N. J. These are issued under auspices of the National Council of English Teachers.

Mrs. Owens suggests that clubs talk with English teachers, interesting them in the plan, that they also interview motion picture exhibitors, asking them to book the pictures and to contact the cooperating English teachers with motion picture chairmen acting as go-betweens.

Through the Spyglass

Viewing The New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

Here we went and snuffled out all sorts of hot news in the hair line . . . and then someone made off with the bit about the permanent wave. And we were heartbroken! And did you all wonder what had happened that we should overlook such an important item? But there . . . better late than never and here it is . . .

You may be only a little wavelet in the sea of curly coiffures . . . but you've got to be washed (almost everyone, anyway). And with each and every shop shouting about their permanent waves of this or that kind . . . we think that we might as well come forward with our own private . . . or public opinion!

Being as how there is a fine steam and oil permanent running riot in this fair city just now for $2. Yes, we know there are OTHER permanents for less . . . but we're talking about GOOD ones! (Ten red Indians bit the dust!) And besides this is sort of super-super, due to the extras which surround it like a movielot. Because the flat rate includes your shampoo and your finger wave also. And if that isn't that . . . we'd like to know just what more you'd ask us to find for a $1.00!

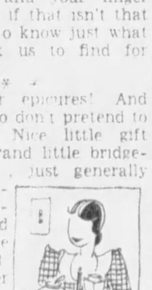
Epi-curios for epicures! And even for you who don't pretend to be epicurean! Nice little gift numbers . . . grand little bridge-prize jobs . . . just generally dandy for tucking into someone's fist and watching the smiles break out.



There is ginger . . . sugar crystal . . . kumquats . . . honey syrup . . . nuts . . . cocktail crackers . . . dibs and dabs of goodies of all sorts packed into little carved wooden trays, pottery jars and whatnots of all sorts. Priced, note this well, from only 50c to $1. A gift within a gift . . . gobble up the contents and still have something left to look at.

And little glass vials like fingers . . . wearing silk tassels at the ends where the composition cap screws on. Put your perfume into these so you can tart it about with you everywhere you roam! 15c.

* * *

Grasping a shake in each hand . . . just what we're doing when we wear these new gloves and carry the matching bag! For are they not exact imitations of reptile . . . made from soft suede fabric? In brown tone or grey . . . all sizes . . . with envelope bag. Terribly smart to sport with a suit . . . and costing only $1.98 the pair . . . $2.98 for the bag.

Doctor's Wife Enthusiastic about New Washday Trick

Mrs. Charles H. Nammack, of New York City

Mrs. Charles H. Nammack, a doctor's wife, says: "Recently my maid was ill and I did my own washing several times. Here's a labor-saving trick I discovered.

"I used my maid's regular laundry soap, her regular washing method, then I added 2 tablespoons or so of Lux.

"This extra bit of Lux made much more suds. They got dirt out so quickly, so easily. My wash seemed so bright and fresh, too."

Try this trick next washday! It saves time and work, costs next to nothing.

NOTE: Use only Lux—no other soap—for silks, woolens, rayons. Delicate fabrics should never be exposed to harsh alkali or cake-soap rubbing.

Entrants in Rushmore Inscription Competition Warned to Observe Rules

Long Text Fails to Qualify

Warning is sounded!

If you are an entrant in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition—and thousands of men, women and children in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia have joined the millions throughout the nation—here is important advice.

Hundreds of texts have already been submitted in this stupendous competition. Many of the entrants in all divisions—adult, college student, high school pupil and grade school pupil—have evidently failed to properly read the rules. Right now consider the mistakes made by many participants so future entries may avoid them. Let those who made them consider these pointers, too, because there is still plenty of time for them to submit new texts.

TEXT TOO LONG

Here is a text which is beautiful in words and thought. But it contains 1,300 words. The Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers which are conducting the competition, have repeatedly emphasized that only 600 words are allowed. Here is another text that deals with the colossal figures that Gutzon Borglum, the famous sculptor, is carving on the South Dakota mountainside that will become a national monument to exist more than a million years.

But the competition rules require that the 600-word history must be written about nine specific episodes in America's progress.

STUDY EPISODES

Study carefully the nine episodes. Make a detailed outline of what you intend to write. Criticize yourself for unity, coherence, emphasis and adherence to the rules.

Intercollegiate Ad Group Plans Meeting

The newly-formed Intercollegiate Advertising Club, comprised of advertising classes at the University of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Institute of Technology, and Duquesne University, will hold its first formal meeting Monday night in the Downtown Division of Duquesne University. George Sherman, advertising manager at Kaufmann's, will speak.

OREGON TRAIL TESTED COURAGE OF NATION'S PIONEERS

Treaty With Britain Added Vast Area To Republic

(Editor's Note: This is the seventh of a series of articles by Mr. Woodhouse on the nine episodes in American history that are to be recounted in the Mt. Rushmore Memorial.)

By HENRY WOODHOUSE

The history of American pioneering in Oregon, prior to the settlement of the Oregon Boundary Dispute, fully supports the statement made by President Roosevelt in accepting the chairmanship of the national committee that will determine the character of the 600 words inscription to be carved on the Mt. Rushmore National Memorial.

The records fully show the importance of what President Roosevelt characterized as

"The pioneer spirit, the creative urge which led our people to populate the various areas which from time to time came into our nation."

In the case of Oregon that spirit led Americans in the year 1810 to establisha colony of 120 souls, who found the first town, which they called Astoria, in honor of John Jacob Astor, the New York merchant, who equipped the expedition.

TITLE BY TREATY

A Co[n]gressional document dated 182[1] in the writer's possession, states that the United States had acquired title to the Oregon territory by the Treaty of Paris, and continues:

"Under this view of the case, the United States being possessed of the title of France, and, by a just application of the law of nations, that of Spain too (of she ever had any), leaves them the undisputed sovereignty of that coast from the sixteenth degree or north latitude down to the thirty-sixth, which is believed to be the situation of the mountains of Mexico alluded to in all the authors and charts before referred to.

"If, however, there should remain a doubt, that doubt is relieved by a reference to the subordinate principle recognized by the Treaties of Utrecht and of Paris in 1763.

CLAIM IN SETTLEMENTS

"When we know that all the formalities deemed necessary in the possession of a newly discovered country have been complied with on the part of the United States; that in the year 1785-'6 and establishment was made at the mouth of Columbia River by Mr. Hendricks, the full and entire benefit of whose courage, enterprise, and success results to this union; and that at a later day, in 1805, Messers. Lewis and Clark, in executing the desires of this government, again visited the Columbia and the Western Ocean, twelve miles from which they built Fort Clotsop, yet to be seen—these establishments, made by the United States not so near the settlements of California as manifestly to encroach upon them, entitle them to the whole country north of Columbia."

Then follows the following account of the extending of the activities of that little American colony:

"From every information which can be obtained worthy to be relied upon, our coast on the Pacific, for years past, has been the theater of much individual enterprise, stimulated by the rich returns of numerous whale ships, and the great profit of the fur trade, together with the flattering accounts of Messrs. Lewis and Clark relative to the resources of the interior, though no regular trade or well-organized system of commerce existed until the year 1810, in the course of which year a vessel was fitted out in the city of New York, well supplied with provisions and seed of every description necessary in a permanent occupation of the coast, which they contemplated.

HOW THE UNITED STATES EXPANDED FROM SEA-TO-SEA

SIX STATIONS

"This little colony consisted of a hundred and twenty men when it arrived in the Columbia; and, after ascertaining its surroundings, they removed some miles above Fort Clotsop, and built the town of Astoria, where a portion of them cultivated the soil, whilst the others engaged in the fur trade with the natives.'

"The soil was found to be rich, and well adapted to the culture of all the useful vegetables found in any part of the United States, as turnips, potatoes, onions, rye, wheat, melons of various kinds, cucumbers, and every species of peas.

"In the course of a year or two, it was believed their interest would be promoted by cultivating and securing the friendship and confidence of the tribes inhabiting the waters of that great river; to which end the town of Astoria was maintained by about thirty men, whilst the rest established themselves at five other points, to become fixed stations, to raise their own vegetables, trade with the natives, and receive supplies of merchandise from the general depot at Astoria, and return to it the fruits of their labor.

DISPUTE ENDS IN 1846

In 1834, one hundred years ago, Americans emigrated to Oregon in numbers.

By 1844 the Oregonians had organized legislative and executive committees. In 1845 they framed an organic law and created a provisional government.

The treaty with England which settled the Oregon boundary was signed June 15, 1846.

That treaty established the United States title to the Oregon territory, in 1846, and added 286,541 square miles, completing the straight line of territory from the Atlantic to the Pacific, making the United States a two-ocean nation.

By 1848 the Oregonians impressed the Congress of the United States with their importance, and it created the Territory of Oregon, comprising all the United States territory west of the summit of the Rocky Mounts and north of the 42nd parallel.

TERRITORY IN 1849

The territorial government went into operation on March 3, 1849. John Lane was the first governor.

In 1853, was formed the Washington Territory, which took from Oregon all the land north of the Columbia River.

In November, 1857, the people of Oregon ratified the constitution framed and adopted at the convention held that year.

That was followed by the admission of Oregon in the Union, as a state, being admitted by act of Congress of February 14, 1859.

Then all the territory which had been crossed by Lewis and Clark in their expedition of 1804-5, became part of the United States as had been visioned by Thomas Jefferson!

"Two things I wanted—

"I found out my trouble—

"... more strength and a clear skin."

It is well to remember that a probable reason why you do not have red lips, rosy cheeks, a clear skin, good health, energy and cheerfulness is that your blood is in a run-down condition. Lack of hemo-glo-bin, the red-coloring of the blood, may also cause a weakened condition of the body ... loss of strength ... poor appetite.

Neglect of diet, worry, overwork, colds or sickness, frequently break down and retard the natural development of the red-blood-cells and their oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin.

Why not set in motion the rebuilding of these precious blood-cells instead of procrastinating and sacrificing your appearance and the feeling of being well and fit?

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. It is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite ... your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is truly a blood and body tonic. Its value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal.

You will find S.S.S. at all drug stores in two sizes ... the larger is more economical. © The S.S.S. Co.

"... and it was all so simple ... my physician said I had no organic disease, but I did have what is so commonly and truthfully called a low percentage of hemo-glo-bin in the blood. It didn't take S.S.S. very long to get my blood back up to normal ... and as my strength and energy returned my skin cleared up."

Unknown Has Small Chance To Crash Movies

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 4.—The unknown girl who has dreams of "crashing" Hollywood was given the cold shoulder here by the "talent executive" who spotted Joan Crawford, Madge Evans, Lynn Fontanne, Fay Bainter and Lucile Watson as movie possibilities.

"Ninety-nine per cent of our talent," she was told, "comes from the field of professional entertainment, night clubs, theaters, vaudeville and opera. If a girl really is determined to go on the screen, start out in one of these careers first."

The voice of authority was "Al" Altman, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who has been interviewing would-be stars for 10 years.

"Al" said there was too much money involved in one production today—at least half a million dollars—to take a chance on the players. A girl has to have ability to read lines, a certain sensitiveness which makes a responsive facial expression, beauty of face and figure, he asserted.

"The unknown girl has virtually no chance," he explained. "Only about one out of every five who get screen tests—and we made 150 tests after interviewing 3,200 men and women—get contracts.

"We spotted Joan Crawford in a night club in 1926. She had the most intense, dynamic, fiery eyes or any girl I'd ever seen. She seemed on fire with ambition. I gave her three tests; on the third she 'clicked.'"

Miss De Mille Wants No Aid From Dad

Katherine De Mille has refused to accept a good part in her father's, Cecil B. De Mille's picture, "Cleopatra."

"Too many relatives are getting by in Hollywood already," she said. "I want to establish myself on my own merit. I don't want even a hint of parental influence."

Butterworth an Actor Through Accident

If you can believe Charles Butterworth, his stage career grew out of an automobile accident that killed a man. As a copyreader on a newspaper he passed a sentence in a story: "The victim is being treated by Dr. Blank. He will die." Buterworth was fired and got a job acting in a stock company.

Girl at Work Through Aid Of Carroll

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, April 4.—Hello! For weeks ago Julia Graham was lying in the Los Angeles County Hospital, unconscious from the effects of poison which she had taken because the gates of Hollywood had remained completely closed to her.

Earl Carroll, with an eye for beauty and a nose for headlines, got Julia with Paramount as a member of the junior stock company, composed of newcomers doing extra work and bits.

Today Julia, well again, is working with Burns and Allen in their new giggle-getter. Julia's "story" is interesting, not that it varies much from the ordinary thing, but because it serves as a warning to other screen-struck girls and because Earl Carroll came into the scene . . .

Julia, with no uncertain amount of determination, says:

"Had I known what faced an inexperienced girl with ideas of her own dramatic ability in Hollywood, I would never have left home without being better fortified for the battle.

"Hollywood is a city of glamour from a distance. But the sidewalks are just as hard on the feet. Come to think of it, perhaps fewer girls would have heartaches to the point of trading in a life if Hollywood were only sterner. Hollywood turns you down in a way that gives you hopes that tomorrow may be different."

Odd thought: It was a hospital physician who saved Julia's life and Earl Carrol who gave her a job—but who did her a favor?

Dishing up a bowl of filmdom's fancies—Billy Perlberg, Columbia's couch man (casting director, silly) is headed for Broadway to sign up new actors for the galloping tintypes . . . Jack Haley's back in town and about ready to make faces for "Here Comes the Groom," a Charles R. Rogers flicker for Paramount. There's chatter about that Mrs. John D. Spreckles III, an heiress to millions—if you can count over 10—may make her movie debut in the piece . . . Ted Lewis broke so MANY records at the local Paramount that the pieces will be lying around for months! . . . Louise Lorimer, the Noo York cutie, gets her first cinema break in "I Give My Love," the Vicki Baum ditty for Universal.

Not that it makes much difference, but Jack Holt staked out 14 gold claims during his stay in Alaska—and he's never been back to look them up.

Tieing the loose ends of late news—Bing Crosby with Jimmie Grier and his orchestra TOSSED on an extra six weeks for their ether wave program, which was to end April 9 . . . Albert Hackett received a nice, fat check from RKO for his play, "Afterward," which will star Zasu Pitts.

Kinema Knick-Knacks—W. E. Benswanger, pres. of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and the missus had such a time seeing the movie move at the Warner film factory, Mrs. Howard J. Traynor was also in the sight-seeing troupe . . . Some Hollywood oldtimers lifted their eyebrows when they heard Cecile Sorel (Countess Segur in private life) paid $1,000 to have her eyelids lifted . . . Gertrude Vanderbilt telegrams it to say she isn't sick at all—just running a dress shop on East 64th street. Well, here's luck . . .

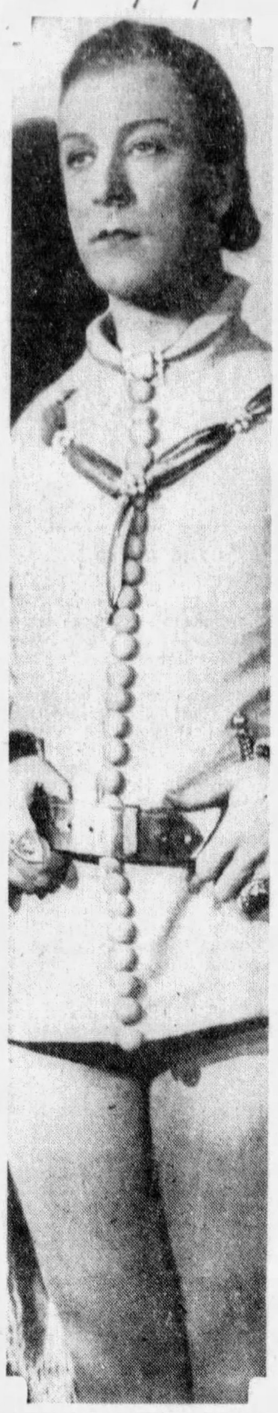
Twenty years ago Richard Carle and Charles Wilson had an argument over lines in a play. They never spoke to each other again—until last week at Universal.

They were cast in the same film—and had lines together. Then they made up!

Royalty



Dennis King as Richard II of England in "Richard of Bordeaux," dramatic play by Gordon Daviot, that will be seen next week in the Nixon.

Lupe, Johnny May Team

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio wants to send Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller to the South Seas to do a picture together. Johnny's part in the scenario is that of a native, who knows only a few words of English.

"It looks like a field day for Lupe," Johnny said with a grin. "I'll get away from the Tarzan yell, but my lines probably will be reduced to a couple of grunts."

It is a story by the late F. W. Murnau that bring Lupe and her swimming-star husband together for the first time on the screen. It is called "Turea," and John Farrow is making an adaptation for the screen.

Dressler and Moran Once Playmates

Their Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen comedies were not the first productions in which Marie Dressler and Polly Moran appeared together. Edgar Allen Woolf has a program of Dave Henderson's stage production of "Sinbad the Sailor" in Chicago more than 30 years ago. Marie Dressler was the character comedienne in it and Polly, then a young girl starting on the stage, appeared as a jockey in a race track song number.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The box office sale of seats for "Richard of Bordeaux," in which Dennis King will appear in the Nixon next week, will open tomorrow morning. This new play concerning the dramatic career of Richard II of England, had a run of more than a year in London, and it is now playing the English provinces. A Scottish schoolma'am, Agnes MacIntosh, wrote it under the nom de plume of Gordon Daviot, and her work was pronounced "the finest play of the season" by George Nathan when it was opened in New York.

Neville Fleeson, author and composer of "Dancing Honeymoon," stage presentation coming to the Pitt stage Friday, is in town in connection with the production, and is a guest of his mother in the family home in South Graham street. Neville, a graduate of Allegheny High, has written the songs of a number of musical comedy hits, and, in the days of big-time vaudeville, he used to appear in the Davis at the head of his own acts. He is now writing a new work for production early in the summer, called "Penthouse Follies."

* * *

John Steel, tenor now featured in the Plaza Cafe, is well remembered here for his appearances in big musical productions such as the Ziegfeld "Follies" and "The Music Box Revue," as well as a headline vaudeville artist of the Keith-Albee regime. With the exception of those who have the vocal quality to succeed without the aid of radio amplification, Mr. Steel low-rates crooners, so-called.

Actress Plans to Own Stock Company

Evelyn Venable, young Paramount player who toured as a Shakespearean actress before she filled the leading roles in the films "David Harum," "Cradle Song" and "Death Take a Holiday," plans to have her own Shakespearean stock company. She will use young players whose appearance will fit the roles and will ban the excessive dramatics and exaggerated gestures of the old school, the young actress explains.

Meet the Baron

THIS IS the story of a Beer Baron. If I weren't so lazy I'd dig for a better title—because Beer Baron doesn't mean much any more. When you mention the term to the average man he thinks either of a jolly German with a paunch—or of a sallow young man with a cigaret dangling from his lips and one hand on a gun under his armpit.

Both pictures are, at the moment out of date . . .

The Beer Baron in this story is a rather pleasant man of 40 or so. He has a pug nose, blue eyes and the brawny hands of an ex-boilermaker. He never goes out in bad weather without his rubbers and never touches hard liquor. He has a wife he adores and one kid whom he idolizes.

Yet this character was a well know Beer Baron. In this yarn his name will be Mike—and his beer will be known as Mike's.

With that much settled, we now strike up the overture and part the curtains. The scene takes place in Mike's office just about a year ago. You can place his office in any city that pleases you. All I will tell you is that it was not New York.

The young man sat on the edge of the desk. He watched the older man tap a pencil on the desk.

"Well? What's the answer?"

Mike looked up.

"No," he replied quietly. "I couldn't do it, kid."

"Afraid?"

The older man smiled.

"For you?" he returned. "No. It isn't that. It's something else. I've been in this racket a long time. Beer's been good to me. It's made me wealthy.

"But putting you in it is something else again. You're my nephew. It was my money that put you through college. If I start you in the racket, the education has been a waste of time. So," he spread out his hands, palms upward, "that's why I don't want you. Better go East to Wall street and become a bond salesman. Twelve bucks a week is better than nothing, if you can get the twelve." . . .

Toward the close of last year prohibition went overboard, and it was about the first of December that Mike held his last pow-wow with his henchmen. The men stood around the gloomy little office and Mike talked.

"For once," he said, "I want to talk through without interruption. What I have to say is very little. I'm getting out of the racket.

"You fellows have worked with me for a long time. In the past five years we've made plenty.

"Beer has been very good to me. You all know that. If it wasn't for beer I'd still be sweating in a foundry and waiting for the whistle to blow.

"We're through. But since I made up my mind to quit I found out something swell. Mike's beer has made a name for itself. It never occurred to me that there might be a demand for it now. But there is.

"So yesterday I sold the good will of the outfit for a very nice price. You'll all get a share and no questions asked. I'm quitting because I don't want to push a good thing too far...

And so it was that Mike quit the business. Mike's beer had earned him a fortune, and he was now content to enjoy his leisure. More, his name was being carried on under the new regime and it was making new friends every day. A lucky man, indeed, was our hero.

Lucky, that is, until a month or so ago. It was then that Mike's attorney visited the ex-Beer Baron's apartment. His call was brief and to the point.

"Mike," he said casually, "you're going away for a rest. You're taking a little vacation. Because if you don't, you're going to wind up in jail."

"What are you talking about?" Mike demanded. "I haven't done anything."

"I know that, Mike. It's what you haven't done that's causing the trouble. I'm speaking of your income taxes."

"They tell me downtown," he went on, "that's you're next on the list. A trip would do you good right now. I need all the time I can get, and the wife and kid can meet you later. I'll have the passport fixed immediately. Don't step outside the door. And don't answer any bells."

Mike wasn't the same man after that. He was irritable, jumpy. The slightest sound frightened him. He wasn't able to stand it very long.

As soon as possible he made a break for freedom. He left his house on a dark, rainy evening. His coat collar was turned up high. He kept close to the wall, and was headed for a waiting car around the corner when he was nabbed.

The two detectives made an easy pinch. Easy, that is, after they had spotted their man. One of them was talking about it the other day.

"Funny the way things happen," he said. "Mike would have got away all right because we didn't really see him at first. He was just about to turn the corner when an electric sign lit across the street and we saw his face. Then we grabbed him.

"And the sign that helped us, spelled out: 'Mike's Beer'."

— what it means

— to keep on hand 350,000 bales of Turkish tobacco to add something to the taste

So important is Turkish tobacco in the Chesterfield blend that we maintain a modern up-to-date tobacco factory in the far-off city of Smyrna.

Turkish tobacco adds something to the taste and aroma of a cigarette that no other tobacco can give.

It means something that Chesterfield always has in storage upwards of 350,000 bales of this aromatic Turkish leaf.

This Turkish tobacco is blended and cross-blended with ripe mild home-grown tobaccos to give Chesterfields a taste and aroma that is not like other cigarettes.

Everything that money can buy is used to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

the cigarette that's MILDER
the cigarette that TASTES BETTER

Crab Recipe Wins $5 Prize

April showers bring more than May flowers—they, also, have a habit of causing wet feet, damp clothes, ruffled tempers. And if you're the home body of the family, you know what a time you have getting everyone in a good humor after a dripping day.

Foods, especially hearty, appetizing main dishes, are a standby restorative. Prime favorite, too, is a steaming bowl of soup. It needn't take you long to prepare it either . . . A few minutes will do if you follow Eula A. Kirschler's prize suggestion today:

"We live in the country where it isn't always possible to get soup vegetables when you want them in the winter. By just canning the vegetables, I didn't always have the meat or 'soup bone' on hand when the family wanted soup, so I conceived the idea of canning a soup I could just heat and serve. By using canned tomatoes and buying some soup vegetables it can be made just as easily now as in the busy canning season."

Which of your recipes have proved especially helpful to you? Send them in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, so that she may pass them on to other housewives, at the same time (if your recipe is used) awarding you with either a $5 or $1 prize. No recipes, she continues to remind you, are returned.

GLOBE TROTT NG

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Last week there was some discussion about one and two-pound babies, in connection with a news item that told of one of these tiny tots using a shoe box as a cradle.

Many people wonder whether these extraordinarily small babies fare well in later life. I have the best evidence that they do.

Mrs. Adrian Sabin, Clairton, writes that on June 1, 1905, she was ushered into this world weighing 24 ounces—a pound and a half. She grew and matured like her seven and eight or nine-pound contemporaries.

Today she is the mother of two fine children.

Harry R. Valinsky sent in an old photograph of one of the popular county detectives, Philip Goldberg. The photograph was taken when Phil evidently was a city policeman.

It must have been some years ago, since Phil has been on the county force now for 12 or 13 years, and anyway the picture shows a young and handsome officer.

The letter states: "Please return the picture. I get a kick showing it to our mutual friends."

Philip, as one globe trotter to another, you ought to see it.

Henrietta—I would take the matter up with your school authorities rather than rely on my judgment. They are in a better position to know.

Hans Stockman—Lieut. Guy Griffith is located in the Nixon Building, Sixth avenue, Pittsburgh. You can write him or call personally.

He will be back on the air shortly to give any further information that he might have regarding the delay in sending out compensation checks.

In fact I am asking him for some comprehensive statement why checks are delayed. Maybe we all can co-operate in some way to speed matters along.

Local Highlights On WJAS Tonight

The Zion Male Quartet returns for another quarter-hour program tonight at 6:15.

At your service—Paul Gannon's songs at 6:45 and the Pickard Family at 8.

Notes About Radio Stars, Studios

By AIRCASTER

The air's top comics are meeting today to approve or condemn studio audiences, but it is no secret what the outcome will be.

Vanity and stage training and total indifference on the part of the listeners will combine to bring out a decisive vote for studio audiences.

Without them, few comedians can be funny and the rest aren't very funny anyhow.

I must check up on WOR's attempt to count the audience last Sunday, by means of having listeners light electric bulbs at a given moment, to register themselves "present" via special meters on power-house lines.

I tried to find out what happened, but the reports are not in, save from one sub-station, covering an area in Essex County, N. J., wherein reside 60,000 inhabitants.

According to the extra current loads registered, 6,100 listeners switched on an extra light to show they were on the job in that region, and when they were asked to vote on the program, the engineers say 5,900 approved an organ recital.

BENNY SICK

I learn that Jack Benny is quite sick and that a doctor and nurse were with him during his Sunday show.

His sponsor whom he has just left, I also discovered, is playing counter-psychology in the new series with Victor Young.

Blatant ballyhoo will be dropped on the theory that the modern listener has built up mental defenses against it.

A very huge auto maker has decided to adopt the Walter Damrosch Symphony and John B. Kennedy, for a series which will begin over KDKA next Monday at 10 p. m.

An unheralded oil program starts out with Jack Denny's band at WJZ tomorrow night at 10:30, with guest stars, but the guests haven't been picked as yet.

The "Human Relations" dramas, now a WCAE feature Sunday nights, shifts to WJAS in the near future.

The Forty-five Minutes in Hollywood, now current Saturday nights on WJAS, moves to Sunday night beginning April 8.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce will come to the air at KDKA, to be interviewed, at 10 p. m. Wednesday.

THE BAMBINO

Babe Ruth starts his new program on KDKA at 8:45 p. m., April 16, and will be heard thereafter, in a summary of his day's game, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The reason you hear other dialecticians impersonating Dave Rubinoff on those Sunday night shows is not due to Rubinoff's shyness, but to a clause in his contracts, which forbids him to speak—and he gets paid extra for it!

In the Leon Belasco Orchestra which backs Phil Baker's meat-packer program is a harpist, who was ordered into the set-up by the head man of the firm.

The reason is that he's the guy who invented a system of making unbreakable harp-strings by using part of the interior of the firm's hogs.

Nobody has squawked about it yet, but the Poley McClintock frog-voice comedy has been mysteriously dropped by the Fred Waring showmen. Incidentally, Marion Talley will be on the Waring program.

HEINZ

We started an EAT WAVE!

Frankly, we are flabbergasted. We thought our Soups were good—yes, and savory and delicious and satisfying, because we deliberately made them that way. We thought the people who liked good home-made foods would want to try our Soups and having tried them would come back for more. But, we didn't expect an avalanche! We didn't expect that millions of people would start craving Heinz Soups constantly, and demanding Heinz Soups insistently. And we didn't expect all the grand old die-hard home cooks who spurned and scoffed at "canned goods" to break down and admit our soups were just like theirs—only better—and easier—and thriftier.

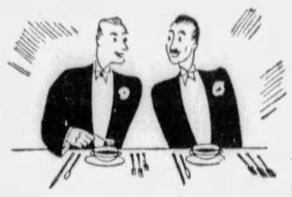
Yet, they did! It became an Eat Wave! It swept the grocery stores bare of Heinz Soups and the grocers kept after us for more Soup in bigger lots—and oftener. And today we sell almost as much Soup in a day as we used to sell (not so long ago) in a week.

This makes it hard for us, because what makes people like our Soups at once and keep on, is the home recipe way we make them — the sound ingredients, conscientiously selected, the unhurried cooking in small batches. We have had to search far and wide to get the right good things to make them. We are working day and night over our slow, simmering kettles to keep up with the demand.



We are expanding our Soup Kitchens. And still, as always, we are testing and tasting a sample of every batch of every Soup to make sure of right flavor and food value.

We know you want soups made like this — Soup that is ready to heat and serve and enjoy with nothing to add or mix or blend, and pennies saved over home-made Soup costs. And furthermore, the Heinz Soup you delight over and insist upon will always be good enough for us to say:

ON APPROVAL!

If you don't find Heinz soup the best you ever tasted, return the label to your Grocer and he will refund the purchase price.

Beans that HIT THE SPOT!

This is not for men. This is for ladies. Ladies with hungry husbands. Tall, husky husbands who pant ravenously for grub. Or husbands short and cherubic who muse and dally over meals. Or just hungry husbands.

Heinz Oven-Baked Beans hit the spot! Hungry husbands say "Boy, oh boy! Are they good!"

Vivid memories of long-forgotten boyhood feasts come to mind. And this is because our beans are oven-baked.

We buy "choice-hand-picked" beans, sort them under strong lights, wash them, soak them in clear, cold water, bake them in dry oven heat. We bake them through and through, replacing their original moisture with sauces sweet and savory.

All this gives our beans the alluring golden-brown look, the savory aroma, the glorious flavor and pleasing munchyness that hungry husbands sigh for.

So we say keep a supply on hand. (Four kinds,* all seductive.) Thrill your husband now and then with the dish that hits the spot—oven-baked beans. And remember!—

Four Kinds*

The Flavor All the World Loves Best!

ALL over the world our Tomato Ketchup is bought, poured and delighted in with more general frequency than any other. This makes us very happy.

Heaven knows we give it our very best effort. We grow special tomato plants from specially chosen seeds to get extra-special delicious, nutritious tomatoes. We go globe-trotting to get, first hand, rarest, purest spices. Long and patiently we simmer and stir our ketchup, and, quick!—piping hot, we seal it in bottles to reach you fresh and fine.

The missions of this ketchup include imparting charm to chops, rendering hash heavenly, giving lure to left-overs and making omelets sing. You know about those things. But will you check up now and see if your bottle is full and, if it isn't, put on your grocery list—

WHEN you look at the clock and Great Scott!—It's almost meal time!—grasp a tin of Heinz cooked Spaghetti in one hand, a saucepan in the other, and step firmly toward the stove. Thus, in the nick of time, you salvage your good name as a dependable provider.

For we make this spaghetti well, devoting earnest endeavor and a six-story building to the task. We make the dry spaghetti ourselves to be sure it is always as good as can be. Then we cook it—just enough. Then we add a savory sauce concocted of rare good things.

And truly, it is such scrumptious, salubrious spaghetti that you will find yourself planning to treat your family to it even when you have all the time in the world.

'FREE PROPERTY OF SCHOOL TAX LOAD,' RULE PLEADS

POLITICS

Rural Counties Hold Balance of Power

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 4.—The rural and semi-urban counties of Pennsylvania, in which Gov. Pinchot always has secured the bulk of his vote, will probably determine the winner of this year's Republican gubernatorial primary.

Mr. Shields

Political observers figure that the two big counties, Allegheny and Philadelphia, cannot next May be counted on to return a substantial plurality for any one of the 14 men seeking the nomination. The traditional 200,000 lead for whoever is favored by the Philadelphia organization is a thing of memory only. Deliverable organization majorities in Allegheny County and Pittsburgh also have faded.

There are a number of candidates who figure to receive substantial votes in Philadelphia, no matter what the professionals of politics there try to do. Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon, Attorney General William A. Schnader, former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, Charles J. Margiotti, Judge Robert E. Lamberton and Judge Harry McDevitt, even though he may make no active campaign, and will receive a goodly share of the Philadelphia vote.

Narrow Margin Of Votes Predicted

Predictions are being made by men in a position to know that the leading candidate in the Philadelphia scramble will not leave the city with a lead of more than 25,000 over the second man, and that the leaders of the field can be covered by a blanket of 50,000 votes between the first and last man.

In Pittsburgh the loss of City Hall patronage to the Democrats will militate against the usual organization majorities. The county government exerts no great patronage, and the political groups of the boroughs and townships will be well scattered.

For example, in Allegheny County, Gen. Shannon will get the soldier vote and some of the organization. Schnader will have what the Pinchot group can throw to him, though this circle may be somewhat divided in the showdown. Phillips, because he is a neighbor, and because he exhibited some interest in the last municipal campaign, will have his share of votes.

Margiotti, south of the Monongahela, will get a vote which usually has gone to the regular candidates, and Judge Marion D. Patterson, of Blair County, if he is adopted by the Mellons and the Reed element, will get his portion.

Beclouded Field Appears Certain

This, of course, is predicated on the expectation that all of these candidates will remain active until primary day. So far there is nothing to indicate that sufficient pressure can be exerted to clear the field through reluctant statements from any number of candidates that they have abandoned hope. Were there but three or four on the ballot this might be easy of accomplishment but the presence of 16 names has led more than half to believe they are contenders.

An organiation which could not weed out annoyance before the last day for filing will hardly be able to do so now in any appreciable degree.

There has been within the past two or three days a notable undercurrent of Phillips sentiment among political leaders who in the past, at least, have been able to exert some influence. This preference is especially marked within the Grundy circle, where Phillips or Schnader are being urged on the Bristol leader by some of his most ardent lieutenants.

Grundy Reported Cool to Schnader

Grundy himself is reported to have cooled toward Schnader because of the latter's declaration for a constitutional convention. Uncle Joe does not want the constitution tampered with in these times of free and uncontrolled thinking. Schnader made a visit to Philadelphia yesterday and it is rumored the conferences he held with organization leaders there, including some Grundy elements, were not overly encouraging.

There is a disposition among most of the candidates, even if they receive the Grundy approval, not to parade the fact. They fear that the big business and reactionary tag would be harmful, though there is hardly a man in the field who would rebuff assistance from the former senator.

David Kaufmann, of Towanda, former minister to Siam, is understood to have the approval of some professional Republican leaders in Philadelphia as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor. It is known that Senator Harry B. Scott, another Lieutenant Governor candidate, is far from pleased with the situation.

Shannon-Scott Alliance Discredited

Stories that Scott is to be teamed with Shannon are unfounded at this time, as the circle in which Scott moves in Republican organization politics does not approve the candidacy of the commander of the guard.

Some state committee strategists have slated County Commissioner Harvey Taylor of Dauphin County, as a candidate for secretary of internal affairs. This, also, is being kicked around, as there is sentiment in Philadelphia for the incumbent, Phillip Dewey, who also has support in the rural districts. It is contended that Taylor, as Republican leader here, should be satisfied with the number of followers he has on the state's payroll, and should not want a state job himself.

STATE OFFICIAL GIVES REMEDY FOR 'EVIL'

'Century of Progress' In Education Celebrated

HARRISBURG, April 4.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's "century of progress," celebrating 100 years of free public schools, was opened officially last night.

The occasion brought praise of the state's educational development mingled with warnings that a revision of the plan of tax support is necessary to prevent disintegration of the school system.

COLLAPSE PREDICTED

Frank statements of the "deepening crisis" faced by the public schools in their centennial year were made by Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction.

He suggested federal aid as "one way out" and reiterated his belief that real estate must be freed of its tax burden.

Tribute was paid to David B. Oliver, member of the Pittsburgh Board of Education, who is 100 years old. He was unable to attend, and in recognition of his 54 years of continuous service to the public schools of that city a special message of appreciation was sent to him.

PINCHOT SENDS REGRETS

In a message to the gathering, Governor Pinchot regretted his inability to attend and said:

"If my record shows nothing else it shows that I appreciate fully the importance of adequate school support and especially the necessity for a state income tax to help the schools."

Today's program includes the state championship spelling bee and an old-fashioned singing school session. Shippensburg Teachers College players will portray old and modern school sessions.

WARNS AGAINST PERIL

Discussing the school situation, he warned that with the collapse of real estate values and the accruing tax revenues there has come, in many areas, a near-collapse of local sources of school support.

He said it is estimated the shortage this year will be approximately $30,000,000 out of a normal annual school tax collection of approximately $140,000,000. He asserted:

"Realty cannot continue to bear 85 per cent of the school tax load."

OUTLINES PLAN

He proposed this three-point program to remedy existing conditions:

"Restoration and reconstruction of our school programs to meet the diverse needs of Pennsylvania's diverse communities.

"Reorganization of school districts so as to reduce local inequalities as between school districts to support and administer public education adequately and competently.

"Revision of our state system of school support so as to remove the confiscatory tax load now resting on realty and place the major share of the cost of public education upon sources of taxable income and wealth available only to the state and federal government."

LOSS DELAYS PARROT DOOM

The loss and tardy recovery of the city's parrot ordinance has given the "suspected" birds at least an additional week's lease on life.

Finance Committee of City Council adjourned yesterday when a 15-minute search failed to find the ordinance to control psittacosis. City Clerk Robert Clark, who conducted the futile search yesterday, found the ordinance early today in a desk drawer—hours too late for action.

The Mayor recently set the style for losing ordinances when he mislaid the meter tax bill.

Council's parrot ordinance provides for the destruction of birds of the psittacine family which have been imported since 1932 or which have been in contact with other birds in pet shops. It already has met objections from some pet owners.

DAVID B. OLIVER

HIGH TRIBUTE PAID OLIVER

David B. Oliver, member of the Pittsburgh Board of Education, who recently celebrated his one hundredth birthday at his home at 1516 Termon avenue, received a telegram today from educational leaders attending a two-day centenial celebration at Harrisburg of the birth of the free public schools in Pennsylvania.

It read in part:

"Your life equals in span the public schools of the state. For the unselfish public service which you have rendered the youth of the state may God bless and keep you."

Oliver has been a member of the school board for 62 years, 26 of which he was president. In 1911 he was a member of the committee that framed the Pennsylvania school code.

Sam Should Stay At Home and Pal With Prosecutor

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Poor old Sam is without a friend outside the tourist bureaus.

Sam, it is no disgrace to lose out in the Dardanelles. England couldn't make the grade with a big army and navy.

Our State Department will break out its flags and national bands will play the victory march. We haven't actually cornered Sam, but we had Dillinger for five minutes.

Ted Epstein, Entrant From Here, Keeps Place in Finals

By J. JAMES MOORE
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 4.—As Pennsylvania's old-fashioned spelling bee moved into its final rounds this afternoon, Ted Epstein, 27-year-old Pittsburgh attorney, representing Allegheny County, remained among the last 20 contestants of the 50 who started the finals this morning.

Of the other Western Pennsylvania county representatives, only Butler, Crawford, Fayette and Greene were still in the running.

Epstein, who was chosen in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's elimination spelling bee, was confident as he renewed the spell-down this afternoon. He said:

"I'm ready to spell anything between aard-vark and zythum—the first and last words in the dictionary."

Epstein was the alternate in the "spell-down" in his district, which was sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Mrs. R. H. George, the winner, was unable to make the trip. She is recovering from an operation in the Homeopathic Hospital.

More than a score of housewives are in the competition. Other entrants include laborers, ministers, clerks, reporters, salesmen, plasterer, lumberman, millworker, painter, farmer and mail carrier.

SENATOR PRESIDES

The Departmen of Public Instruction, which is conducting the spelling bee, officially opened the centennial program last night. Senator Warren R. Roberts, of Bethlehem, Pa., who sponsored the celebration through a legislative resolution in 1931, presided.

Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, spoke on "Education in Pennsylvania in Retrospect and Prospect."

The spelling bee started this morning. The winner will be picked at the final match to be held at 3 p. m. Between sessions an old-fashioned singing school will be conducted.

'EASY' WORDS 'HARDEST'

Dr. Lee Driver, chief of the Rural Schools Division, who is in charge of the final bee, said that one fact stood out in the "spell-downs" held throughout the state—the spellers quail before the so-called "easy" words.

He said:

"That is just as we thought it would be. It is the common, ordinary words that are hard to spell."

The words used in the contest were selected from the Sunday editions of Pittsburgh, New York and Philadelphia newspapers. A list of jaw-breakers and tongue-twisters are being held in reserve, Dr. Driver said.

Then he added:

"But I doubt if we'll have to use them."

Studying Zoology With His Fingers

BLIND ROBERT N. GAY

DR. ROBERT T. HANCE

DEMOCRAT GAIN IN G. O. P. WARDS

Pittsburgh's first four "Republican machine" wards have almost capitulated to the Democrats, according to the tabulation of the new permanent registrations in the first 47 districts of the city. In the past these wards have been considered controled by the Republican organization.

Comprising the first four wards and part of the Fifth Ward, the count today showed 2,065 Republicans and 1,987 Democrats. This was the result of the first day's permanent registration last Thursday.

Pennsylvania Gets $639,821 for Aid

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP.)—The Federal Emergency Relief Administration today granted funds to several states to take care of past obligations and relief during April. They included: Pennsylvania, $639,821 to cover obligations through March 31.

Blind Pitt Students Given 'A' in Zoology

Wire Diagrams Help Three Youths Win Leading Rank

Blindness has not prevented three University of Pittsburgh students from making "A" grades in zoology. They are Norbert N. Gay, Leon Hatfield and Gerald Croft.

Aided by some ingenius special helps devised by Dr. Robert T. Hance, zoology department head, they have been able to learn as well as their seeing classmates.

There are complicated diagrams to learn in zoology; it is even necessary to perform delicate dissections of such small creatures as the frog and to identify its parts. So that blind students may "see" such diagrams, Dr. Hance has worked out a way of outlining the charts on a table with flexible wire solder. In the afternoon, Dr. Hance shapes the wire into the same diagrams he draws on the blackboard. The boys' sensitive fingers "see" the picture in a few seconds.

Pricking the characters into their notebooks with a stylus, the students take notes of lectures in braille. Then they type their notes and examinations.

Few zoology textbooks are published in braille, so it is necessary for them to have their books read aloud for them. Women, they say, are better readers than men.

One of the students, Robert Gay, tells about his life:

"The wire is cleaner, easier to handle, and more efficient than the clay models we had to use before. By it, we can even see diagrams which explain the growth of a single cell into a complicated organism."

TWO MEN HELD FOR ROBBERY

Alex Zuger and Kost Ostastensky were in the county jail today awaiting action of the grand jury in connection with the torture robbery of Nickodem Yojpieth and his wife, Margaret, in their home in Noblestown, two years ago.

They were held for court yesterday by Justice of the Peace S. J. Anderson, of Oakdale, and lodged in jail in default of $4,000 bond. At the hearing, Yojpieth and his wife were said to have identified Zuger and Ostastensky as the pair who tortured and robbed them. A green flashlight, missing since the robbery, was introduced as evidence at the hearing. It was found by county detectives.

McNair Plans New Cottage of Brick

There is to be a new McNair manor erected in brick. The Mayor disclosed that a contractor has plans for another cottage on a city lot, but he did not reveal the location. In the meantime, many visitors are inspecting the Mayor's first model home constructed on city property at Sixth avenue and Forbes street.

Spring Brook Man's Body Found in Hunt

SCRANTON, April 4.—(AP.)—The body of George Musick, of Spring Brook Township, to whose slaying police say his son, John, 19, has confessed, was found today, buried under a pile of coal a short distance back of the Musick home. He had been missing since February 5.

TROOPERS' RAID BARES CHEAT IN LOTTERY

Crooked Wheels Fixed Winning Numbers In Homestead

An elaborate system of secret rooms and crooked wheels for operating a numbers lottery that couldn't be beaten had been wrecked today in Homestead, according to state police.

Seven men, four of them Negroes, were under arrest awaiting hearing before Justice of the Peace Bernard Volk, of Versailles Township.

The crooked lottery, police said, was located at 517 Dixon street, Homestead. A state police squad led by Corp. William Hanna broke in the place last night, seized a quantity of numbers slips, money and other paraphernalia.

The operators, police said, had erected two sets of wheels on axles which extended through a wall into a secret room. In this room, two other sets of wheels were on the axles, operated by employes who controlled whatever number the house wanted to appear as the winner when the wheel stopped turning.

Arrested as keeper of the house was Joseph Smith, a Negro.

Irwin Frank, of 2221 Webster avenue, and Morris Frank, 2004 Center avenue, both of Pittsburgh, and Edward Leffsky, of 225 Fourth avenue, Homestead, were the three white men held.

BOROUGH ASKED BY FOX CHAPEL

Residents of the exclusive Fox Chapel residential district today asked Common Pleas Court to cut Fox Chapel free of the township in which it now lies, setting it up as a borough.

Along with the County Workhouse, part of Fox Chapel is located in O'Hara Township. The other part is in Indiana Township.

The district long has been regarded as a separate community, but is subject to the township governments. Its residents formed the Fox Chapel Association to further the district's interests.

The district formerly maintained its own police force, but about two years ago the townships took over the policing.

RWD Set to Begin Operations Here

James L. Stuart, county administrator of the Relief Work Division, said today that the RWD would begin operations here tomorrow. Officials at Harrisburg have approved 350 projects from more than 300 submitted when the Civil Works Administration program ended last week.

Men selected for the new work were notified by postal cards sent out yesterday, Stuart said.

Scully Seeks New Trial Of Westinghouse Suit

City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully has filed a motion for a new trial in the case in which the Westinghouse Air Brake Company last week won a $173,600 property damage verdict against the city.

The city contends the verdict was against the weight of the evidence and that the verdict is excessive—and "against the law."

A new trial had previously been awarded the city on a property damage verdict of $151,355 to the Pittsburgh Terminal Warehouse and Transfer Company, a condition being that the city pay the company's expense of $1,500 incurred in the first trial.

Council called Scully yesterday to get his explanation of the large damage verdicts. After hearing his defense of his department, Council voted him the $1,500 necessary to assure the new trial in the Terminal Warehouse case.

Councilman William A. Magee declared Council should consider the hiring of recognized experts in the law department. He insisted that some broad general policy should be laid down to avoid future losses.

Scully asked that Council have patience with the law department and explained variations in expert testimony on values involved in the Terminal Warehouse case.

Economy League to Aid In Police Clean-Up

Council will have to do its own cleaning up of the police and fire departments without much help from the National Economy League.

The members were informed this afternoon by J. M. Williams, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania branch of the league, that the committee is "not equipped to make a technical investigation of either bureau."

Williams said:

"Because of this we will have to restrict our studies to business matters of these two bureaus."

Pending word from Williams on how much help might be expected from his organization, action had been held up on Councilman John J. Kane's ordinance providing for a police commission.

Kane had an amendment approved by Council yesterday to allow employment of outside expert on the proposed commission.

Kane has stated that it is his intention that Council should sit with the commission and thus make available to it the broad powers to subpena witnesses needed in a sweeping investigation.

Councilman William A. Magee declared in favor of placing an engineer on the proposed commission. Kane declared that an investigating group that Council might select would be acceptable to him.

The Economy League has been authorized by Council and the Mayor to organize a survey of city activities based somewhat on the plan followed in Baltimore.

MAYOR TO DOG COUNTY FOR BENCH PAY

Mayor McNair today threatened to hire a bill collector to collect that $1,000 yearly salary he is supposed to get for serving as chief magistrate in the city.

The Mayor has made many futile attempts to collect, although he says he wants to turn the "grand" back to the city. His Honor announced his plans to reporters thus:

"I think I'll get one of the kind of collectors that sit around and make themselves a general nuisance. I'll pay 5 per cent, or perhaps I can get a better rate by taking bids.

"As soon as I get the money, I'll indorse the check over to the city, so it seems to me the city ought to be interested in my attempts to collect it."

His Honor added that the county must have plenty of money in its "gold room," since it "can afford to pay Jack Herron a big salary."

He referred to former Mayor John S. Herron, defeated in the last election. Herron has been reported as the likely head of the Allegheny County Authority, which will disperse Public Works funds for public improvements. He is not yet on the county payroll.

NEW MANAGER HEADS STORE

Albert B. Kuehn, who leaves a position as merchandise manager for the Frank R. Jelleff Company, of Washington, is the new general manager of Meyer Jonasson & Co., according to an announcement today. He replaces William A. Miller, who will take an extended vacation.

Kuehn was formerly with Kaufmann's for 23 years, being merchandise manager in charge of all ready-to-wear departments when he accepted a position with the May Company, of Cleveland, in 1928.

He plans no changes in store personnel, he said today, after a meeting late yesterday at which he was introduced to his staff.

BALDWIN FIGHT PEACE FAILS

Despite the threat of ouster by the courts if they fail to come to an agreement, old and new Commissioners of Baldwin Township last night again failed to effect a reorganization. The meeting continued two hours. At its end Peter Kuenzig, leader of the new group, said another attempt would be made tonight at the regular meeting.

More than a dozen meetings have been held without results since January, yet township bills and employes remain unpaid. Both factions recently appealed to the courts to remove their opponents, the result being a threat by Judge W. Heber Dithrich that both factions would be removed unless a reorganization was effected.

Huge 'Peace' Book On Exhibition Here

The "world's biggest book," which weighs 2,330 pounds and has already been signed by 400,000 persons who favor peace, was placed on exhibition at Horne's yesterday. The book is being sent throughout America, England and France for signatures before being turned over to the Disarmament Conference at Geneva. Rosamond Pinchot, neice of Gov. Pinchot, is chairman of the World Peaceways, sponsoring the book and its travels.

City Department Heads Ordered to Cut Payroll

Placing of responsibility for making cuts in the city payroll on the shoulders of department heads has been approved by City Council in Finance Committee.

At least one Councilman, William A. Magee, wants to keep in close touch with the payroll pruning.

Magee is expected to offer a separate resolution Monday in which he will require directors to submit a list of all persons dismissed or furloughed since the first of the year, with reasons for their dismissal.

FEAR LEGAL ACTIONS

Asked by President Robert Garland if that would not be encroaching on the executive side of the government, Magee replied that Council should be kept informed in order to save the city from loss where directors violate Civil Service rules and the dismissed employes are put back later by order of court.

Magee declared that 10 or 12 city employes had come to him with discharges during the last few weeks. He said:

"Many of the discharges I have seen are defective or positively illegal."

CHECK-UP PLANNED

Charles Anderson suggested that the check-up on the persons dismissed was a part of the duty of the new budget controller.

Council affirmed unanimously the Garland resolution calling on directors to submit amending ordinances to the salary bill to remove "dead wood" from city departments.

Woman Cried Because Too Fat For Pretty Clothes

Another Woman Happy—Lost 45 Pounds Complexion Lovely Now

Miss Lillian Darr of Hackensack, N. J., writes: "Sobbed to think I couldn't wear the lovely clothes in women's magazines. Then I read about Kruschen and got a jar and in a short time lost 16 lbs. in 2 weeks. I got rid of that fat, better in fact I feel. Get busy, girls, be able to wear the new styles, look and feel slender, get rid of ugly fat, and the way to do it is to get a bottle of Kruschen and observe a half teaspoonful in hot water first thing every morning without fail, don't diet, just eat what you like and don't starve yourself of pep by eating less. Wrinkles or sagging just take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen salts in a glass of hot water first thing every morning.

Doctors prescribe Kruschen for overweight folks—they know it's SAFE, effective and builds up glorious health (see note below). A jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle at leading druggists the world over.

Mrs. O. H. Simpson of Termo, Calif., writes: "After taking Kruschen three and a half months I'm 45 lbs. lighter. I'm so happy. Acne has disappeared—my complexion is lovely now."

NOTE: Get that superb Kruschen feeling of glorious physical health-fulness as millions throughout the world do by taking your little daily dose of Kruschen—only as much as will lie on a dime in your morning cup of coffee or tea (you can't taste it).

This little daily dose of KRUSCHEN increases physical attractiveness—keeps you feeling fit, fine and full of zest for the work you have to do.

COUNCIL BALKS MAYOR'S PLAN FOR SMITH

Defeat of Mayor McNair's nomination of Safety Director Ralph E. Smith for a $5,000 Traction Conference Board post is indicated in City Council.

The Mayor's dismissal of W. Edgar Reed on the Traction Board, and the Smith appointment are to be voted on in Council Monday. The Service and Surveys Committee sent the measures back for action at that time.

With the Reed dismissal and Smith appointment embodied in one resolution little chance is seen of getting them approved.

MEASURE KEPT ALIVE

Council came close to laying the entire proposition on the shelf in committee yesterday but by a four to three vote kept it alive.

The assertion by Director Smith that he would hold two jobs, if confirmed, was a hurdle which most members of Council refused to take.

Council President Robert Garland said:

"We can't vote the man two jobs."

William A. Magee said:

"I don't think we should vote Mr. Reed out unless we intend to vote someone else in. I think we should notify the Mayor that we do not approve of Mr. Smith."

ASK SEPARATE ACTION

Councilman John J. Kane said he thought the dismissal and appointment should be voted on separately. He declared that if both actions were placed before Council to be voted on at one time, he would be compelled to vote against them.

Garland asked if one man can hold a position on the Traction Conference Board and as safety director.

Magee replied:

"Not legally."

Reed issued the following formal statement:

"Because of repeated reports that I am backing this or that candidate for governor in the Pennsylvania primary contest, it seems to be necessary to say again that I am not doing anything of the sort, and to reiterate my determination, as announced in Pittsburgh, several weeks ago, to run independently for the Republican senatorial nomination without alliances of any kind."

M'NAIR OFFERS HIS OFFICE TO FRIENDLY FOE

Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, campaigning here in his drive for the Democratic nomination for Governor, disclosed today that he has a friendly rival in Mayor McNair, who also has ambitions to be Governor.

Bonniwell said:

"Mayor McNair offered me the use of the Mayor's office for campaign headquarters in Pittsburgh."

Bonniwell predicted a smashing defeat for the Earle-Guffey combination at the primaries and declared that he himself would lead the ticket for Governor by 50,000.

He said he had beaten the Guffey machine in three campaigns and now "it's beginning to be a habit."

The Philadelphian said:

"I started Billy McNair in politics. That was back in 1914, when I got him to run for Congress against the Guffey candidate."

Bonniwell, speaking in Schenley High School last night, declared:

"The nomination of either Earle (George H. Earle) or Copeland (Judge Charles D. Copeland) is an invitation to the Republican party to rally its forces to retain the state government. Neither of them could hope to carry Philadelphia."

He pleaded for a Democratic victory in November, asserting:

"The election of a Democratic Senator and state ticket at this time would be the most grateful ratification of the unselfish labors of President Roosevelt that he could hope to receive."

Norbert James Fitzgerald, candidate for lieutenant governor, warned against allowing the Home Owners' Loan Corporation in this state to become a "haven for politicians who desire to reward their friends."

He said:

"The wholesale employment of political lamedueks in Pennsylvania is an act of betrayal to the President."

Fitzgerald declared that the corporation, instituted to provide relief for victims of the depression, had in many instances been used for the construction of powerful political machines.

Naming as one of the campaign issues the "avoidance of false and detrimental leadership within the party," Henry L. Snyder, candidate for lieutenant governor declared:

"There must never be the establishment within the Democratic party of a Republican system of inside control."

Mr. Lissfelt

Lawrence Tibbett, now justly become one of America's musical idols, gave a miscellaneous song recital in Syria Mosque last night, closing May Beegle's current concert series. It was a capacity audience which found the star in excellent humor.

Since Tibbett has last sung here, he has created leads in two American operas and done otherwise constructive work towards singing for the American composer and the English language. There might be much controversy about his translation of the great classics, Brahms and Schubert, into our own language, but when a singer is gifted as Tibbett and can enunciate our language as well as he does then such songs in translation become a boon to the audience. No one will ever say that these translations can replace the original.

Furthermore, Tibbett's introduction to his singing of the excerpt from "Emperor Jones" made that otherwise vapid music at all acceptible.

Since last singing here Tibbet's style has matured immeasurably. There was always in it a wealth of dramatic expression joined with excellent tone production. The voice sounds better than ever before, and with that security he has gained more in repose. Even his broadest humor and inuendo has acquired delicacy and much finesse.

As a singer of ballads he has no better among our singers. Yet it is obvious too that his operatic music is excellent in both the modern parlando style or the strictly bel canto of the "La Traviata" air which he gave encore immediately after the "Emperor Jones." There were many popular extras including "Shortnin' Bread," the sophisticated "American Lullaby" and the "Glory Road."

Stewart Wille was the reliable accompanist as on former occasions and played two groups of piano works, better as pianist in the Bach than in the moderns. He was well received and added Schumann's "Romance" in F-sharp and Mompou's "Little Maiden in the Garden."

J. FRED LISSFELT.

RODGERS WINS IN ZONE FIGHT

A three-year fight to change the zoning laws in Bellevue, to permit erection of a gasoline station at Meade street and the Ohio River boulevard, ended last night when Bellevue Council passed an ordinance placing the section in the commercial zoning classification.

The fight was led by Capt. W. B. Rodgers, a former Bellevue Councilman, who is building the gasoline station on the site. The case, bitterly fought, was taken to the courts and returned to the zoning board for final decision.

JUNIOR PATROL

Lawrence Tibbett sang at Syria Mosque last night, fellows!

There's a fellow who is a swell singer. Believe us, you don't have to be a sissie to be a great singer. Tibbett is one of the best in the world, but he is a strong fellow, and he gets plenty of exercise.

Another thing, learning to sing is hard work. It may look easy, and sweet music sounded so natural that you would think anybody could sing, but the truth is there are few people who can sing well.

If you like to sing, fellows, you are fortunate, because everybody enjoys hearing good music and good singers. In fact, we are sort of hoping every one of our Junior Patrol members will learn to sing as well as he or she can.

And right there is a good idea. You know in school you learn to sing a little, and of course some boys and girls can sing a little better than others. Why not start a chorus in your Patrol Clubs?

Of course, the first thing is to get someone to help you—someone who is older and knows how to read music well and maybe play the piano. If you get started singing right, it's a big help. You ought to have what is called the fundamental principles right to start with.

Then when you have your chorus organized, you can start practicing. Learn all your songs well. Begin with just one or two, and get them as good as you can. There are probably some of your members who are learning how to play the piano. You can all gather around the piano and "make harmony"—singing together is a lot of fun any time!

We have been reading that a pack of ordinary dogs—all of them pets belonging to some people—killed a little girl. They ran at the little girl and knocked her down, and started to bite her. She was a very small girl, and she couldn't keep the big dogs away. And people ran to help her too late. It's all right to have a dog for a pet, fellows, but you have to take care of it. You have to feed the dog well and if it gets sick you have to take care of him. It's dangerous to let hungry, sick dogs run around loose.

If you keep a dog, get a license for him, and obey the law.

Wilmerding Police Captain Resigns

Night Police Captain W. F. Curran, of Wilmerding, last night presented his resignation to the borough council. Five applications to fill the vacancy were tabled. The council awarded a contract for garbage removal to Dash Brothers, of Braddock, for $3,540 annually.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS! :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Swain 'Walks Out' as Girl Objects to Kisses

Virginia wants the best advice ever furnished.

And that will be a trifle hard. For I always try to answer all my letters in the very best way available.

So how can I go ONE BETTER for Virginia!

Between the lines of every communication I reach, I am always hoping I find the open sesame for happiness to the writer. To mend shattered hopes and to re-arrange home misunderstandings. And to re-adjust humanity that still gropes. These are a few of the things I want to do.

And always, always, Virginia, am I giving of the best in me.

And if I manage to aid a bit. If I cause the mysterious thing called life to flow along a trifle more evenly, then I've gotten all the kick I want out of it.

My spring tonic has gone right to my head, and I am on the top of the world.

So here goes, for you.

MADE VIGOROUS LOVE

Dear Miss Brunot:

Please give me the best advice you ever furnished. My case is not a rare one, but it seems so to me. I have been going with a fellow for six months. He has asked me to be his steady girl. But I did not answer him right away. But he took it for granted, and tried to make vigorous love to me.

I didn't like it. So he said: "Well, we're through."

And he added: "If you're so stuck on yourself, and afraid of a little kissing, you're not the girl for me."

Miss Brunot, this isn't so. I loved him so much that I thought if I didn't kiss and pet he would care the more for me. And even now when he stays away, I feel he still is in love with me.

It is now three months since I saw him. I had the cards read for me and the fortune teller told me to take the first step in making up with my boy friend.

Yet I think it better to wait until he writes to me. As soon as we broke up, he went to work in another place and comes home only to see his parents on Sunday.

Several times he has attempted to make up, as he has driven past my house and blown the horn of his car. But I have not had the nerve to go out and speak.

Should I write him? And when he comes back should I let him make love to me? Is is true absence makes the heart grow fonder? VIRGINIA.

Even a young fellow in love, when he thinks matters over, has considerable common sense in his viewpoint. That is why your boy friends has driven past your house and blown the horn. He was hoping you would come that far in making up with him. For he feels you are quite right about "the vigorous love-making." I do not think it advisable for you to write to him. But if I were you I would manage to be somewhere in sight when he drives past on Sundays. And be sure and smile and wave your hand.

STRONG WORDS

And if this does not bring him around I miss my guess.

"We're through" are strong words. But I am sure this young man did not mean them. Neither did he like you any the less for being "so struck on yourself," as he called it when he was angry. You were right in realizing his respect was more surely won by your not being overwilling to make love to him. No man who is really serious, should expect a girl to kiss him too easily. And in his heart of hearts, he doesn't.

Absence does not always make the heart grow fonder. But Virginia, three months is not such a very long time, and any heart so fickle as to waver in that time, would not be worth holding. He must have cared for you when he went elsewhere to work when he was angry with you.

And remember when you do see him and have a talk with him, not to be too stiff. And don't let him form the opinion you are of a nature that likes victory in all things. Merely let him know you have scruples against promiscuous love making. And he will like you the better for it . . . That before you give your kisses to any man, you must feel assured he really cares. And the boy friend's affection for you will be none the less, Virginia, believe me.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

By FAY KING

Milady's hat problem was once of such a size it was higher calculus. Today milady's hat is so small the problem is simple arithmetic.

Multiply the size of milady's modern millinery by ten and you'll get about half the portion it once was.

In fact, in those days the wearer seemed but an afterthought, hardly more than a human pedestal upon which to display some milliner's masterpiece.

But one thing is certain, milady never mislaid her hat in those days. Today, alas, she may hunt around for her hat for hours until, about to burst into tears, she discovers it hidden under her handkerchief.

If hats were once too large, they are too small now. Both extremes are trying to the prettiest of faces!

TWO WEDDING GOWNS FOR THE APRIL BRIDE OF 1934

By PRUNELLA WOOD

PEOPLE WHO saw the charming photographs of Miss Grace Roosevelt, who was married not long ago in her mother's wedding gown, must have noticed how its fashion date added to its picturesque prettiness. Perhaps this hallowed custom is the reason that new bridal robes are seldom modern, usually reminiscent of some past period.

It would not be a flight of fancy to imagine that one's ante-bellum grandmamma wore a moire or brocaded gown like the prim, fresh model sketched immediately below. And there is many a 1934 miss stepping altarwards next month who is far more like her grandmamma than she is like the regal beauty who has gone into medieval lore for her fashion inspiration, and who is shown in the other sketch.

A diadem arrangement is favored just now for the bride's veil, and the chosen bouquet is of white pansies, gardenias, freesias, or orchids.

Quaint and sweet as the nosegay in a paper frill which she will carry is this bride's gown of stiff brocade in ivory white. The high waistline is accented by tiny buttons and a sash belt.

Any girl can see by these two gowns that a bouffant model or one extravagantly trained are equally effective.

The bride to the right chose slipper satin in a Moyenage design for her gown, and quaint is the last thing one could call it. The coifed veil is lovely with the ecclesiastical cowl on the model, which has unusual pageant possibilities.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Pseudo-Squeeze

C. C. Chapman, editor and publisher of the Oregon Voter in Portland, Ore., is greatly interested in the game of Bridge, and to him I am indebted for the hand below, which he played and which he remarks has elements of appeal to the lover of Bridge both in the possibilities of deception and in the squeeze possibilities.

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A 9 8 7 ♡ A K 6 ◇ J 7 ♣ K 6 5 2
♠ 6 5 3 ♡ J 9 7 2 ◇ Q 2 ♣ A 9 7 4	North West East South	♠ K Q 4 ♡ Q 10 8 5 ◇ A 5 ♣ Q 10 8 3
	♠ J 10 2 ♡ 4 3 ◇ K 10 9 8 6 4 3 ♣ J

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	4 ◇ (1)	Pass
5 ◇	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The four-diamond bid was pretty strong but South's hand was unbalanced.

West opened the Ace of clubs, and then followed with the spade six. Mr. Chapman, who sat South as Declarer, could see two sure losers still to come unless a second lead of spades could be averted, so he went up with the Ace in Dummy, using to the best advantage his material for deception, and dropped the Ten from his own hand. Then on the club King he discarded the spade Knave, hoping to convince his opponents that he was now void of spades and that he was abandoning that suit as an aid to the squeeze play.

The ruse worked, as East, when a diamond was led from Dummy, went up with the Ace and led a club, which South ruffed. Mr. Chapman then entered Dummy with a heart, led by the Dummy's last diamond, played the King, and then started the pseudo-squeeze by leading out the diamonds. At Truck 11 the position was:

	♠ — ♡ K 6 ◇ — ♣ 6
♠ 5 ♡ J ◇ — ♣ 9	North West East South	♠ Q ♡ Q 10 ◇ — ♣ —
	♠ 2 ♡ 3 ◇ 3 ♣ —

The lead of the last diamond put West in a quandary. He thought Mr. Chapman had no more spades and dropped the spade five and from Dummy the club six was played. Then East was squeezed. He played the spade and Mr. Chapman had the satisfaction of taking the twelfth trick with the spade two. The thirteenth, of course, was won with the heart King.

Household Hints

If your polished table gets a white mark on it, due to heated plates, etc., rub with camphorated oil.

To preserve rubber boots fill a pair of old socks with bran, typing up the ends, and keep these inside the boots when not in use. This dries up the moisture and dampness inside the boots for which there is no other method. To dry the stuffed socks place in warm oven or before a fire. You will find that this "tip" will save many a cold.

Youngsters Discuss Avis Arlen's Powers of Fascination

There was something in Marion's voice, as she said that I couldn't tell her that Maj. Grantland had asked Avis to share his car on the drive to the beach, which again brought the quick blood to my cheeks. I felt that the incredulity in her voice had a touch of mischievous diablerie in it; that it was not based alone up skepticism concerning Avis Arlen's powers of fascination, but held in it an amused appreciation of the undeniable fact that Hugh had never shown any woman but myself even the semblance of attention.

It was to the confusion resulting from this conviction that I attribute the unbelievably stupid thing I said next, but at the moment it seemed to me imperative that I should contradict this apparent impression that Hugh was forever "attached to my apron strings."

MARION SKEPTICAL

"Yes, she asked him," I said hurriedly, "but I think Maj. Grantland was delighted to accept her invitation, because only a moment before he had asked Miss Fairfax to go with him, and she had refused."

"What?"

Marion's voice fairly dripped skepticism now. "If he asked Edith Fairfax to go anywhere with him, it was only because—"

She stopped short in what I was sure was a pretended fit of coughing. But I could guess only too truly what she had begun to say. She had meant to make the comment that Hugh would only ask Edith to accompany him if in some way it were serving me, but she had stopped short, horrified at the crassness of her remark.

"Why did Miss Fairfax turn Maj. Grantland down?" Carolyn asked. "I should call him the answer to a business girl's prayer."

Her voice broke off abruptly, and she jumped perceptibly. She was too clever to betray herself by an exclamation, but I knew that Marion had stopped her query with an effective kick or a pinch.

"What I want to know," Marion said hurriedly, "is how the Arlen managed to put it over. You admit she invited him. Be a dear, Auntie Madge, and tell us what she said."

She was talking against time, I knew, trying to cover the unfortunate comment she almost had made, as well as Carolyn's query. But I was as embarrassed and humiliated as if she had finished her first sentence, and Carolyn's question had been answered.

FURIOUSLY CHAGRINED

To Marion, at least, Hugh's devotion to me—yes, and the embarrassment Edith Fairfax's pursuit of Dicky caused me—were no secrets, and I could not help feeling furiously chagrined that this young daughter of Lillian should have this knowledge.

There was but one thing to do, however, and I did it.

"I shall do nothing of the kind," I said, forcing a laugh. "Perhaps if you ask Avis, when she comes in, she will tell you all about it. I shall make only one comment. She is what I believe you call an artistic worker."

"Artistic worker!" Bob exploded in high derision. "Begging your pardon, Mrs. Graham, but I can't help but believe that you're being extra kind to her. That girl isn't artistic. She uses a trowel and a spading fork in her work."

"Hush!" Carolyn said abruptly. "I hear cars coming in the driveway."

Wet Shoes

Shoes that are very wet should be stuffed as tightly as possible with newspaper. The paper absorbs a lot of the moisture, and the shoes are thus kept in good shape. Stand in a dry place in a draft, and let them dry slowly. Never dry them quickly near a fire or radiator, as it hardens the leather.

How to Keep Well -:-

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Lack of Post-Partum Care Is Risky to Health

Recently I told you about an investigation into maternal mortality made by a special committee of the New York Academy of Medicine. The report shows that a large percentage of these deaths can be traced to lack of knowledge or to negligence.

Dr. Copeland

On the other occasion I discussed the importance of proper prenatal care. Today, I want to tell you about post-partum care. No one will deny its great value to the mother and certainly every family should be familiar with it.

What is meant by "post-partum care"? This is the medical attention given the mother after the child is born. Unfortunately, many do not receive this attention.

Every mother is more anxious about the welfare of her child than of herself. Mother love is the most amazing and enduring thing in the world.

So devoted is she to the baby that she fails to heed Nature's warning signs. This is deplorable, because most of the complications that occur after childbirth, can be quickly remedied if the necessary post-partum care is given.

In former years, this was often referred to as the "period of readjustment." As a rule, six to eight weeks after birth was the time given over to it. Today, the medical profession does not set aside a definite term. It may take weeks, months or even years, before the mother is sound and well. It all depends on her physical condition and degree of reaction.

It is probable that our grandmothers and great-grandmothers would scoff at this idea. Unfortunately, the modern young mother does not stand the strain of pregnancy as well as her grandmother did. Perhaps this is due to changes in methods of living, as well as alterations in dress, habits and diet.

I can think of no more important feature of proper post-partum care, than rest. This should be emphasized at the very start and the mother warned of the danger attached to neglect. Regardless of how easy the labor has been, the young mother has had a strain placed upon her system. She requires adequate rest for recuperation.

Bear in mind, that lack of food, proper care and necessary medical advice at this vital period of life of the young mother, may lead to chronic disorders. When the attending physician advises you to report to his office or clinic for periodic examinations, do not fail to do so. Too often neglect of this after-care may be the underlying cause of much unnecessary suffering in later years. It may lead to difficult labor in the next pregnancy.

I receive inquiries from many a young mother who has been advised to have an operation. They fear the operation and are anxious to avoid it. When the womb or muscles of the pelvis are torn, operation is advisable. If delayed, or neglected over a long period of time, chronic inflammation sets in and infection may occur.

My advice to all young expectant mothers, is to follow carefully the instructions of the attending physician. Do not become careless after baby is born. Report to the physician at periodic intervals.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Keystone Worries Pilots. Problem On Many Clubs. Right Spirit in Rookies. | Specs for Third Sacker. Hawks Chase Old Jinx. Boxing Risks Reduced.

Instead of clearing up the situation, spring training trip developments have increased the sceond-base uncertainty around the major leagues. Like the third sack, the keystone station is a source of greater worry to the managers this year than they have experienced in connection with that position in many seasons. Being in personal charge of the post, Frankie Frisch, of the Cards, is one of the few to be spared anxiety. The Giants are all set with Hughey Critz, and so are the Reds with Tony Piet, but elsewhere in the National League things are up in the air.

Frankie Frisch

The loss of Rabbit Maranville has put the Braves in such straits that Jonah Goldman has been purchased in haste from Montreal. The beaning of Linus Frey forces the Dodgers to hang on to Tony Cuccinello, who otherwise might have been traded. Whether Tommy Thevenow or Cookie Lavagetto will start for the Pirates is still undetermined. The Cubs are undecided between Billy Herman and Augie Galan, and the position is one of the questions about the lineup of the Phils.

In the American League, Don Heffner has pushed Tony Lazzeri over to third for the Yankees but the newcomer's hitting ability remains to be proved. The Indians have dropped Boze Berger, have dug up Eddie Moore as a stop gap and are trying to make a deal for Oscar Melillo, of the Browns. If Rogers Hornsby makes that trade he will have a job replacing Melillo. The White Sox are now experimenting with Red Kress, and the A's must fill the shoes of Max Bishop. A most unusual situation, all around.

BUC ROOKIES SHOW SPIRIT OF OLD DAYS

Uncommon spirit and close attention to business, as well as mechanical ability, have caused some of the recruits in the Pirate camp this spring to stand out in comparison with the average rookie type. One instance, which was not discovered until after the game on the following day, was a refreshing reminder to the veterans on the club of the bygone years when ball players concentrated on baseball off the field as well as on it. Catcher Art Veltman and Pitcher Cy Blanton were together for two hours one night privately discussing baseball.

The Cubs were to be played next day, and the youngsters were figuring on how the game might be won. Veltman did not even know that he would be put in to catch, or, if he happened to be selected, that Blanton would be the man to pitch to him. But they figured all by themselves how to pitch to Chuck Klein and the other Bruin hitters. Knowing nothing of all this, Manager Gibson put in the pair as a battery, and sure enough, the plans of the rookies worked out, with the result that Klein, Stephenson, Herman and Stainback all went down on strikes. That's the spirit that counts—a study of the game and of ways to beat opponents.

BLUEGE ADOPTS SPECTACLES AT THIRD

A bespectacled third baseman is the latest in the major leagues. Clyde Manion wears spectacles behind the bat. Outfielder Chick Hafey is never without them. Many pitchers have worn them since Will White introduced the custom back in 1878, including Lee Meadows, Carmen Hill, Danny MacFayden, Norman Platt, Eddie McKeithan and others. Mark Koenig gave them a trial at shortstop, but probably the first big league third baseman to take a chance with them is Ossie Bluege, of the Senators.

Ossie Bluege

The fact that Bluege had adopted spectacles strengthened the reports that he might lose his job to young Cecil Travis, but Manager Joe Cronin is unwilling to break up a pennant-winning infield if it can be avoided, and Bluege declares that it won't be necessary. He thinks the cheaters will enable him to play as well as he ever did, and thinks they will improve rather than retard his work in the field, besides helping his stickwork. It was in the matter of hitting that Travis was said to have an edge on Bluege.

VICTORY OF HAWKS BREAKS LONG STREAK

It won't make sense if Chicago defeats Detroit for the Stanley Cup and the world hockey championship, inasmuch as in the regular National League season the latter club beat out the Windy City team for first place in the American Group by a wide margin, Chicago winning only three games more than it lost during the campaign. Yet anything may happen, and the Black Hawks may be hard to beat after their success in getting the jump with a 2-to-1 victory on the enemy's ice last night in the first game of the final best-three-out-of-five series for the title.

For the Hawks upset tradition as well as the season's form sheets in grabbing the opener, as prior to last night they had not won a game in Detroit in more than four years, their last previous victory in that city having been scored on February 2, 1930. In the meantime they lost nine contests in succession there, and out of a total of 16 engagements in Detroit they won only two. With the losing complex removed, they may make a stronger bid for the title than was anticipated in ice circles.

PROMOTERS DON'T TAKE RICKARD'S CHANCES

The Madison Square Garden fistic operators in New York claim credit for an unusually long gamble in signing away about 62 per cent of the Carnera-Baer gross receipts to charity and the main bout alone, leaving only 38 per cent for preliminaries and all other expenses. However, on the present-day percentage basis, modern promoters do not take the chances that the late Tex Rickard did in his early days. Huge guarantees, far more than percentage arrangements, involved the possibility of tremendous losses. Tex rarely lost, but he took the chance.

Tex Rickard

Rickard was unknown in the fight game when he hung up a purse of $34,000 in gold for the first lightweight championship fight between Joe Gans and Battling Nelson at Goldfield, Nev., on September 3, 1906, of which Nelson, though the loser, received $23,000. It looked like a wild chance, but the show drew $67,000, plenty more than Carnera and Loughran drew at Miami in February with the heavyweight title at stake. Disaster again was predicted for Tex when he put up the record purse of $101,000 for Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson at Reno on July 4, 1910, but Tex knew what he was doing, for the heavyweight title battle brought a gate of $270,775. From that time on, Rickard dominated the promoting game. His four big shows were Dempsey and Carpentier, $1,600,000; Dempsey and Firpo, $1,177,404; the first Dempsey-Tunney meeting, $2,000,000, and the second Dempsey-Tunney match, $2,658,660. Million-dollar gates appear to have died with Rickard.

HERE'S THE PROOF . . . . . TWENTY-FIVE STRIKES IN A ROW AT DUCKPINS FOR TEX WILLIAMS

It used to be that when a bowler rolled a perfect game of 12 strikes it was quite an event, but they've become so common lately that Tex Williams, McKees Rocks star, stepped out on the Roxian Alleys the other night and rolled himself two 300 games in a row in duckpins and added a twenty-fifth strike to start off the third game, just to convince the fellows that it wasn't a fluke. Above score sheet, attested by many witnesses, shows that he totaled 817 for his three games and failed to mark in only one frame, in which he got 9. If you think you're hot bowler why don't you c'mup and bowl Tex some time? These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

VINCE DUNDEE TO 'SCOUT' YAROSZ

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

National A. A. U. championship tournament, Arena, St. Louis.
Hans Birkie vs. Jack Van Noy, 10 rounds, Oakland, Cal.
Ernie Maurer vs. Orville Drouillard, 10 rounds, Detroit.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Vince Dundee and his manager, Max Waxman, think so much of the Ted Yarosz-Ben Jeby 12-round battle in Duquesne Garden, Friday night, that they are going to come all the way from Newark, N. J., to be ringside spectators, according to a telegram Waxman has sent to Lew Raymond, the matchmaker.

Vince knows that he can get more money for defending his world middleweight title against Yarosz here this summer than he can get for any other match in the offing with the possible exception of one in New York with Jimmy McLarnin, who doesn't want to fight him. He also knows that, since he already has lost two decisions to Yarosz, one here and another in his own home town, the dope is that Teddy will beat him again and win the title. Therefore, he is going to take a leaf out of the book of the football coaches and do a bit of scouting here. If studying Yarosz' style will help him in any way toward saving his laurels, the trip here at this time will be more than worth while.

JEBY ARRIVES ON SCENE

At the same time, Hymie Caplin, manager of Jeby, who arrived here today to finish his training, announces he has $1,000 to bet on Jeby to win at the proper odds. It's been so long since anybody has wanted to bet against Yarosz that this is a distinct novelty. Jeby worked out at the Pittsburgh Lyceum today.

For a time the six-day bicycle race sort of had the Yarosz fight submerged, but it has come out into the open in the last few days, and interest is steaming up. Promoter Jules Beck reports a surprising advance sale and says he is making arrangements to have the second half of the bike track moved back to accommodate more customers.

Incidentally, the semi-final bout on Friday's card will be a six-rounder instead of just another five-rounder. It is between Al Rossi, Dundee's stablemate, and Anson Green, Negro middleweight, of Homestead. Mike Barto boxes Marty Gornick, Lloyd Clements is in with Carl Montebano, Max Elling with General Burrows and Joey Adams with a substitute for Harry Krause, who, it develops, is too big for him.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

The entry list closed last night for the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. boxing championships to be fought at the Keystone A. C., beginning tomorrow night. The Pittsburgh Lyceum, storm center of the recent amateur boxing controversy, has a full team entered, and other clubs in the field include the McKeesport Lyceum, North Boros A. C., Willow Club, Snee A. C., Beaver Falls A. C., Frawley A. C. and West Newton A. C.

That Tiger Joe Randall-Joey Bazzone 10-rounder arranged for next Monday night is a natural for McKeesport, where Jim McGirr will put it on. Bazzone is the new McKeesport favorite, while Randall, hailing from nearby Elizabeth, long has been an attraction in the Tube City. They will meet at 150 pounds.

Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight champion, has been offered $25,000 to meet the winner of the Ceferino Garcia-Young Peter Jackson bout, scheduled for Los Angeles next Tuesday night.

Kid Chocolate and Frankie Wallace have been matched for a return bout in San Francisco, April 16. Chocolate recently defeated Wallace in a bout in the latter's home city, Cleveland.

News From Baseball Training Camps

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—(AP.)—Manager Mickey Cochrane returned to baseball yesterday after a few days' illness and saw his Detroit Tigers take a 6-to-5 10-inning beating from the Phillies, chiefly through the stickwork of Pilot Jimmy Wilson. The Phils' pilot drove in West Schulmerich in the tenth to break up the ball game with the winning run. In the ninth, the Phils had tallied three runs to go into a tie after being on the short end all the way until then.

JACKSON, Miss.—The nomination for second base, much tossed about by the Cleveland Indians, now appears to be firmly in the glove of Eddie Moore, who is slated to start at the keystone sack when the regular season opens. Eddie is 32, new to the Indians, and played second for the Pirates when they were world series winners in 1925.

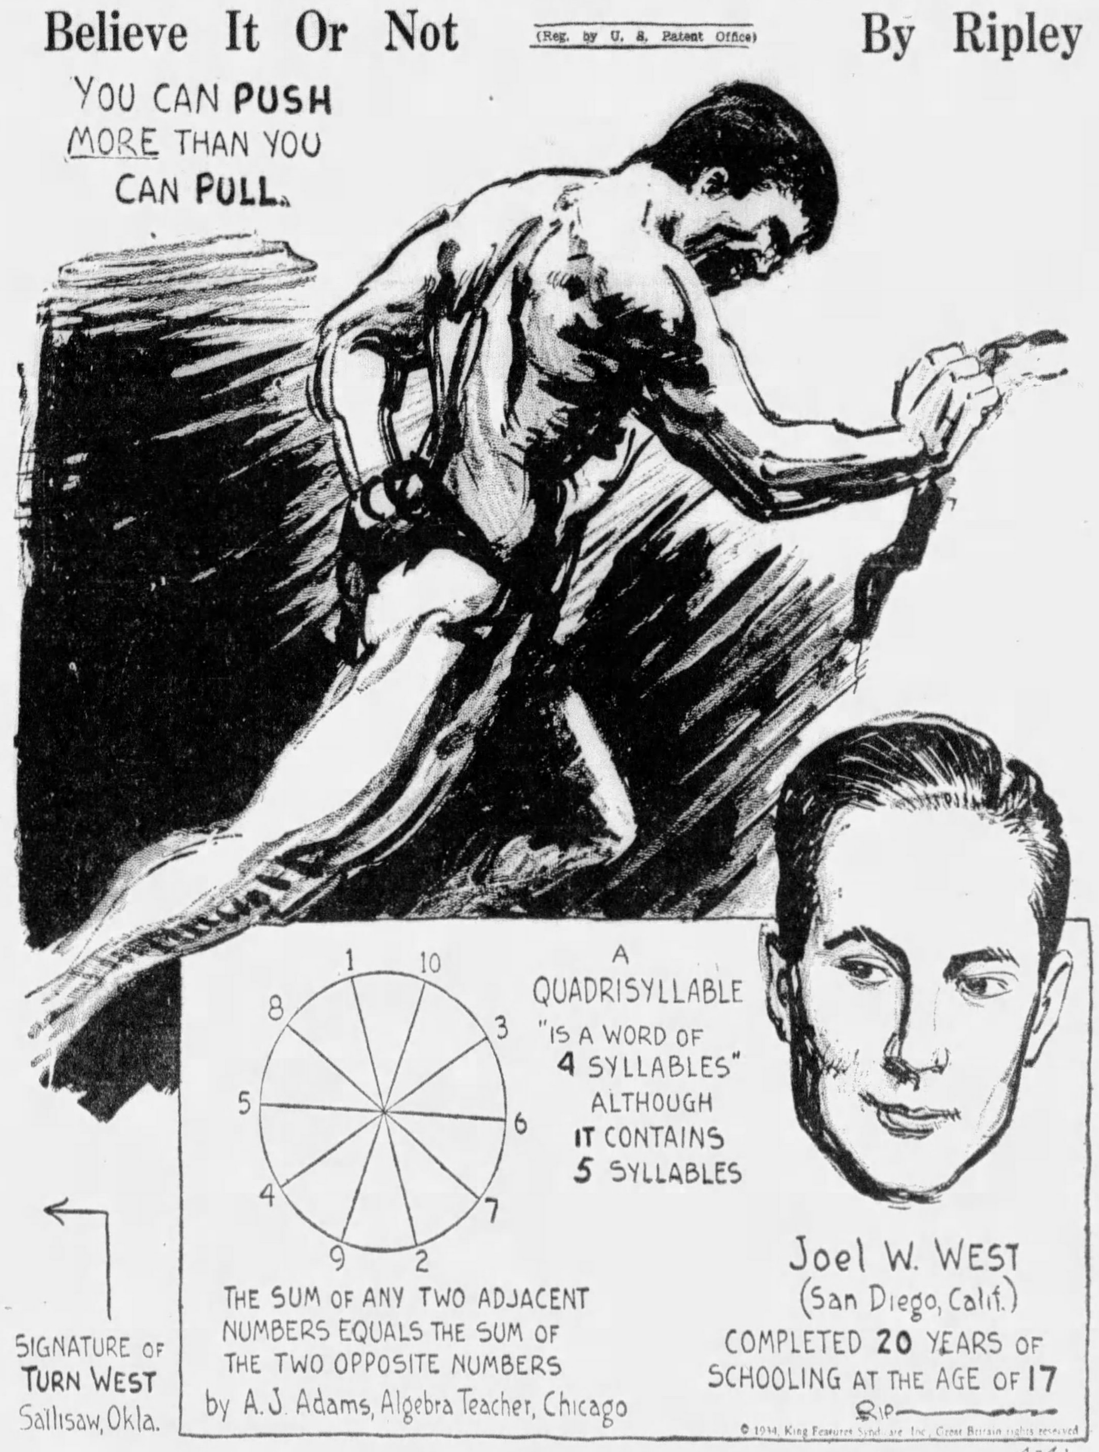
CLEARWATER, Fla.—(AP.)—Outhit, 13 to 10, the Cincinnati Reds barely managed to eke out a 9-to-8 victory over the Newark Bears in an exhibition contest yesterday. Homers by Koenig and Gill, which were good for three runs and poor fielding by the Bears, contributed to the Reds' triumph. Barton hit a home run for Newark.

ORLANDO, Fla.—(INS.)—Linus Frey, injured Dodger shortstop who was struck on the head by a pitched ball thrown by Leslie Munns, was reported further improved today. Frey was visited by Manager Casey Stengel yesterday. With Stengel was a majority of his teammates. Although Frey is eager to leave the hospital, he will remain for several more days, Dr. Gray, physician in charge, said the shortstop will be all right in three weeks.

ATLANTA.—(INS.)—The Yankees were to play another game with the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association here today and they were hopeful that a hurler on the order of Art Jacobs would be sent against them. Jacobs, hailed as the ace of the Atlanta staff, started against the McCarthymen yesterday and before the first inning was over the New Yorkers had scored 11 runs. The final score of the ball game was 18 to 9.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(INS.)—Pat Malone and Bill Lee were called on today to do the pitching for the Chicago Cubs in the first of a two-day stand against the San Antonio Texas League club. Manager Charley Grimm said he was still in the dark as to the personnel of his outfield for opening day, April 17, but Chuck Klein was considered a cinch for left and Kiki Cuyler at center.

Believe It Or Not (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By Ripley



EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: EASTER MOBILITY—In the early centuries of Christianity, Easter was celebrated on the date of the Jewish Passover, the fourteenth day of Nissan. The tendency then was to celebrate it on a Sunday, the day of the Lord's Resurrection. In the end the church authorities agreed to separate it from the Jewish Passover, and it was decided that Easter was to be the first Sunday after the paschal full moon (following March 21). But the chief purpose of the mobility of Easter was to insure bright moonlight to the ancient pilgrims on their way to the great Easter festivities. LADY OF DISTINCTION—The distinction of being the wife of a President of the United States and bear a son who followed his father's footsteps to that office falls to Abigail Smith, who married John Adams, second President of the United States. Mrs. Adams, born in 1744, was a daughter of the Rev. William Smith, of Weymouth, Mass., and her mother, Elizabeth Quincy, was a great-granddaughter of the Puritan divine, Thomas Shepard, of Cambridge, Mass. John Quincy Adams, the Adams' oldest son, became sixth President in 1825, but unfortunately Mrs. Adams did not live to witness the inauguration. She died in 1818.

TOMORROW: WAS ANYONE EVER DEALT A PERFECT BRIDGE HAND?

MOUND STAFF WORRIES PILOT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

PHOENIX, Ariz., April 4.—The in and out pitching which has marked the play of the Pirates since they started on their long barnstorming tour has not discouraged Manager Gibson, who today is fully aware of the fact that his revamped Pirates must toe the mark in the championship grind within the next fortnight.

Gibby finds consolation in several springtime developments, one of which concerns the utility strength of the Buccos. He is not altogether satisfied with the pitching staff, but he feels it will adjust itself as the club progresses. On the other hand, he likes the other three departments of the club and is happy when he looks over his reserves.

RESERVES STRONG

The secondary strength of an unusual nature is noted in all four sections of the Buccos. There are several second-choice hurlers, any one of whom may steal a regular berth. In the catching division Gibson has lots of class. The infield reservists are of exceptional hue, and the form shown by Woodie Jensen and Wallie Roettgher has bolstered what might have been a shaky outfield so far as secondary strength is concerned.

Roettger was supposed to be just a throw-in in the trade of the winter between the Pirates and Reds. But Wallie is likely to upset this calculation. He says he feels fine and his broken leg apparently is entirely healed. Wallie can play left or right field, and his right-hand punch at the plate is apt to come in handy. Jensen is superior to a lot of regular big time outfielders, but he cannot break through the Waner-Lindstrom combine.

Gibson is sweet on Pep Young and Tommy Thevenow, who are playing infield utility roles. Theve-

Boxers Weigh For A. A. U. Tourney

ST. LOUIS, April 4.—(AP.)—Several tons of fighting prowess mounted scales here today as determined youths qualified to enter various of the eight divisions of the National A. A. U. boxing championships.

The more than 150 aspirants to amateur boxing crowns hail from all parts of the United States and distant Hawaii. The weighing in will be followed, late today, by the drawing of pairings, and the first glove will be propelled through the air at 7 p. m.

Battling will continue nightly through Thursday and Friday. Not a defending champion is in the competition.

Swetonic Spurns Albany Berth

Steve Swetonic, of the North Side, recently turned back to the Pirates by the Boston Braves after having been obtained from the Bucs last winter via the waiver route, has refused to report to Albany, of the International League, according to a news dispatch from the St. Petersburg, Fla., camp of the Braves.

According to the dispatch, Swetonic plans to ask Judge Landis to put him on the voluntarily retired list if the Pirates do not make him a free agent.

The Braves returned Swetonic to the Pirates when it was discovered that he had a partially paralyzed hand, resulting from an operation last winter.

Ultimatum Served On Jim McLarnin

NEW YORK, April 4.—(INS.)—Jimmy McClarnin, welterweight champion must enter into a contract within the next 30 days to defend his title against Pep Van Klaveren, of Holland or have his title declared vacated.

This ultimatum was served on McClarnin's manager, Charley (Pop) Foster by the New York State Athletic Commission.

Max Makes Talk, Attends Ball Game

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 4.—(AP.)—As an interlude to his regular training for the championship fight with Primo Carnera June 14, Max Baer made two public appearances yesterday.

At noon he spoke at the luncheon of the Placerville Lions' Club and later attended the opening game of the Pacific Coast League here.

VINES WINS AGAIN

COLUMBUS, O., April 4.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines, Jr., boosted his tennis tour lead over Bill Tilden to two matches last night, Vines winning, 6-4, 10-8, before a crowd of 2,500 in the Coliseum at Ohio's State Fairgrounds.

BOBBY JONES WRITES OWN STORY OF AUGUSTA TOURNAMENT

LOST PUTTING TOUCH LEADS TO FAILURE

By BOBBY JONES

Bobby Jones

Any number of times before the tournament at the Augusta National I was asked how it was going to feel to have another shot at competition with a fast professional field. Frankly, I did not have the slightest idea how I would react to it. In practice rounds and friendly games, I had been hitting the ball as well as ever, but having long since found out that just plain golf and tournament golf were two entirely different games, I was not sure that my games was seasoned enough to stand up against the card and pencil.

Now that the thing is over, looking back I can see no very great difference that could be wholly attributed to the four-year layoff. Of course, my putting and chipping were ghastly, and this defection made the rest of the game more difficult. I have a suspicion that my uncertainty around the greens resulted in great part from the fact that in recent years I have played very little golf of any kind on greens that required much of a "touch." But I have had putting lapses before, even when I was playing a lot of golf, so the fact that this one came when it did may have been "just one of those things."

The fact that I putted very badly in practice before the tournament, before the strain possibly could have made itself felt. But my hope had been that the stimulating effect of the competition would pull the loose ends together as it had done often enough before.

MEMORIES OF INTERLACHEN

As I began my first round, I was delighted to find that I was experiencing the same sensation of nervousness which I had known in the past. It isn't exactly a pleasant physicial sensation—this feeling of emptiness in the middle—but I have learned that it often means some pretty good golf. My first tee shot carried me right back to Interlachen when I felt the ball on the center of the clubface and saw its flight down the fairway. The strain was working on the long game in just the way I wanted. If it would pull my putting together all would be well.

The first hole was all right, the second putt being less than six inches. But on the second green I had a warning. I knew I had not been swinging my putter and I knew that I must swing it. Further I knew that to get back the old sweeping stroke I must make my backswing plenty long. The first putt was 25 feet. I swung the putter back, but I gave it a jerk as I hit the ball, and over it went by two yards. I holed the next, but again I felt the jerk. I knew then what was coming.

THE REAL HAZARD

Few people in a gallery have any conception of what it means to a competitor when his putting touch deserts him, when he begins to yank and jerk at the two and three-footers. One expects to slip a short one occasionally, anyway, but if the stroke and touch are there it matters very little—just a mistake in picking up the line and you go right along. But when you jerk one or two you become afraid of stroking the longer ones. You begin to try to keep them on the edge of the hole, and soon you begin to jerk them, too. Next, when you know that you can't hole the ball from four feet except by accident, the chipping goes jittery, and finally, when every second shot which stops more than five yards from the hole means a struggle for par figures, the wreckage is about complete. What a difference it makes to feel that you can knock a shot somewhere near the green, chip up just around the hole and rap the putt into the middle of the cup! It is then that golf really is easy.

All in all, though, the old game seems pretty much the same as it was four years ago. There are some new names, of course, and some of the old ones appear consistently lower down the list. But the new ones play just about the same as the old ones used to, and even 4s on a full-sized golf course still will land somewhere near the top. And—just as ever before—you still have to putt to win a golf tournament.

PANTHER ACES WITH SEALS

The experiences of three graduating University of Pittsburgh basketball players during three seasons in which they visited no less than 40 states will be recounted during the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 6 o'clock tonight.

Accompanying the players, Don McCamant, Russ Ochsenhirt and Charley Hughes, will be Dr. H. C. Carlson, their coach. The Panther passers have just returned from a trip to the national coaches' meeting at Atlanta, Ga., which closed their season.

DUNLAP, BLUE GOLF VICTORS

PINEHURST, N. C., April 4.—(AP.)—George T. Dunlap, slender national amateur champion, shattered all professional and amateur records for the Pinehurst No. 2 course yesterday by turning in a spectacular 63, eight shots under par, to win his second round match in the annual North and South amateur.

Putting with a wizardry seldom seen, Dunlap went out in 31, and back in 32, in eliminating Donald Parson, of Youngstown, Ohio, 7 and 5. He holed all his putts, requiring only 17 for the 18 greens, as he sank his approach on the fifth for a birdie three.

Dunlap's performance stole the show today, but Halbert J. Blue, of Pittsburgh, and August F. Kammer Jr., of Princeton, put on a battle that required four extra holes before the Pittsburgh veteran triumphed. Kammer, runner-up to Dunlap in the qualifying round, three-putted a couple of greens toward the end of the long struggle to lose his chance.

Another match went an extra hole before Jack Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., eliminated Arthur M. Wood, Princeton golf captain, 1 up.

35,000 ATTEND COAST FRAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—(AP.)—With a barrage of base hits, one upset and impressively increased attendances, baseball has boomed back into the sport headlines in opening games of the 1934 Pacific Coast League season.

Total attendance for the four games all in California, was around 35,000, compared to approximately 24,500 for openers last year.

The under-estimated Seattle Indians provided the lone reversal of the day by taking the San Francisco Seals into camp, 6-4.

Los Angeles, pennant winner last year gave Portland a ride, hammering three pitchers for 18 hits and a 12-2 win.

Charles "Gabby" Street, former pilot of the St. Louis Cardinals, made a winning start when his Missions defeated Sacramento, 4-2, in a 12-inning battle.

French Aces Win In Singles Duels

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 4.—(AP.)—Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa, French professional tennis stars, won singles matches here last night when the United States doubles team of Vincent Richards and Bruce Barnes scored as the four pro netmen exhibited their wares before 1,200 fans.

Cochet disposed of Richards, 6-1, 6-3. Plaa downed Barnes, 6-4, 9-7. The team of Richards and Barnes beat the French tandem of Cochet and Plaa, 10-6, 6-3.

Monessen Joins New Baseball Loop

CHARLEROI, Pa., April 4.—The Class D Baseball League being organized in this district was a step nearer organization as Monessen authorities gave definite indication that they will seek a franchise.

At a meeting of special committees it was unanimously voted to enter the league, and Elmer Daily, organizer of the circuit, was to be notified Charleroi is definitely ready to take a franchise.

STARS ANNEX COURT DUELS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Torrid competition in the second and third brackets looms for today in the annual Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U., senior singles handball title tournament, in progress since Monday on the Keystone Athletic Club courts. Six contests comprise the program and all but two of these are in round three.

The feature tussle of the bill is set for 5 o'clock when southpaw Lou Alman, Y. M. H. A. hope and 1933 runner-up, engages Mike Hrycko, Downtown Y. M. C. A. warrior, who yesterday rallied to eliminate Loren Peterson, tourney darkhorse and conqueror of the redoubtable Harry Kraeling. Champion Theos Manos, Keystone crack, meets a formidable foe in Bill Rohaly, another Y star, at 4 o'clock, at which hour Rudolph Hofer, clever K. A. C. performer, takes on Dave Olbum, Bellefield husky.

Yesterday's milling got by without startling dope reversal, save the victory of Hrycko over Peterson, 18-21, 21-8, 21-9. Peterson looked extremely good, even in defeat, and exhibited a mastery of tactics and technique that was overcome only by the dogged power and neat sharp-shooting of the winner. Another upset, this a mild one, saw Hofer account for Rudolph Preininger, of the Y. M. C. A., in heated struggle, 19-21, 21-14, 21-5.

Chairman Dick Koubek reminds that he will receive entries for the Senior A. M. A. doubles debating until Saturday evening. The dual action gets under way at the K. A. C. next Monday. The summary:

First round—M. Y. Poling defeated Hamilton Foies, 21-15, 14-21, 21-15; Rudolph Hofer defeated Rudolph Preininger, 19-21, 21-14, 21-5.

Second round—Steve Myers defeated William Mothern, 21-15, 21-2; Regis Wallace won from Frank Altman by default; J. Parker Smith defeated Dr. Phil Lapolla, 21-10, 21-5; Lou Alman won from Dr. Sam Alpern, by default; A. A. Blaine defeated M. F. Hohenbrink 21-9, 21-8; Mike Hrycko defeated L. Peterson, 18-21, 21-8, 21-9; Rudolph Hofer defeated Carl Landau, 21-15, 21-10; Frank Schoenberger won from V. E. McGuinness by default; Theos E. Manos defeated S. L. Burgwin, 21-9, 21-13.

Allan Stutsman, Lawrenceville racqueter, states that the Kennedy Tennis Club, carrying 30 members on its roster, has been organized to play on the Y. W. C. A. courts on Fortieth street this summer.

Gilson will leae the CCC some time this month to report at Charleston.

ALL YACHTS IN PORT

HAVANA, April 4.—(AP.)—The little Cuban yacht, Dr. Jose Alvarez's 27-foot sloop, Polux, sailed into the harbor at 8:40 a. m. today, bringing to an end the fifth St. Petersburg-Havana yacht race, which started off the Florida coast Saturday noon. With the arrival of eight crafts yesterday and the Polux this morning, the entire fleet of 15 was safe in Havana harbor and the crews were busy enjoying their welcome. HAWKS VICTORS OVER WINGS

DETROIT, April 4.—(AP.)—A backhand shot by Paul Thompson in the second minute of the second overtime period gave Chicago's Black Hawks a 2 to 1 victory over Detroit's Red Wings in their Stanley Cup play-off series last night. Doc Romnes, who fed Thompson a perfect pass, was given an assist on the goal which ended the game in the second "sudden death" period.

Thompson's shot, which got the far, high corner to beat Bill Cude, in the Red Wing net, cleanly, ended a bitter battle of more than 81 minutes in which the invading Hawks displayed a great close checking game which continually gave the Wings trouble.

FRITZ CRISLER SOUTH GUEST

By JULIUS LEVIN

H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, head football coach at Princeton University, who is touring the district high schools as a guest of the Henry Clay Frick Educational Commission, will present two Inter-District trophies as well as the state championship trophy to the South High School basketball team at an assembly in the South High School auditorium tomorrow morning at 9:40.

Crisler's tour finds him at Schenley today, South and Westinghouse tomorrow and Perry and Allderdice on Friday. His subject is "Courage and Loyalty in Sports."

The Orioles, crowned state scholastic champions as a result of their victory over Reading High School, eastern finalist, also will receive trophies for defeating Huntingdon and New Kensington in the Inter-District playoffs.

Honors befitting conquering heroes were bestowed upon the South Siders this morning when 2,200 students jammed the school auditorium to capacity to pay tribute to the first City school to win the state crown. Prof. J. M. McLaughlin, principal, was master of ceremonies. Fred J. Breitweiser, a member of the Business Men's Association, which is arranging a public testimonial for the team, to be held on April 19, also was a speaker.

School was dismissed at 2:15 this afternoon to permit the team and students to stage a parade over their victory. The procession formed in front of the high school at Tenth and Carson streets and traversed a route over the principal streets of the South Side and downtown districts.

Friday evening in Skibo Inn, the members of the South quintet will be guests of the Carnegie Tech Varsity Clan at the annual banquet to be given the Tartan varsity and freshman football teams.

Yesterday the team received the official congratulations from the City of Pittsburgh when it was greeted by Mayor William N. McNair in his offices in the City-County Building.

A public testimonial and banquet will be held for the New Kensington High School basketball team, winner of the W. P. I. A. L. championship, next Monday evening. The testimonial, arranged by the Business Men's Association, headed by William F. McCabe, will be held in the New Kensington High School auditorium at 7:30 p. m., while the banquet will be held at the Hill Crest Country Club at 9:30 p. m. Tom Riggs, local radio star, will be master of ceremonies. The South High School basketball team, state champion, will be guests at the affair.

Pittsburgh and vicinity will get a peek at the champeen lady pocket billiards player next week, when she will make a tour of these parts, giving demonstrations of her skill as an educational feature to promote interest in the game . . . The folks who make billiard tables and other equipment send the champions around to give such exhibitions at regular intervals, and it is the turn now of Miss Ruth McGinnis to visit our billiards parlors and say "hello" to the folks.

Miss McGinnis

She'll come here from Weirton, W. Va., to make three appearances next Tuesday, at the Duquesne Club at 1 p. m., the Homestead Elks Club at 7:30 and the Clark Parlors in McKeesport at 9:30 . . . On Wednesday she'll put on her act at the Grand Parlors at 7:30, at the William Penn at 8:30 and in Butler at 10:30 . . . Thursday will find her showing at Sharon, Youngstown and Warren, O.

That fellow Fred (Tex) Williams, of McKees Rocks, who rolled 25 straight strikes night before last to account for two 300 scores in succession, which is pretty fair rolling considering everything (good enough, anyway, to get his picture in the paper), has been rolling for 15 years and got his first 300 score in a sweepstakes tournament last fall . . . His 817 total for three games is not his best mark . . . Without the assistance of perfect games, he once put together counts of 286, 279 and 266 for a total of 831 . . . He has rolled 279 on 15 occasions . . . His duckpin average for 60 league games this season is 166 . . . At tenpins he has an average of 193 for 36 games . . . The highest single tenpin game he ever turned in was a 268.

Here's a laugh for you . . . Jack Curley, the rassling czar, was on a train and became engaged in a smoking room conversation with a group of fellow travelers, professional and business men, and after a while one of them suggested that they introduce themselves . . . "Oh, so you're Jack Curley, the head of the crooked wrestling racket," said one of them. . . Curley smiled and replied: . . . "Mr. Banker, last Christmas I put on a benefit show for the inmates at the Altanta Penitentiary, and after the matches I talked with one of the guards and learned that there were 19 bankers and not a single wrestler doing time there."—HARRY KECK.

CULVER RIDERS FACE LOCALS

Polo fans are in for a treat Saturday night when the speedy Culver Military Academy polo team invades Hunt Armory to meet the Pittsburgh Gunners.

The Cadets have survived a stiff schedule in competition with the leading indoor poloists of the Middle West, suffering only four defeats in 17 games. Their clash here with the Gunners will come as an anti-climax to the supreme test of their campaign, which finds them tomorrow defending their national interscholastic title in New York.

City Loop Plans Confab Tonight

The City Baseball League has another meeting scheduled at the Hotel Henry this evening. President Sweeney and his board will have the forfeits lined up at this session and will discuss the umpire and ball question.

HAGENLACHER RETAINS CUE ADVANTAGE

CHICAGO, April 4.—(AP.)—Erich Hagenlacher, the Stuttgart Germany, star, tightened his grip on first place in the tussle for the international 18.2 balkline billiards championship yesterday and in so doing, set a new short game record for the tournament.

The Teuton, stroking the ivories in his best form, needed only six innings in which to dispose of Ora Morningstar, of San Diego, 400 to 98. He started with a run of 10, followed up with 114, and after dropping to a mere two, added a 54. He went out with an unfinished run of 7.

In the night match, Willie Hoppe, of New York, a frequent holder of the championship, regained some lost ground by defeating Kinrey Matsuyama, of Japan, 400 to 260, in 16 innings. Hoppe took the lead in the second inning and held it the rest of the way, picking up 90 billiards for his high, in the tenth inning.

Hoppe will attempt to stop Hagenlacher tonight while Matsuyama and Welker Cochran meet this afternoon.

RUNYAN GETS HIGH RATING FROM PARKS

By TOM BIRKS

Paul Runyan, diminutive young professional at the White Plains Country Club, is the greatest golfer in the country today. That is the opinion of Sam Parks, Jr., professional at the South Hills Country Club, who, after playing in all of the Pacific Coast winter tourneys, finished his competitive tour by engaging in the Masters' tourney at Augusta, Ga. After watching all of the leading lights in the country in action, Sam is well qualified to give an opinion.

Parks returned to the South Hills club yesterday to start his second year as pro. Golfers in the district will await with interest to see just how the young professional takes advantage of the golf he must have assimilated on his long tour.

Talking over the long trip and asked which pro's play stood out most vividly, Parks without hesitation named that of Runyan. He continued:

LAUDS IRON PLAY

"With all due respect to Willie McFarlane and Tommy Armour and others, Runyan is the greatest iron player I ever have seen.

"He rarely misses his second to the green, and his chip shots are a joy to watch. Runyan usually holes out one of these chip shots in each round, and if the ball doesn't drop, then it is so close that missing the putt is out of the question."

Asked about the play of Bobby Jones, the local pro said that Jones was the greatest player in the field from the tee, but his short game has dropped away and he seems to be worried sick when stepping up to drop a putt.

A number of the local pros returned to the job yesterday. Vince Eldred, of the Highland Country Club, West Penn open champion, is back from Bradenton, full of pep as usual, getting his shop ready for action. Emil Loeffler, of Oakmont, returned from Pinehurst. Willie McKay, of Longue Vue, was at the club, and Dave McKay, of the Field Club, who wintered in Florida, played a round.

Toots Erath, the Edgewood star, is already practicing, but Ted Luther, of Valley Heights, will not be down from Corry until later in the week.

All of the pros will start practice without delay, seeing that the National Open qualifying round is carded early in May.

BRAND IN LINE

Horace Brand, former pro at the Uniontown Country Club, is believed to be holding the inside track for the job of pro at the Schenley Park public links. Leslie M. Johnston, director of public works, has not completed the makeup of the Schenley links personnel as yet, and when it is made known, a number of familiar faces may be missing.

The job of clerk at the course is expected to be done away with and the duties formerly handled by Andy Petrolio added to those of the caddiemaster.

Francis McNamara, former assistant greenskeeper at the Field Club, has been named pro at the new Penhurst Country Club, and Carlos Moore has been signed as manager of the Churchill Valley Club.

RUNYAN TOPS WINNERS

CHICAGO, April 4.—(AP.)—Blazing over the continental trail with a par shelling game that captured six undisputed championships, tied for another and shattered three tournament scoring records, diminutive Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., beat out Horton Smith, of Chicago, in the struggle for gold in the winter golf tour.

Runyan, runner-up to Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., last year in money winnings, won $6,483 since the winter tour opened last November with the national capital city open, one of his triumphs. Smith, who capped one of golf's finest comebacks with his victory in the Augusta Masters show, won $5,231. Willie MacFarlane, the Tuckahoe (N. Y.) Scot, finished third with winnings of $3,493. Other big money winners and their earnings were Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, $3,039; Denny Shute, of Philadelphia, British open champion, $2,787; Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee, $2,656; Wood, who recovered his form late in the tour, $2,555, and the veteran MacDonald Smith, big winner in the California's raid, $2,406.

N. Y. GETS LONG RACING CARD

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP.)—Confident that the New York State Legislature will furnish relief by legalizing betting, the stewards of the Jockey Club have approved one of the most ambitious schedules in the history of the thoroughbred sport in the Empire State.

Starting April 21 at Jamaica, the ponies will run for 163 days, 12 more than last year, at the five courses. The season will close, as usual, at Empire City October 27.

There will be 21 days of racing at Jamaica before the scene shifts to Belmont Park for the running of many of the turf's richest stakes during a 22-day meeting. Racing will follow at Aqueduct, Empire City and then Saratoga. The schedule follows:

Jamaica—April 21-May 15, October 1-13.
Belmont Park—May 16-June 9, September 3-15.
Aqueduct—June 11-July 4, September 17-29.
Empire City—July 5-28, October 15-27.
Saratoga—July 30-September 1.

FIGHT RESULTS

now is apt to get the call at second over Harry Lavagetto after the race begins. In any event, Gibson is not worried when he thinks about his substitutes.

The Pirates and White Sox will stage their fifth barnstorming frolic this afternoon for the edification of Phoenix fans. The American Leaguers gained their first verdict over the Buccos yesterday at Yuma, where the two teams staged a 10-to-2 game.

Ralph Birkofer will twirl for the Pirates today. Sam Jones is ticketed to work for the White Sox. Catcher Earl Grace, who came to his home town Sunday night, rejoined his club today.

Waite Hoyt could not fool the Sox in yesterday's fray. They made eight runs in three of the five rounds he worked. Bill Swift reeled off the closing rounds as the Scranton boy made his first start of the season.

Evar Swanson started the game with a single which was the signal for a four-hit drive that produced two runs. Lindstrom's faulty attempt to field Simmons' fly was an aid to the Chicagoans. L. Waner opened for Pittsburgh with a double, but Lyons put on the screws and there was no scoring. The Sox clicked with two more runs as they let fly with a single and two doubles in the second.

HOYT HIT HARD

The White Sox continued their drive on Hoyt in the third when they piled up four tallies. Four safties were injected into the running.

The Buccos got to Lyons for two runs in the third after Ted had hit L. Waner with a pitch. There was no scoring from the third to the sixth, when the Sox added one largely through an error by Swift.

CHILLYSAUCE

George Clancy Cutshaw, a big Pirate favorite when he played the keystone bag back in the wartime days, is a well-to-do rancher of Southern California. It was a long time coming out, but Cutshaw, on the Pirate bench at Yuma yesterday told me that the late Barney Dreyfuss once offered him the Pittsburgh managerial job. As a matter of principle, Clancy declined the honor, but perhaps he was a bit too conscientious in his action.

Hugo Bezdek was getting ready to take his departure from the Pirate family for the time. Dreyfuss called in Cutshaw and informed him the bossing job was his if he wished it. Clancy recalled that Bezdek made the trade with Brooklyn that put him on the Pirates and he figured that he would be showing a trace of ungratefulness were he to replace Hugo. Baseball thereby seems to have lost a topline pilot, for Cutshaw was admitted to be one of the smartest players ever to wear a Pittsburgh uniform.

Pirate fans who watched Cutshaw's little son Mack when he was the Pirate mascot will be interested to know that Mack is in his last year in medicine at the University of Southern California. His dad has been prosperous enough in business to send the young man through seven years of college work. Mack was a member of the Stanford baseball club in his college days. He will graduate in medicine in a few months.

Al Simmons was a great centerfielder and he is just as clever in left. I asked him which he thinks is the tougher of the two positions and was somewhat surprised when he said:

"Centerfield is the tough spot. Left field is easy to play as compared with the middle patrol. I remember when Connie Mack switched me. He thought he was hurting my feelings in sending me to left. In a fatherly tone and putting his arm on my shoulder he told me I would be able to play longer if I moved to left field. Now I am convinced he knew what he was talking about."

RAIN HAMPERS TECH DRILLS

By JESS CARVER

Whether the start of Carnegie Tech's spring football drills was a signal for the rain or the rain a signal for the grid action is debatable, but nevertheless both are with us. The Tartans reported to Coach Howard Harpster and his very able assistant, Don Lovewell, yesterday, 32 of 'em, and were put through a light session of kicking and calisthenics.

The Plaid athletes got out about a month behind Pitt and the Dukes. Coach Harpster is undecided as to just how long he'll keep the boys working, but the chances are they'll keep at it for a month or more.

Pitt is to meet 16 opponents in 23 games in basketball next season. The Panther passers will travel as far west as Iowa, and an eastern jaunt will take them to New York, to oppose Fordham, Iowa, Bucknell, Fordham, Navy and Penn State are newcomers to the card, although all have been on previous Pitt schedules. The schedule:

January 4, Duquesne, at Duquesne; January 8, Carnegie Tech, at Carnegie Tech; January 11, Bucknell, at Lewisburg; January 12, Temple, at Philadelphia; January 14, Fordham, at New York; January 19, Notre Dame, at South Bend; January 23, Westminster, here; January 26, West Virginia, here.

February 1, Navy, at Annapolis; February 5, Wash-Jeff, at Washington; February 8, Duquesne, at Pitt; February 16, Notre Dame, here; February 23, Georgetown, at Washington, D. C.; February 27, Temple, here.

Congress Is Friend of Business

By B. C. FORBES

BUSINESS USED to be afraid of Congress—looked forward with trepidation to its convening, felt more or less nervous during lawmakers' deliberations, greeted adjournment with a deep sense of relief.

How different today!

Mr. Forbes

Business actually looks upon Congress as a safeguard against the more revolutionary nostrums brewed by brain-trusters and as a brake upon bureaucrats.

The hope, even expectation, is that Congress will modify the more radical bills presented to it by officialdom.

Even President Roosevelt, it is remarked, has been and is prepared to go farther in certain new directions than our law-making body.

Congress gives indications of resuming at least some of its functions and duties after having virtually abdicated last year. Until his veto was overridden last week, the President experienced practically no effective opposition. It begins to look as if the "honeymoon" is nearing an end.

It's a long, long time since men of affairs were glad to have Congress in session as a conservative, stabilizing influence.

IT MEANS something when Myron C. Taylor, head of the United States Steel Corporation, declares, without reservation, "we know we have turned the corner," because Mr. Taylor consistently refused to proclaim, while such proclaiming was popular, that prosperity was "just around the corner."

When the 1929 panic had swept securities from abnormal heights to what seemed abnormal depths, I repeatedly tried to get Mr. Taylor to make some sort of calming statement, especially in regard to his own corporation's securities. But he frankly declared that he was not at all sure the storm had spent itself and that, therefore, he could not conscientiously issue any reassuring statement.

Another towering industrial leader who long remained noncommittal and who has recently felt warranted in talking about improvement in conditions is A. P. Sloan, head of General Motors. He scrupulously avoided Pollyanna predictions. Not until betterment in his own industry had become unmistakable did Mr. Sloan modify his attitude.

Even now he does not shut his eyes to uncertainties—only this week he proclaimed in ringing terms that the labor section of the National Recovery Act "must be clarified or there is the certainty of industrial strife the equal of which this country has not yet seen."

It is encouraging to note that such cautious leaders as Myron Taylor and Sloan are at last impressed by the extent of the improvement in business.

ALTHOUGH SPECULATORS' hopes of inflation have been stimulated by the latest events at Washington, the security and commodity markets have not been able to shake off apprehension over threatened restrictive legislation. Sentiment in the highest financial circles is not rambumptious.

ONE INSURANCE leader, Edward W. Marshall, of Provident Mutual Life, cites for this column these significant facts:

"One of the most sensitive indicators of fundamental business trends and general economic conditions is the amount of new policy loans made by life insurance companies. A definite increase over the 1928 level occurred during the earlier months of 1929 before the crash. The peak of the demand for new loans was in the last quarter of 1931 and the first half of 1932.

"In the first two months of 1934 the average monthly demand for new loans was lower than at any time since September, 1929. The continued drop in this sensitive indicator is a sign of improved business, just as in 1929 it suggested that the country was 'riding for a fall.'"

Encouraging.

SOME LARGE concerns that haven't called their nationwide sales forces into convention for three years are now doing so. Executives feel they can conscientiously radiate optimism and inspiration. America's foremost lumber enterprise, Weyerhaeuser's, are having a session in New York this week, the first since the bottom fell out of building.

A healthy sign.

Switzerland Gold Loss Continues

GENEVA, April 4.—A continuation of the withdrawals of foreign capital from Switzerland was reflected in the condition statement of National Bank of Switzerland as of March 31, when gold reserves stood at 1,746,000,000 Swiss francs, a decrease of 36,000,000 francs on the week. Total loss of gold since the middle of February now amounts to 250,000,000 Swiss francs.

New York Exchange Members' Loans Up

NEW YORK, April 4.—The New York Stock Exchange reports members' collateral borrowings at the close of business March 31, totaled $981,353,948, comparing with the February 28 total of $938,010,227, showing an increase of $43,343,721.

SEES DANGER IN INCREASED TAXATION

By LEWIS HANEY,
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, April 4.—From Saginaw, Mich., comes an interesting letter, as follows:

"I wonder how so many of you economists keep your places with so much shallow thinking. You complain about your tax money being spent on national public improvements such as Muscle Shoals. You would have been against Washington and the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. You would have opposed Jefferson's Louisiana purchase. In Lincoln's time you would have argued it a waste of money to preserve union.

"You claim to put in 80 hours a week. I really work 35-40 hours. You don't know what hard work is. I can tell you how to get out of paying that awful income tax. Get a job and work for a living for a year. You would be glad to get back to paying income tax.

"Of course the NRA cannot make a heaven on earth. The real trouble with the world is stupidity and low mentality of the masses."

(J. T. S.)

"P. S. It was F. D. Roosevelt the people chose for President."

It is one of my privlileges to get responses from all sorts of people, and this letter represents one interesting group.

ALL BEGIN ALIKE

They begin by saying that the masses are stupid and that the average man has a "low mentality." Then they proceed to argue that such dumb people can choose the perfect leader.

It is hard to see how anyone can be sure of such good results from such a source.

But it is still harder to see what a leader is going to do with such a following. How can stupid and "dumb" people expect to be given large incomes and an abundant life? How can the passing of certain laws and the adoption of certain forms of regimentation bring much change, if the individual remains stupid and ignorant?

Then they say that the present problems are like those of Washington, Lincoln, etc., and that anyone who criticizes is a tory or a copperhead.

But whether right or wrong, one sure thing is that our present course is not like that taken by the great presidents of the past. They were all fighting to preserve the existing institutions, including individualism. None of them stood for government control over individual business.

Without exception they stood for general principles and established rules, learning heavily upon experience. They were not opportunists nor experimenters. Would they have repudiated the government promises to pay in gold?

"BRAIN TRUST" UNDEMOCRATIC

Jefferson and Lincoln, at least, had great faith in the common people. But the brain trust idea is fundamentally undemocratic. It implies that some individuals are so much superior to others that they know just what is best for all.

As a matter of fact, I think the Lousiana purchase was a "good buy," and that Lincoln's preservation of the Union was wise. But it does not follow that the nation thus built up should proceed to spend our money for unproductive "public works," or in ways which weaken the local government and individual initiative which the father fought for.

As to taxes on earned income, I fully grant that I could escape my income tax by earning less income. I admit that I would prefer to have enough income to require a large tax than to have one so small that I would pay no tax. But what has that to do with justice?

Should anyone who by mental labor can earn an income larger than others, have his incentive so to earn taken away? Where would taxes come from then?

I say that before we go that far we should count the cost and carefully figure the income. Taxes as high as medium-sized "earned incomes" now pay put a heavy burden of proof on the government spender.

Banks Change Attitude On Home Owner Bonds

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor.

BANKERS HAVE CHANGED their attitude on Home Owners' Loan bonds. When the organization started its work of taking over mortgages of harrassed home owners late in 1933, a general attitude of skepticism existed on the desirability of the corporation's securties. The bonds were quoted in the lower eighties in spite of the federal guarantee of interest. Few banks and building and loan associations were willing to accept them in exchange for their mortgages.

At present the situation is radically changed. The bonds are selling close to their par value. Instead of agreeing to accept them only as a last resort, banks and other mortgage holders are clamoring for them. A government guaranty of principal as well as interest now appears to be highly probable.

As a result the Home Owners' Loan Corporation has been swamped with applications. Since the latter part of January it has become necessary to double the staff. A shortage of equipment has forced the organization to work in day and night shifts.

Criticism Launched At Slow Progress

IN SPITE OF efforts made to cope with the rising tide of applications, much criticism has been aimed at the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. A large share of this has been on the part of the banks which at first were unwilling to co-operate but which are now complaining of the length of time needed to put loans through.

S. J. Bauchman, manager of the Pittsburgh district, asserts that this is unjust. He points out that a vast amount of investigation must be undertaken before loans can be granted. In addition the co-operation of mortgage holders to take reductions in their claims is necessary in many cases. Many of the delays, he declares, are due to negligence on the part of the home owners and mortgage holders themselves.

Applications Hit Enormous Total

WHILE THE TOTAL of loans granted up to the present time is not highly impressive, the sphere of operations of the organization appears likely to be vast in the future.

The Pittsburgh district offices of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation have granted 1,935 loans amounting to a total of $6,143,528. This district covers 25 counties. A total of 1,416 applications for a total of $4,248,732 have been rejected.

The organization has 16,372 applications pending. These call for loans of $52,531,877. Even if only half of this amount is loaned, $25,000,000 would represent a substantial amount of real estate financing.

Of the 16,372 applications now pending, work has been started on 13,638 applications.

STOCKS MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

NEW YORK, April 4.—Financial markets were cheerful but chary today and traders and investors generally showed a disposition to look before leaping.

Stocks, a little livelier than in the preceding session, pointed moderately upward, but specialties continued to draw the largest followings. There was talk of news "just around the corner," although there was nothing definite of an unusually bullish or bearish nature.

Wheat rallied a cent a bushel at one time, but other grains were hesitant. Cotton was about steady and rubber improved. Silver was hesitant. The dollar recovered in foreign exchange markets. Federal bonds were in demand and other loans fairly firm.

RAILS STRONG

Rail shares, including Santa Fe, Union Pacific and New York Central got up fractionally to about a point. Packing company made a good showing with Armour preferred and Wilson "A" shooting up a point each. The alcohols and most of the motors were a bit better than even. The utilities were easier. Kennecott, Noranda, Howe Sound and Anaconda improved, but most of the other metals lagged. Du Pont, American Can, Case, Seaboard Oil and Radio preferred "B" were about a point higher. United States Steel, American Telephone, Chrysler, General Motors, Consolidated Gas and many of the leaders moved narrowly.

Activity in some of the coppers followed word that final revision of the NRA code was under way. The automobile stocks were not particularly stirred by announcements of additional increases in car prices.

POWER GAINS

Another gain in electric power production for the week ended March 31, was seen as further confirmation of the steady progress of industrial recovery. Compared with the same 1933 week, output was up 18.8 per cent against an increase of 17.6 in the previous week. The advance was contra-seasonal. The period also included Good Friday, which was a business holiday in some parts of the country.

Reports that the Senate Banking and Currency Committee was having some difficulty in whipping the Exchange Control bill into shape tended to revive hopes in brokerage houses that the measure may yet have some of its teeth extracted before it comes up for final congressional approval. Some of the more optimistic even thought that the bill might not be enacted this session. Opinion on the whole, though, was that some sort of a regulator bill would be passed.

RALLY CHECKS COTTON DROP

NEW YORK, April 4.—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 1 to 5 lower in response to disappointing Liverpool cables and under moderate liquidation. May, 11.98c; July, 12.10c; October, 12.24c; December, 12.32c; January, 12.36c; March, 12.49c.

Trading was of small proportions but prices sagged a little under continued liquidation, Liverpool and southern selling. The trade was a moderate buyer and some Wall street buying was influenced by the action of the stock market, but demand generally was slow.

Prices moved over a narrow range and at the end of the first half hour, the market was about 3 to 5 points net lower.

The weekly report of the weather bureau indicated that soil had not dired out sufficiently to permit general operations, although field work was in progress toward the close of the week. Planting of cotton is said to be later than in average years, although good progress was made in Texas and Southern Georgia.

Liverpool selling of the more distant positions continued during the first hour, but after this pressure tapered off the market turned steadier on trade buying in the nearby positions. Prices then advanced on local and New Orleans buying influenced partly by a sharp rally in the wheat market. May sold up from 11.95 to 12.01 and October from 12.20 to 12.27 or to net gains of 1 or 2 points. Prices were holding at about these levels at midday.

WHEAT STAGES LATE RALLY

CHICAGO, April 4.—Sudden late upturns of wheat values today much more than offset early declines.

The rise of wheat more than 2 cents from an early low point was associated with the Thomas amendment to the Dies silver bill new before a Senate committee at Washington. The amendment was regarded by grain traders as highly inflationary as it would provide for government purchases of silver at $1.29 an ounce.

WORK PROBLEM NOT ACUTE IN ARGENTINA

Edward Tomlinson, foremost American commentator on South American economic and political conditions, has just completed a tour of South America as special correspondent of Universal Service. In a series of articles, he has written facts as he found them regarding American interests and business conditions in Brazil, the Argentine, Uruguay and Chile.

By EDWARD TOMLINSON
Noted Authority on South American Economics.

In nearly every country in the world unemployment is a serious problem, but not in Argentina.

The army of the idle in this South American republic is small compared with the forces of the unemployed in other lands. In the depth of bad times, there were less than 400,000 in the entire country of 12,000,000 population—without work. Today there are few more than 100,000, and most of these are in the large cities, principally Rosario and Buenos Aires.

However, the few thousand unemployed in the capital city, who are really victims of economic misfortune and the ever-changing social order, are by no means down-hearted. A visit to "Villa Esperanza," or "the city of the disoccupied," as the Argentines refer to it, is an excursion in optimism.

"Villa Esperanza" is a city within a city, a metropolis of several thousand men who have fallen on evil days.

MODEL 'SHANTY TOWN'

The unfortunates of the city, with the advice and assistance of the police and health authorities, have designed and built a model apartment center for tramp bachelors, and the result is not only picturesque, but amazing. If the inhabitants of this vagabondia were not life-sized huskies, "Villa Esperanza" would be a city of liliputians.

Main streets are only 10 to 12 feet wide, while cross streets average 6 feet in width. At intervals there are parks, plazas, even sunken gardens, averaging 10 to 15 feet square. The streets are lined with hedges and rows of trees. Every house is divided into three apartments, each about the size of a single Pullman compartment.

All streets are named and all houses numbered. A letter addressed to Carlos Calderon at No. 91 Esperanza boulevard will reach its destination just as promtly as one addressed to the most prominent citizen in Buenos Aires.

There is an administration building and a building housing the sanitary department. Just now a new social hall is under construction.

HOPE, PRIDE RETAINED

The entire city is built of sheet iron and rusty tin gathered from scrap heaps, back yards and garages. Some of it gathered without the knowledge of 'he owners, perhaps—but gathered. Everything about the place, except the materials, is uniform—size, style of architecture and so on, and all painted snow white.

Food is not a serious problem for "villa esperanza." The Buenos Aires markets send out their odds and ends at the close of the day's business and these are divided equally among the comrades.

Life may be leisurely in this model community, but no one seems to be idle. Some write poetry and books, others compose music, while those not so intellectually inclined build miniature furniture, make bird cages, tin kitchen utensils, and other such products to hawk to the occupants of passing automobiles.

All of which suggests that the unemployed in Buenos Aires are still full of rhyme and reason, hope and pride.

DEALERS SEE NEW LINE

New models of Westinghouse refrigerators, washing machines and vacuum cleaners will be shown to 200 dealers and salesmen from Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia at a meeting in Webster Hall tomorrow. Representatives of the Westinghouse Company from Mansfield, O., will address the meeting which is being sponsored by the Iron City Electric Company.

Treasury Offers 3¼'s In Refunding

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Refinancing of the $1,000,000,000 in called fourth Liberty 4¼ per cent bonds April 15 and $244,234,000 in 3 per cent notes maturing May 2 will be accomplished through an exchange offering of the same amount in 3¼ per cent 10-12-year bonds, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced today.

The offering was confined to exchange subscriptions. Cash subscriptions will not be received. However, holders of the fourth Liberties or the May 2 notes will be entitled to receive cash for these securities instead of exchanging them for the new issue of bonds. Indications from the government bond market were to the effect that the offering would be successful and that the bulk of the maturities would be refunded into the new bonds.

The fact that the Treasury did not ask for funds in addition to the maturity was a further indicator that the government's spending program would not come up to the $10,000,000,000 estimated in President Roosevelt's budget message in January.

Belief prevailed that the government would spend about $8,000,000,000 this fiscal year and that around two billion would be carried over to the first six months of the 1935 fiscal year. This would result in an expenditure of about $16,000,000,000 for the two years, the larger portion being for emergency purposes.

The call for $1,875,000,000 of the fourth Liberty bonds was issued last October. An exchange offering was put on the market and about $900,000,000 was converted into the new securities, leaving $1,000,000,000 for conversion into cash or new bonds April 15.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XXXV.

She saw the motorcycle rattle up to the house; the boy jump off and come up the steps with the letter. She took it, steeled herself and walked into her room. She held it for a second of blind reluctance, then swiftly took in the page.

This was Vivian's letter:

"You are worried for me, Pippin; you guess what this will tell. By the time you read this, it is all over. I am lying quiet and at peace. It is better—it is so infinitely better. You must see this.

"Do you think I am acting rashly or that you might have saved me. My mind was irrevocably fixed. I have weighed with anguish every consideration. There is no argument in favor of my continued existence. Only pain for me and him. Pain for all who know and love me. Should I inflict this? I am certain that I should NOT.

"You, Pippin dear, will be most grievously hurt; the wound to you is hard for me to inflict. You have stood by me stronger and kinder than friend or sweetheart or mother. I could weep now, remembering you but I dare not.

The Only Way

"Try to see, Pippin, that this is the better way; in the end, the only way. Go to Sherry and make him see it. He is not to blame! For what should he be blamed? You will think he should have rushed to me and ardently insisted on marriage. NO! Our chance for happiness was gone. He just could not afford to marry now. In a long distant future, perhaps! . . . I knew all this. I could not marry Sherry under the circumstances.

"I could not free myself of bitter disappointment . . . the violation of the spirit, I would not survive.

"So you see, Pippin, that is the only way. It is so logical that I should die.

"I'm writing this from the steamer 'Yale' bound for San Pedro. It is now nine o'clock. I have four hours left of life. I'm frightened—but I will not weaken. When the steamer docks in the morning I will not be there.

"At first I thought I would merely disappear, leaving no trace. That, perhaps, would be too cruel. It's better that you know definitely what I do and how.

"Here are the facts: I've taken passage under the name of Linda Crane. I've worn my tan dress and the tan hat with the feather. I carried my tan [illegible]e. It is empty except for [illegible]et of letter paper. By these [illegible]s you can identify me and make certain it is I who have gone.

"I'm writing my mother tell[illegible]her my mind is failing. I've [illegible]t a brief farewell to the [illegible] house. They should [illegible]day morning. My [illegible]eive hers today [illegible] Saturday, in the [illegible]fternoon.

Saved by Pippin

"Will you go now, Pippin, and comfort her? You will receive this message a few hours in advance. I have not sent hers special. All this agonizing calculation! I can only pray my plan is successful. The waves are roaring outside. I try no to think . . .

"One last word and then goodbye, Pippin dear, and thanks. I just want to tell you that I've had a week to think things over. I did mean to swim out that night of the picnic—make it all seem an accident. I'm glad this didn't happen. You saved me then. I'm so grateful for that brave proof of your affection.

"It would make it easier—so vastly easier if I could feel you'd not be bowed. Think of me happily; when I was gay and audacious and all of life a song. Think of me like that. Then I can go on—if there is continuance—bravely and trying anew—"

Pippin sank against her mother. She said, starkly, her mind fainting: "It can't be true!" She saw Vivian in the tan dress and the tan hat with the gay green feather walking back and forth on the boat; looking at the stars, then at the black, oily waters. Saw her standing at the edge of the deck, her mouth that was like a crushed red flower, moving a little—praying for the courage. She thought, frightened: Vivian couldn't! She wouldn't!" Pippin couldn't lift her mind from the horror of that moment when Vivian must decide to jump.

It couldn't be true—you can't be snuffed out like that! She saw Vivian struggling in the water, her hand reaching out. But she did not and would not see her sucked down; see her covered and lost in the sea. She shrank from the grim finality, from the appalling, incredible end.

Asks Helena's Aid

"Ah, yes. She could."

"I couldn't. No matter what." Pippin turned, stricken, finding it hard to frame the words. "You feel sure it's true? There isn't any hope?"

"Linda Crane did not get off the boat."

Pippin went over to the bu[illegible]

She combed her hair. It dull and lank. She said, gling: "Come with me, a. If Vivian is dead, I cannot face her mother—alone."

She was shocked to have said this word "dead." As though it were a fact and Vivian drowned. She went into the closet, pretending to look for a coat. She hid her face against the wall, holding her thoughts shut against the blasting realization. Because she would sob then, she might even scream.

Pippin came to Helena and said rather harshly: "Be sure not to give Mrs. Drake the whole story. I will tell her Vivian was depressed . . . she felt a cloud on her brain . . . feared insanity. It was better to die."

Helena regarded the haggard girl with an infinite sadness: "Have I not stood in Vivian's place? Is she not safe with me?"

They drove to the home of Vivian's mother. Mrs. Drake had just received the letter. She was whiter than the paper. She stared with blank, horror-stricken eyes, demanding they deny this message. Her child was not dead; she had not jumped from that boat and drowned. Only last Tuesday she sat in that very chair, laughing—so happy. Her mind could not be gone. Every one had known how brilliant Vivian was; how gay and good.

The evening papers confirmed the story. They gave added details: a tan hat with a small green feather left in Linda Crane's stateroom; the light brown suitcase empty except for a writing tablet. The girl was slender, about 5 feet 6, with red hair and dark eyes. . . .

Sherry Blames Self

Pippin drove down to the campus. It was a relief to get into a car and drive madly. Then she couldn't think; she would travel too swiftly for the stark images to follow. Whenever she slowed down she saw a white face with red hair spread out and floating on the water. It was Vivian's face—floating like a pale, translucent moon on the waves.

She went along the Portola road till she came to the abandoned farmhouse. She got out and walked up the hill.

As she approached the circle of trees, a shadow sprang toward her. Her hands were caught, and Sherry sobbed: "Oh, Pippin! Oh!" She walked at his side, her heart dry and her breath choking. Then he stopped her and, looking into her face, mumbled: "I murdered her!"

She could not meet his stricken eyes. She stood there white and shaken, trying to tell him what Vivian felt. Then she handed him a letter Vivian had inclosed with the farewell to her.

Sherry took out a little pocket flash and stood there, reading it—drinking up the words as though they were life.

He turned his back, covering his face with his hands. When he flung away from her and went over the hills. Pippin was frightened. She ran after him.

They reached a fence where both of them leaned, exhausted. Their young, harried faces were gaunt in the moonlight.

Pippin touched his arm.

Sherry looked down at her, all the youth of him mutilated. "You can't say anything to me, Pippin. It's just as though I stood at that rail. Just as though I lifted her in my arms and pitched her into the sea."

"No! Vivian doesn't want you to feel that way."

First Great Grief

Pippin turned with an almost tragic intensity to her studies. She had no heart for the dance; no mood for laughter. When the moon trailed paths of silver on the water and ships went nebulous into the fog, she felt mournfully the defeat and littleness of life. She longed to escape; have done with pain and unrest.

It was her first great grief. She wandered about in it, bewildered and appalled. For weeks, she had a feeling of expectance. A whiff of jasmine fragrance loitering on the bureau; a pencil sketch, dropped suddenly from a book, would bring Vivian back; would heighten the tormenting notion she was somewhere within reach but hiding and elusive. A hundred times Pippin halted and drank anew the shock and outrage of death.

It altered her. It pruned out the glib, impudent challenge. She no longer imagined herself an adored, glamorous Helen, rushing into whirlwinds of passion and adventure. Life was not this gay little affair of troubadours who go forth singing and frivolous, taking their joy as they would. This was her adolescent day dream—it was ended.

She answered Bill's tender, demanding letters with crisp accounts of her work in zoology. She took Kevin's picture and stuck it under the hat box on the shelf of her closet, and she confined Gregg's friendship to the most platonic lines.

Love was an enemy. It killed girls like Vivian; it destroyed the youth in a boy like Sherry.

BRITISH DEFEAT AT FORT TICONDEROGA—FRENCH AND INDIAN WAR (1758)

British Gens. Abercrombie and Howe advanced in July, 1758, against Fort Ticonderoga (between Lakes Champlain and George). As heroic Gen. Howe was among the first to fall and the French under Gen. Montcalm fought valiantly, the British attack was repulsed, Abercrombie retreating to his base on Lake George (July 8). His Col. Bradstreet attacked and captured French Fort Frontenac (today's Kingstown) on Lake Ontario in August.

Gen. Amherst, successful at Louisburg, Nova Scotia, learning of the disaster at Ticonderoga, sailed with four regiments to Boston and marched to Albany, reaching Abercrombie's winter quarters there in late October. The latter was recalled to England and Gen. Amherst commissioned as commander-in-chief.

Summary of 1758: English were successful in Nova Scotia (Louisburg), Ohio Valley (Fort Duquesne, where Washington planted Great Britain's flag) but defeated in the Great Lakes regions with exception of Fort Frontenac on Lake Ontario. (U. S. History)

INTERNAL, EXTERNAL STRUGGLES OF REPUBLICAN ROME—WAR WITH PYRRHUS

Roman commissioners drafted about 462 B. C. the "12 Tables," a code of law, installing decemvirs as executives. Overthrown, consuls and tribunes reinstated, these gave way to the military tribune (patrician or plebeian) endowed with supreme power, later checked by the censor (435 B. C.). Successively the plebeians were admitted as quaestors (prosecutors), dictators, praetors (highest judicial) and pontifex (head of church). Regardless of class struggles, Rome, at head of Latin League, was successful externally, repulsing invading Gauls (391)—who devastated land and burned Rome (390)—defeating Aequians, Volscians, Etruscans. Jealous, her allies united against Rome only to be subdued.

The southern people of the peninsula, dreading Roman conquest, invited the help of Pyrrhus, King of Epirus. He arrived (280 B. C.) with a vast army and many war elephants, terrifying the Romans. First defeated, Rome stayed victor; Pyrrhus withdrew. By 269 B. C. Rome mastered the peninsula.

THE STEERING WHEEL

Steering of an automobile is done by a handwheel, which acts through a reduction worm gear upon the steering arm. This is connected by a drag link with a steering lever acting on the front axle knuckles. Above: Parts of the steering gear. Right: Its conection to the front wheels.

ISRAEL PUTNAM TORTURED BY INDIANS

In the French and Indian War a detachment of Rogers' Rangers was massacred by the Indians near Fort Ticonderoga in 1758. The Indians spared the commander, Israel Putnam, for greater tortures.

They tied Putnam to a tree, exposed to bullets from French and English. Then they hurled their tomahawks around him. Uninjured, they bound dry wood around his waist, setting it afire. Enduring all tortures without sign of fright or pain, Putnam, almost suffocated, was rescued by French Capt. Molang, who took him as captive into the fort.

GAS LAWS OF GAY LUSSAC AND AVOGADRO

Gay Lussac's Law (1808): Gases combine in volumes, the ratio of which is a small whole number (1, 2, 3, etc.).

Avogadro's Law (1811): Equal volume of gases of same temperature and pressure contain equal number of molecules.

Above: One volume hydrogen unites with one volume of chloride (by experiment); so molecules of H and Cl must be diatomic (H_2,Cl_2). Similarly two volume hydrogen with one volume oxygen give two volumes of steam (H_2O), thus oxygen is also diatomic (O_2).

Molecular weight of oxygen was chosen 32 for convenience; the volume of 32 gram oxygen, (O_2) was found to be 22.415 liter under standard conditions, called the molar volume, corresponding to a cube of about 11 1/8 inch sidelength. A consequence of Avogadro's Law is that the weight in grams of the molar volume of any gas equals the number expressing its molecular weight. (Chemistry)

Monocotyledoneae (above) such as grasses, palms, lilies, orchids, etc., have parallel-veined leaves, stem with vascular bundles scattered through the pith, flower-parts in threes and sixes. Seed has embryo with one cotyledon. (General Science) 45-III-B

We're for Lighter Dictionaries

Professors of English prove that you can get along in life with 300 words.

With that midget vocabulary on tap you can ask your gal to marry you, argue with traffic cops, telephone a reasonable distance, transact business and even take a bath.

We can chisel down that grammatical poundage. You don't need many words to keep from starving in a cafeteria.

You can travel from New York to Hollywood on your thumb.

After you get there you can become successful by merely nodding in the affirmative to the supervisors.

Down in Washington all you need to signify in the usual manner is, "Yes."

Mussolini doesn't even require that. Just raise your arm in salute and it gets you by.

There's altogether too much fat chewing in the world. However, there are times when 300 words may seem too little. Under the income laws you should be allowed 50 extra for each dependent.

We conquered the West on one word. When Daniel Boone met Chief Silly Pony, old Daniel said, "How?"

The chief replied, "How?"

Of course, Danny kept his eyes peeled to see that the chief didn't ring in a fourth hand at bridge.

Then he patted his chest to show he didn't have any bad gift cigars concealed there. After that, they were friends unless a fight started first.

The mobsters know the value of few words and like to have their conversations escorted by a lawyer. From most any station house in the high rent districts you can hear these constitutional italics wafting from the legal windows, "So you won't talk, eh?"

If it's a good habit for a man in wrong it cannot do any harm for the right citizen.

We have a dictionary in the office that weighs 28 pounds in its stocking feet. It's got a lot of words in it and belongs to the firm. Maybe the boss is smart. If it was any smaller we would take it home.

The Navy Program

New Construction Must Be Started Now to Reach Treaty Strength in Five Years.

When President Roosevelt signed the Vinson bill, he acknowledged the receipt from Congress of due notice of its determination to build up our Navy to equality with the strongest within the next five years.

An authorization measure of this sort is not, as some agitators for unpreparedness would have the country believe, a legislative gesture or a political bluff.

It is notice from the Congress to the President to prepare plans and recommend appropriations to carry out the will of Congress with regard to the common defense.

Under the Constitution, Congress is charged with the responsibility of providing for the common defense. To Congress is given the power "to raise and support" armies and "to provide and maintain a Navy."

It does not lie within the constitutional power of any President—and the American people will hope that it is far from the intention of President Roosevelt—to misuse a congressional authorization to build up the Navy either as a negotiating instrument in the conduct of foreign relations, or as a political substitute for the construction of the Navy that this country needs.

Awaiting the approval of the President is a recommendation from the Navy Department that Congress appropriate at this session $37,000,000 to begin the construction program authorized by the Vinson Act.

This new construction must start now if the Navy is to be built up to treaty strength within the next five years.

The modest appropriation to start the new construction authorized by the Vinson Act should not be delayed, either by the Congress or the President.

If the President prefers to allocate this appropriation from the Public Works Fund, Congress and the country will support his decision.

But if the Public Works Fund is not to be drawn upon for this purpose, the sooner the President submits to Congress a recommendation for the addition of this appropriation to his budget estimates, the sooner the world will know that the determination of the American Congress to build up the American Navy to treaty strength within the next five years will have the steadfast support and co-operation of the American President and Commander-in-Chief.

A Rich Market

The Chamber of Commerce Furnishes Some Valuable Data About the Pittsburgh District

As she tells [illegible] possibilities for trade promotion in the goodwill [illegible] e to be conducted by the Chamber of Commerce in the P[illegible]sburgh district during the summer, the Chamber is pu[illegible] today some statistics about the region centering on th[illegible] within a hundred-mile radius. The figures are illuminati[illegible] the wealth of the district and the commercial poss[illegible] open to persons who have meritorious goods to sell [illegible] derstand salesmanship.

First, the Chamber tells us that the population of the area is 5,595,464; the number of dwellings is 1,162,301, and the number of farms, 130,443. That information should be interesting to dealers in household supplies and farm equipment.

Then we are told that the value of our normal annual output of manufactured products is $4,055,388,948, the amount paid out annually in industrial wages and salaries is $1,352,407,509, and the annual value of our farm products in a normal year, $179,967,303. Merchants or others who make a failure of selling enterprises in the Pittsburgh district cannot excuse themselves on the ground that the people have no money to spend.

Wholesalers and manufacturers will see opportunities in the figures on retail sales in the district. The three highest classifications are: department stores and dealers in wearing apparel, $579,069,000 a year; stores selling food of all kinds (not eating places), $518,548,000, and establishments selling new and used automobiles, $264,190,000.

There is hardly any kind of legitimate business enterprise that would not find it worth while to cultivate goodwill and conduct a continuous selling campaign in the Pittsburgh district.

Free School Centennial

Pennsylvanians Should Give Some Thought This Week to the Blessings of Public Education.

Pennsylvania's free public school system was established a hundred years ago when Gov. George Wolf signed the free schools law on April 1, 1834.

The schools are celebrating the centennial this week with appropriate exercises. One of the notable events of the celebration will be a state-wide championship spelling bee in Harrisburg in which the champion spellers of 50 counties will participate.

The Sun-Telegraph takes pride in having sponsored the contest in which Allegheny County's representatives were chosen.

It is to be hoped that not only the adults who are interested in the spelling bee but the citizens generally will give some thought this week to the blessings that we have derived from a hundred years of free public schools, and also will give some thought to the improvement of the schools and the school system.

Of the wonderful advances that have been made in popular education we can form some idea from the fact that a committe of the Legislature of 1830-1831 estimated that of 400,000 children between the ages of 5 and 15 in the state at that time less than 150,000 attended school the year before, and most of them for not more than three or four months.

We still cling, unfortunately, to some of the methods of school administration that were formulated in the days of the oxcart but have outlived their usefulness. There is no excuse, for example, for the continued maintenance in Allegheny County of more than a hundred independent school districts, each with its board of directors, tax collector, solicitor, auditor [illegible]y. With consolidation of the districts efficiency [illegible]omoted and more money made available for the [illegible] of good teachers.

This is but one of several ways in which our public school system could be improved.

Some thought should be given by all Pennsylvanians to things like this, as we commemorate the inauguration of free public schools.

Just One of the Unemployed?

(Copyright, 1934.)

Japan was one of the original members of the League of Nations.

Some time ago, Japan served formal notice of withdrawal from membership.

Under the League rules, the notice could not become effective for two years—and last week, Japan, while no longer taking part in League business, astonished the European countries by paying two million gold francs as dues. A news dispatch reported:

"Officials interpreted the action as meaning that, although that country resigned from the League, IT INTENDS TO PAY ITS OBLIGATIONS PROMPTLY while still legally a member."

In other words, in the chancellories of Europe, on the continent of war debt defaulters, it is actually NEWS when a nation keeps a promise as Japan has done.

And we also read:

"The payment cheered League circles considerably because some other countries owe a total of some twenty-two million francs in dues."

Evidently, therefore, the war debts to America are not the only obligations which the League itself fears will be dishonored—why else would the League officials be worried about dues?

Financially as well as diplomatically, the League verges on bankruptcy.

And yet, American advocates of the League of Nations and of the League Court want the United States to implicate itself in the League's crumbling affairs!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 4.—Hockey appears to have captured the rugged enthusiasm of those sickened by the decadence of prize fighting—at least in New York. Several matches a week bring larger crowds than the fistic cards. The hockey player is designed for the feminine romantic build-up.

Not only is he the most expert of graceful skaters, but a daredevil of chance. Every minute on the ice he's in danger of serious accident, so fast and furious is the game. The routine is easily picked up at one sitting and this usually brings new-comers back.

That more are not killed or dangerously banged up in the fierce bat-out-of-Hades dashes and whiplike finishes is due entirely to the players' skill in swerving, spread-eagling and turning on a dime space. As it is, there are not many intervals when someone is not carried out, toes up.

General admission line-up outside, which forms early, is made up of truck drivers, preliminary fight boys, corner toughs and others who like their sporting fare bloody. In their high-up perches, they boo, jeer and throw things if there is any let-up in the furore of the slam-bang.

A recent vagrant line in these columns expressing a belief that the pongee puckster Bert Williams died of a broken heart has brought a flood of queries as to the why of such reasoning. As a reporter I talked to Williams a few months before his passinng. While he made no direct statement, I garnered an impression that racial barriers which precluded his attaining the high dramatic place in the theater he deserved had worn him down. To my notion, he was bankrupt of hope, did not care longer to trail his thin wisp of glory and made no resistance to the ravage of a disease.

Few know that Williams, brought up in San Francisco, was born in the West Indies — Egbert Austin Williams. His grandfather, Svend Eric Williams, a white man, was Danish consul in Antigua, whose wife was a native senorita of beautiful olive coloring, three-fourths Spanish and one-fourth African. Their only son, Bert's father, married a quadroon who was sister to the Episcopal clergyman of the Church of England in the Indies. Thus Bert had few inherent traits of the Negro, yet he characterized them better and more sympathetically than any other actor who ever lived. * * *

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

When You Begin to See Only Yourself

I'm always snitching something from Mary Borden's grand column. Never mind, Mary, maybe some day I'll do something so swell that you can snittch from me. In the meantime, I hold the world's record for strawberry shortcake. So in case you happen to be around this way, and aren't counting your calories, perhaps we can swap. A little of your literature for a lot of my eats.

But—getting back to Mary's column—the other day she wrote about how she was looking for an Idiot Face. Cute little souvenir? Yes, but writers are that way. And Miss Borden, being engaged in writing about the insane, wanted to see a bonafide Exhibit A. So she went where they were kept—scores of poor, twisted spirits living in a dreadful world of their own.

Ever go through an insane asylum? Mary Borden hadn't, either. And she expected to find just about what you or I would expect—mumbling madmen ... struggling, skulking, gibbering ... making faces at themselves. But, to her amazement, there were none to be found!

To the contrary, she passed through wards filled with seemingly sane women, engaged in perfectly normal occupations or conversation. They didn't yell or try to hide when Miss Borden appeared. In fact, they were markedly indifferent to her approach. Some seemed sad, some pleasantly vivacious, but all were entirely composed.

She expressed her amazement to the superintendent. Where were the terrible staring eyes, the drooling mouths and flapping hands that marked the insane from the sane? They didn't, he told her, exist. Then wasn't there any way you could tell mad women? Yes, there was. Hadn't she noticed?

"I noticed that none of them paid much attention to us, or to each other, now that I think of it," said Miss Borden.

"That's it. They pay no attention, have no curiosity and no interest in anyone save themselves. I mean it literally. Each one of those women is so completely absorbed in herself that she does not think of her companions as real. They don't exist for her, nor did we exist. When we went into the room we were shadows. Each one of them in there is completely alone in the company of shadowy beings less real that ghosts.

"Those two women there—you can't say that they are talking together, because neither is listening to the other and neither would think of asking the other a question, much less than answering. They are simply talking to themselves or chattering to an imaginary companion, in the shape of a second self."

"COMPLETELY ABSORBED IN THEMSELVES" ... there's the sign of the insane. And there's the danger signal for the sane!

When you can think only of yourself—

When you consider only your own problems—

When you judge everything by your own standards or prejudices—

When you test every word, every act, every situation by its relation to you—

When you're bored by anything that doesn't have a direct connection with you, your life, your interests—

When other people and other problems begin to seem as detached, as distant, as unimportant as shadows ...

When you begin to build a dream world for yourself ... make laws for yourself ... justify anything you can do by your own necessity ... then—

BEWARE! YOU MAY NOT BE INSANE, BUT YOU'RE GETTING THERE!

You do not need to be born with diseased blood or a crippled brain to become insane. You can be born perfectly normal, and all your people before you can have been perfectly normal, yet you can become insane.

If you let your cowardice run amuck ... or your selfishness run amuck ... or your conceit run amuck ... YOU CAN BECOME INSANE.

THE INSANE HAVEN'T EYES THAT STARE. THEY SIMPLY HAVE EYES THAT SEE ONLY THEMSELVES. WHEN YOUR EYES BEGIN TO LOOK IN ... LOOK OUT!

A Bit of This and That

Beauty parlors are the places where every woman makes a desperate effort to stop the flight of Father Time by putting salt on his coat tails.

Most men propose so casually, so clumsily or so vaguely that the only consolation a woman has is that she can use her imagination when she pictures her fiance's impassioned ardour to her friends.

With all this constant changing of life partners, any young man looking toward the June round-up, ought to be able to find a swell bargain in wedding rings in almost any pawnshop.

A man's notion of a Perfect Wife is the sort who admires her husband for all the wonderful qualities he DOESN'T possess—particularly if they happen to be infallible judgment, common sense and a brilliant wit.

A man doesn't begin dreaming of romance, at six or seven, as many a little girl does—but he makes up for it, by going right on, at 60 or 70, pursuing sentimental adventures, under the impression that he will still catch the Bluebird.

The difference between spending money on a gal, before and after marriage, is, to the average man, very much like the difference between digging for fishing-worms and spading up his wife's flower garden. The first is a sport—the second, just a painful duty.

Brainy girls may have lots of admirers, but they seldom make happy marriages; because the moment a man discovers that his wife's cleverness is beginning to make him look a moron, he starts looking about for something so dumb that she will make him feel like a master mind or an intellectual colossus.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Unfortunately, in many homes, there are heated arguments in the presence of children.

This is bound to lessen the respect young persons should have for their parents.

This is also true when parents allude to some of the unfavorable traits of relatives.

In the case of very young children, the relation of such facts may suggest to them that they would like to be similar to the relatives against whom the derogatory statements have been made.

In older children, it may suggest that any meanness they have within themselves is inherited.

Parents must control themselves, when angry, if they expect their children to do the same.

But too often, the children from homes where quarrels are frequent, are quarrelsome in the homes they later establish.

Farley, Roper Responsible For New Air Contracts

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Truth has rough flavors if we bite it through.—George Eliot.

CONGRESS can hardly afford to ignore the allegations made by the Airline Pilots' Association concerning the terms of the temporary contracts for carrying the federal air mail, which have just been announced by Postmaster General Farley.

Congress should not overlook the fact that these proposed contracts have been drafted in the Postoffice Department after consultation with the Department of Commerce.

This means that Postmaster General Farley and Secretary Roper share the responsibility for the form of these contracts and under the law can be held to a strict accountability for the fairness of their terms.

Investigation Should Be Made

THE Airline Pilots' Association includes in its membership most of the airline pilots who flew the mails until all domestic air mail contracts were canceled last February and this service turned over temporarily to the Army Air Corps.

The charges that the Farley-Roper form of temporary contracts are unfair and discriminatory are a challenge to the Congress to make a fearless honest and non-partisan investigation of all branches of the Postoffice Department involved in the administration of the federal air mail act and of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce, to which the Secretary of Commerce delegates his authority and responsibility under the law to regulate and develop commercial aviation.

To sift the charges made by the Airline Pilots' Association, Congress should first investigate Secretary Roper's so-called "reorganization" of the aeronautics branch. These "reorganizations" began last June. They have transformed the aeronautics branch from a highly efficient, expert and non-political federal agency into a far less efficient and highly political agency.

Some Questions For the Committee

BY calling as witnesses Postmaster General Farley and Secretary Roper, a congressional committee should be able to find the answers to some of the following questions:

Who were the Senators and Representatives in Congress, the air transport operators, the contributors to the campaign fund of the party in power or other persons who dictated the political appointments of Secretary Roper in the aeronautics branch and the political appointments of Postmaster General Farley in those divisions of the Postoffice Department which have charge of contracts under the federal air mail act?

Where did Secretary Roper's aeronautics branch get its "inspiration" for reducing expenditures to maintain the federal airways, while hundreds of thousands of dollars are being expended on "flivver" landing fields all over the country that will contribute little, if anything, to the building up of American air transport or the speeding up of the federal air mail?

Did any American air transport operator "inspire" the aeronautics branch to promote the so-called "flivver" planes and the tooling at federal expense of a factory to manufacture these "flivver" planes?

With what air transport companies have the ranking officials of the aeronautics branch been associated in the past, and what experience in aviation did they possess that was comparable with the experience of the expert officials whom they replaced?

Why has the expert personnel of the aeronautics branch been reduced, under the pretense of economy, when this branch has been scattering all over the country thousands upon thousands of dollars from the funds of the Public Works Administration and the Civil Works Administration on pork-barrel projects and fantastic schemes not specifically authorized by Congress?

What relation, if any, has the aeronautics branch maintained with the Senate investigation of foreign and domestic air mail contracts?

What experience in aeronautics did Postmaster General Farley's assistants have before they were assigned to the important task of supervising the operation of the federal air mail?

After Postmaster General Farley and Secretary Roper have replied to these and similar questions by a congressional committee, it will then be in order for that committee to summon the members of the Airline Pilots' Association. These pilots should be able to tell what officials of the federal government and other politicians have been traveling up and down the federal airways on free passes since Postmaster General Farley and Secretary Roper took up flying.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

Entreaty

O, some love is a flowering tree
And some love is a song,
And these bring sweets and melody
Life long, life long!

But my love is a mighty wall
That shuts the world without,
And lets no sorrow in at all,
No grief or doubt!

O, Love, be ever as today,
And with your shielding arms
Shut me from all life's hurts away,
From all time's storms!

O, some love is a flowering vine
Whereon the wild bees throng;
Be you my strength, O, Love of mine,

The Fate of President Roosevelt's Recovery Program Is in the Hands of the U. S. Supreme Court

By Edwin C. Hill

FOR one year the attention of the people of the United States has been riveted upon one personality, the President, to the exclusion, almost literally, of any other personality or group of personalities. The reasons for this intense concentration of the popular mind on the Chief Executive are too obvious and well understood to need much explanation or analysis. For he took hold at a time when the country was well-nigh in the depths of despond. Almost instantly, by the force of his courage, daring, resourcefulness and undismayed cheerfulness, he brought about a change in the public psychology which was nothing less than miraculous.

And, throughout the year, with one bold stroke after another, he has endeavored, in a course of experiments which brushed aside or overturned many of the established customs and principles of our financial structure, of our industrial and social order, to repair the wreck of 1929 and to restore a stable basis of prosperity.

There can be no question whatever, that he has made progress in his bold and daring experiments. Unemployment has certainly been reduced by as many persons, we are told, as four millions. The prices of almost all commodities have increased from 25 to 100 per cent. The farmers of the West have been materially benefited, the South is enjoying more prosperity than it has known for several years, and the industrial centers of the North and East have felt the impetus of increasing demands for products.

It is much too soon to determine whether the Roosevelt New Deal, originated and carried on at a cost, already, of some ten billions of dollars, is indeed a permanently successful social and economic revolution. But gains have been made, and that, in itself, is enough to set the President on a lofty pedestal of public regard—a man apart.

New Deal Rests On Supreme Court

HIS popularity and eminence are such that we are apt to overlook the fact that the real rulers of the United States are nine elderly gentlemen who sit in a stuffy courtroom in the city of Washington, five days a week, from noon until 4:30 p. m. with half an hour's recess for luncheon. For the fate of the New Deal, the outcome of the whole vast recovery program, depends upon these nine men, or a majority of them, even more than it depends upon Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The President has created the machine and put it in motion. But upon the nine, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and his eight associate justices, falls an even greater responsibility. Only they can save the machine from being dismantled piece by piece. For they alone are the interpreters of the Federal Constitution and the law. If they swing the tremendous force of the Constitution behind the President's recovery legislation and his numerous codes, the New Deal goes on. If they block the New Deal machine with the Constitution and the law, the New Deal stops, retreats, eventually goes to pieces.

Justices Divided, Five to Four

THAT, exactly, creates the tremendous drama of the present situation. For it appears that the eminent nine are divided as sharply as their number can be divided. It appears that five of their number are intellectually and tempermentally willing to go along with the President as long the present emergency exists, and no longer, while four of the nine lack sympathy for the President's revolutionary policies and would halt them—or some of them—if they had the power.

On two occasions, up to the present time, interests in opposition to the New Deal have taken their case to the Supreme Court—to the Nine. The first occasion was the Minnesota moratorium case, when the court voted five to four to uphold the Minnesota state law which had suspended the payment of principle and interest on home mortgages.

The second case is of this hour, when the court, again by a vote of five to four, decided that the State of New York has a right to fix the price of milk, and that producers of milk must sell at the price fixed by the state in the interests of the common welfare.

Two victories for the New Deal and probably an indication of how the Supreme Court will act in the future, when other tests arise. These two tests, and an exactly similar vote in each test, five to four, make it appear that the great court is sharply split, separated by a gulf of political and social philosophy, as has occurred before in the history of our country.

ISN'T IT SO?

Some persons, given credit for having better sense, just keep on getting married and getting divorces.

The worst food forced upon any man is to make him eat his own words.

It is all right for girls to be interested in sports so long as they don't marry one.

An honest man will admit that the world is using him as well as he is using the world.

If a business man sits down and waits for his ship to come in it is liable to be a receivership when it does arrive.
